INSULL BUILDS UP DEFENSE

SCAN RECORD OF ROOSEVELT FOR ECONOMY IN N. Y.

2 Groups Seek to Cut Expenses.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 16.—[Special.]—The stewardship of Franklin D. Roosevelt as governor of New York is under scrutiny, from the point of view of economy in government, by two separate forces.

In the one instance, a joint legislative committee, with six Republicans and three Democrats composing its membership, is conducting public hearings in which heads of state departments under Gov. Roosevelt are being called upon to discuss an efficiency expert's recommendations which propose an annual saving to the New York taxpayers of $38,000,000.

In the other, a group of the leading citizens of the state representing many branches of commerce and industry is working quietly with all department heads and with their cooperation is trying to cull some $55,000,000 from the state's yearly budget.

Interesting Facts Unearthed.

The legislative committee has unearthed some interesting facts, such as the building of cow barns for state institutions costing from $45,000 to $85,000 each, and pig pens at $20,000.

The committee's efficiency expert has also charged that there is no system over the personnel of the state officers; that the employes may loaf, go to ball games, to the theater, or shopping, play sick, take four weeks' vacations, all at the expense of the taxpayers.

Gov. Roosevelt thus far has not considered the activities of the legislative committee worthy of explanations from him. His department heads have declared that the committee is playing politics; they point out that the public hearings were begun just last week, during the last month of the presidential and state campaigns. They also point out that the testimony concerning the $45,000 cow barns and $20,000 pig pens furnished material used in speeches by Republican state campaigners the day after it was put into the record.

$8 Million Deficit.

On the other hand, the Republican candidates in the New York state election have for their principal platform pledged the establishment of economy in government. The Republicans decry the fact that their state, under the régime of Gov. Roosevelt, ran into a $58,000,000 deficit in the last current year, a deficit which this year is expected to run over $100,000,000.

The hearings before the Republican controlled legislative committee have already, after but three days of activity, run into sharp controversies, in which the Republican legislators, their counsel, and their efficiency expert have quarreled with the Democratic appointees of the governor.

The efficiency expert, Frank O. Everett of the firm of Griffenhagen and associates, has proposed economies in six state departments and renewed efficiency in collections which he believes would effect a saving annually of $38,000,000 in a yearly budget of $276,000,000, but the hearings thus far have not shown a spirit of cooperative effort likely to yield anywhere near such a saving.

Ask $5 Million Cut.

Citizens who hope for a reduction of their tax bills have expressed more confidence in the activities of the so-called state budget advisory committee. Members of this committee met with Gov. Roosevelt in July and requested that economies totaling $55,000,000 a year be enforced. The governor met their request with a suggestion that they pitch in and survey the situation and then make specific recommendations, and they have taken the governor at his word.

At the present time this committee of citizens has formed subcommittees which in six groups are studying the expenditures of the various state officials, and in a short time they are expected to issue reports making definite recommendations for economies.

The governor and his budget director, Mark Graves, can take the recommendations or leave them, but the committee believes that with the force of their united support the governor will be willing and able to put a substantial number of the recommendations into effect.

Will Urge Salary Reductions.

Up to the present the committee has issued no reports at all, but from conversations with some of them it was

CONVICT KILLED, 24 WOUNDED IN PRISON UPRISING

Montgomery, Ala., Oct. 16.—(AP)—An uprising during the recreation hour at Speigner state prison, 20 miles from Montgomery, this afternoon resulted in the death of one convict, the wounding of 24 others, and the escape of one prisoner who eluded Warden A. B. Smith after he had halted fifteen men in flight.

Carl Singleton, 18, Jefferson county convict, was slain by gunfire from guards as he, with 14 other prisoners, failed to heed warnings and crashed through a fence on the west side of the prison enclosure.

Seeing the prostrate form of Singleton being borne through the main gate of the enclosure on a stretcher, half of the 950 convicts in the prison made a dash for the entrance. Guards commanded the gate from two strategic points and opened fire on the leaders. Twenty-four fell under the volley and the others stopped in their tracks.

As the fifteen convicts dashed through the fence into an outer yard of the prison they ran into the grim faced, gray haired warden.

"All right, boys, you can walk in with me or go in like that fellow on the ground," he said, placing his hand on his pocket, which did not contain a pistol but a scrub brush he had snatched from his auto. Ten of the convicts turned and marched back into the enclosure, but five made a break for freedom. Three later were tracked down by bloodhounds, but Reuben Pittman, 16, a Montgomery county prisoner, escaped.

4 Riders Fall in Hunt; Noted Horse Injured

Three riders were slightly injured and a fourth one was shaken up yesterday when they were thrown from their mounts in the regular Sunday hunt of the Onwentsia Hunt club at Milburn. One of the horses, Sea Soldier, steeplechaser son of the famous Man o' War, was stunned for five minutes when he ran into a low barrier. He was scratched on his legs and head but was not believed seriously hurt.

The riders thrown were Austin H. Niblack of 1441 West Old Mill road, Lake Forest, master of the hounds; Miss Laura Thorne, daughter of Robert J. Thorne, of 425 North Sheridan road, Lake Forest; Robert Pirie, son of John T. Pirie, of 930 East Rosemary road, Lake Forest, and John Allen, also of Lake Forest. Miss Thorne suffered a wrenched ankle. Mr. Niblack received minor bruises, as did young Mr. Allen. Mr. Pirie was merely jarred.

Thrown Three Times.

Miss Thorne was thrown three times before she went home with the injured ankle. After the first two mishaps she remounted. Her horse appeared to be tiring, however, and fell while making a jump, throwing her to the ground for the third time. This ended her participation in the hunt for the day. Mr. Pirie's mount shied at a tree. Mr. Allen fell while galloping.

Mr. Niblack was riding Sea Soldier. The horse, considered one of the finest steeplechasers in the country, has been turned into a hunter. Accustomed to high hurdles, Sea Soldier trainers said, has not yet adjusted himself to the irregular and lower jumps used at Milburn.

Fall Stuns Sea Soldier.

It was at one of these barriers that Sea Soldier fell. Mr. Niblack picked himself up immediately, but his mount lay stunned on the ground for a short time.

Sea Soldier was purchased by a syndicate of ten Chicago millionaires several years ago. At the time he was the only son of Man o' War bred strictly for steeplechase racing. Last March he ran in the Grand National at Aintree, England, the only United States horse entered. Two years ago Sea Soldier won the famous Jersey chase.

HOOVER APPEALS FOR SUPPORT OF RELIEF GROUPS IN WINTER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 16.—[Special.]—President Hoover tonight appealed to the American people to give generously in order to provide relief for the distress of the coming winter.

The President's plea over the radio inaugurated a series of broadcasts to be spread over five weeks, in which appeals will be made for support of the country's charitable and relief organizations.

"The purpose of this appeal this evening," the President said, "is to summon again the great heart of the American people. We must make material provision for the support of our charitable and character building institutions. We must provide to the utmost extent for the local community support to the increased distress over the country.

"I take profound pride in the fact that my countrymen have accepted the responsibility, each in his own community, to meet this need. That is the only way to meet it effectively, in the neighborhood itself, where the need is known."

He explained that this year the national association of community chests had assumed the responsibility of organizing the work of voluntary giving in the various communities, then went on:

"In closing let me say that no richer blessing can fill your own hearts than the consciousness on some bleak winter's evening that your generosity has lighted a fire upon some family's hearth that otherwise would be black and cold, and has spread some family table with food where otherwise children would be wanting. I wish my last word to you to be the word 'give.'"

POLICEMAN'S GUN ACCIDENT FATAL TO HIS DAUGHTER

Mrs. Pearl Harper, 24 years old, 3613 Elston avenue, died yesterday in the Martha Washington hospital of a bullet wound received through the accidental discharge of a revolver in the hands of her father, Policeman Arthur George. Mrs. Harper, her husband, William, and her parents had been attending a party at the home of friends, at 3236 Warner avenue. Policeman George's gun was discharged as he transferred it from his hip pocket to a holster while the family was entering an automobile in front of the Warner avenue address. George is secretary to Lieut. James Killackey of the police vehicle bureau.

THOUSANDS JOIN IN BURIAL RITES OF SLAIN MINER

Troops Mass Nearby in Ceremony.

BY PERCY WOOD.

Taylorville, Ill., Oct. 16.—[Special.]—Thousands of striking coal miners poured into this center of the Illinois mine war late this afternoon escorting the body of Andrew Ganis, a fellow worker, to burial. Ganis was slain by a National Guard corporal late Friday in his home village of Tovey in one of the recent clashes between state troops policing this turbulent area and the Progressive Miners' faction which has been picketing the pits employing United Mine workers.

The sun was low in the west before the miners completed their rites and Ganis' body was lowered into a grave between ranks of white tombstones in Oakville cemetery. And as the thousands of attendants turned from the grave bugles sounded "Assembly" in the improvised barracks near the Taylorville courthouse square. Four hundred troops gathered for Sunday "Retreat" ceremonies.

Troops Massed at Ceremony.

While many of the strikers watched, the seven companies of riflemen and machine gunners marched to a nearby parade ground. There they formed facing their commander, Lieut. Col. Robert W. Davis, and his staff. The stately notes of "To the Colors" rang out, and the flag lowering ceremonies were complete.

Patrols of khaki clad militiamen resumed pacing the streets—an action discontinued at noon for the funeral. Their orders were to permit no loitering nor congregating. Since it was reported from several sources that the strikers intended remaining here until tomorrow morning to continue their picketing, considerable apprehension was felt by many citizens. It was not believed that Col. Davis would permit the strikers to stay within Christian county tonight.

It was difficult to estimate the size of the crowd which came to Taylorville for the funeral. In delivering the funeral oration over Ganis' body at Pawnee, before it was brought here for interment, Gerry Allard, editor of the Progressive Miner, addressed the crowd as "you 15,000 friends." Other estimators placed the number at 10,000 and even lower. But hundreds were still flowing into town as the services ended.

Hold Services Outside County.

The Ganis rites began at 2 o'clock at his home at Tovey, one of the small mining communities, where the cortege formed and drove to Pawnee, a few miles away, across the dividing line between Christian and Sangamon counties. The services were held outside the county to avoid a military guard at the funeral.

A long line of cars—hundreds of them—moved slowly along the concrete slab of the hard road into the village.

They drove into the bandstand square at Pawnee and the casket was carried to a place beside the stand. Ganis' family was seated behind a bank of flowers covering the casket and the speakers mounted the platform. Around it gathered thousands of miners and hundreds of women garbed in white dresses and headbands which bore the insignia of the women's auxiliary corps of the Progressive miners.

Soon the strains of "The Old Rugged Cross," sung by thousands, filled the square.

The Rev. D. J. Dundas, pastor of the Methodist church at Kincaid, preached the sermon. A prayer asked: "Speed the day when men shall say 'I am my brother's keeper' and not 'Am I my brother's keeper?'" Another hymn, "No Night There," and then Mr. Allard delivered the oration. He pledged that the Progressives would "carry on" in the spirit in which Andrew Ganis died. He termed that death a "murder."

Cortege Moves to Taylorville.

Back then toward Taylorville moved the cortege. The distance was about fifteen miles, and the road was lined as the procession passed through the villages with men, women, and children. At Bulpitt flowers were strewn on the highway.

At the cemetery gate the cortège slowed to a walk and a band preceded it playing "Last Rose," a funeral dirge. As it moved toward the grave the hearse passed within fifty feet of a tall monument on which stands the figure of a miner in pit clothes, which Virden riots in 1898. The shaft bears

Confers with British Lawyer in Athens Hotel

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Copyright, 1932, By The Chicago Tribune.]

ATHENS, Greece, Oct. 16.—Arthur Page, youthful British solicitor of the firm of Simons & Simons of Threadneedle street, London, tonight turned over to Samuel Insull a batch of documents and papers which the two examined together in a prolonged conference in one of the salons of the fallen utilities magnate's hotel. Several bulky envelopes contained legal appearing documents and letters which Insull read with absorption, interrupting his study from time to time to talk with Page.

Page's transportation was arranged from Paris by Samuel Insull Jr. The lawyer left Paris on Thursday evening and arrived in Athens at noon today aboard the Orient express. He did not register at the Petit Palace hotel where Insull is staying. Although Insull had been expecting Page's arrival, he went on a motor trip this afternoon. Page got in touch with his 73 year old client about 9 o'clock tonight.

Has Nothing to Say.

Insull had nothing to say concerning the nature of the documents and communications brought to him. Page was equally of the opinion that nothing was to be said.

Insull, however, appeared in better spirits after he had conversed with Page and had learned about the affairs of his wife and son in Paris first hand. It was impossible to determine whether Page had brought further funds to Insull, who has only what remains of the 3,000 lire [about $154], $300 to $400 in American money and ten British pounds [about $44.50], which he had on arriving here.

Page did not want to talk about anything. After his talk with Insull, he hurried to his hotel for dinner, retiring early. The young Londoner of scholarly appearance seems to be rather a messenger than an astute counsel sent to advise Insull in the intricacies of his dealings with his Greek lawyer, Cristos Ladas, and his Greek interpreter, Peter Vanech, up to now the only men Insull has taken into his confidence.

The conversation between Insull and Page was long and earnest. Page did most of the listening, commenting from time to time as the former multi-millionaire, who is wanted in Chicago to stand trial on charges of embezzlement and larceny, went over the mysterious documents.

Interpreter Goes With Insull.

Insull was accompanied on his auto ride into the country by his burly interpreter, who hails from Stamford, Conn. He hired a taxicab and went to the mountain suburb of Parnes, north of Athens. They had three blowouts en route.

As a promoter of grand opera and the lyric theater Insull appeared particularly interested in Mount Parnassus, on which the Greek muses danced about Apollo according to mythology.

Insull ventured out today because he learned that the Athens police were no longer shadowing him. This fact THE TRIBUNE confirmed yesterday on the authority of Chief of Police Gen. John Naskos.

However, Insull's taxicab was followed all the way by another car containing five men, evidently in the police service. At one or two places along the route it was possible to avoid the followers.

The supposition is advanced here tonight that the five men may not have been Greek police officers, but represent the efforts of American authorities here to keep a close check on Insull's movements through private detectives.

Legation officials have communicated to Washington, D. C., Insull's refusal to surrender his passport in his struggle to avoid extradition and have received the state department's instruc-

PAPEN DASHES HOPE GERMANY WILL PAY DEBTS

Asks Creditors to Lift Tariff Bar.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PADERBORN, Germany, Oct. 16.—America's hope for repayment or partial repayment in the near future of the millions which it has loaned Germany was dealt a severe blow by Chancellor Franz von Papen in a speech before the Paderborn industrial association today.

FRANZ VON PAPEN

"Creditor nations can expect payments from Germany only if they are ready to accept German goods as payment for Germany's debts," he said. "Therefore they must open their frontiers to our goods."

This, the chancellor declared, will be Germany's thesis at the world economic conference this winter.

Money Drain Hurts.

Up to the time of the crisis of 1931 Germany had repaid $1,250,000,000 to her foreign creditors, but Von Papen said:

"The new withdrawal of foreign moneys from Germany makes further payments impossible now. It would endanger our economic recovery and lead to great upheavals. Therefore it must be expected that the foreign countries which still have money in Germany will go beyond the provisions of the standstill agreement and consolidate their money lent to Germany.

"Only if tariff barriers are reduced and German goods are no longer subjected to insuperable obstacles in the world markets will Germany's debts to foreign countries not be made an unbearable burden threatening to paralyze initiative in German business."

Von Papen placed Germany's foreign indebtedness at five billion dollars.

Industrialists of the Paderborn district in Westphalia greeted the chancellor with hearty ovations, calling him the "leader at the turning point to a better era."

Stock Values Increase.

Proudly the chancellor pointed to the fact that since he has been in power German stocks have increased in value by over a half billion dollars on the exchanges.

"The improvement was not brought about by speculators, but by investors," he said. "The general situation has improved so much that the finance minister has decided to increase his monthly subsidies to welfare funds of communities by $14,000,000 in October. He plans to increase this in November."

The chancellor again appealed to German industrialists to help to restore personal initiative and a sense of responsibility.

"Equal Rights for All."

Speaking of disarmament, Von Papen stressed that Germany's goal is "disarmament of the whole of Europe and the world—equal rights and equal security for all—not an increase in armaments."

"Our ideal is a Europe free of hegemony—a continent of nations respecting each other and striving together toward the high goals of humanity," he concluded.

Two Slain in Political Riot.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DORTMUND, Germany, Oct. 16.—Two persons were killed and twelve were seriously injured in riots between National Socialists and communists here today a few hours before Chancellor Franz von Papen arrived to make an address.

The trouble started early in the day when Hitlerites in groups of 40 and 50 marched to the communist district distributing handbills. The Reds, in ambush nearby, attacked the Hitlerites. The fight spread through the entire district. Police in riot cars were fired upon and shot back. A woman watching the riot from behind a window was one of the two slain.

Riots Break Out in Berlin.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 16.—Three persons were injured and 26 were arrested today in Berlin as a long period of political calm was broken by fighting. Clashes occurred between National Socialists, communists, and Socialists.

A new platform, incorporating com-nunistic and Hitlerite ideas, was injected in the campaign today by Dr. Alfred Hugenberg, supporter of former Kaiser Wilhelm and leader of the Nationalists. Since the Nationalists are the only party supporting Chancellor Franz von Papen, the principles announced by Dr. Hugenberg are regarded as the platform of Von Papen's government.

"Capital and labor must be reconciled," Dr. Hugenberg announced. "Only capital controlled by the state can be a blessing. International capital, thirsting for power, kills peace and liberty, whereas national capital and labor are united by common interests. Our social policy delves deeper than Marxism. We want each family to have its own plot of land. Homesteading and development of underpopulated districts and enlargement of the territory in which we can live are points in our social theory. Social insurance, too, must be saved.

—Hitler Made Honorary Citizen.

COBURG, Germany, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Honorary citizenship was conferred upon Adolf Hitler, the National Socialist leader, here today in a stadium thronged with brown shirts and townsfolk. The occasion was commemoration of the first Nazi demonstration held here 10 years ago coincident with Benito Mussolini's march on Rome.

Three Slain in Vienna.

VIENNA, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Two Fascists and a policeman were slain and twenty Fascists wounded by gunfire in a riot among Fascists, police and socialists in the working class section of Vienna today.

The disturbance occurred while the Fascists were parading past the socialist "Workers' club." The authorities raided the "Workers' club" and arrested 45 members of the Schutzbund [socialist defense corps]. Seventy rifles and a number of pistols were confiscated in the raid.

BANDITS SPARE MRS. PAWLEY ON FEAR OF SPOOKS

LONDON, Oct. 16.—(AP)—The Express today said that Mrs. Kenneth Pawley, who, with Charles Corkran, is in the hands of Chinese bandits, had saved her own life and that of her companion by threatening to haunt the bandits after death. Both of the captives are British subjects and were taken at Newchwang, Manchuria, several weeks ago. Since then the British government and the Japanese and Manchukuo authorities have been trying to negotiate their release.

Mrs. Pawley, who speaks Chinese fluently, struck terror into the hearts of her captors by a courageous move which proved more effective than all the elaborate negotiations that have been taking place. The Express quotes an interview between Mrs. Pawley and Pei Patien, the chief of the brigands:

"Kill us and we'll haunt you day and night," Mrs. Pawley threatened. "We'll do everything possible to change the spirits of your ancestors into turtles."

The woman gave the brigand chief the verbal lashing of his life, one of the emissaries reported, and the bandit squirmed, since all Chinese fear a woman's tongue. One of the emissaries said Mrs. Pawley was beginning to influence the brigand chieftain.

ACCUSE NEGRO COOK OF HURLING BABY TO DEATH

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Oct. 16.—(AP)—A murder warrant charging the strange death of the two months' old child of Mr. and Mrs. John Lindsay, prominent Americans, to Sarah Francese, a Negro cook, was issued tonight by Prosecuting Attorney Domingo Massari.

The baby, John Lindsay V., was thrown or fell to its death from the fifth story window of the Lindsay apartment last Friday night. Nothing but circumstantial evidence was available on which to base a warrant or to solve the case.

The prosecuting attorney admitted that the evidence against Sarah Frances was purely circumstantial, but he insisted that the child could not have fallen from the window because a large table was in front of the aperture. The accused woman today protested she was innocent.

marks the resting place of Charles Franklin Billyeau, who was slain in the a dedication saying that Billyeu "lost his life fighting for industrial liberty."

It was made plain today by the scope of the funeral services and the crowd which attended it that Ganis is to be regarded as a martyr. At the grave there were several speakers. Mrs. Agnes Burns Wicks of Belleville pledged the women's auxiliary to continue "the fight" and declared that "Ganis has not died in vain."

The president of the Progressive miners, Claude Pearcy of Gillespie, declared that the dead miner had "fallen in the battle for civil rights."

The Peabody Coal company intends resuming operations in two of its mines tomorrow under guard of the troops. Picket lines have been established and only workers are allowed within half a mile of the operating pits, at Hewittville and Langleyville.

GIRL KIDNAPED FROM ESCORT BY GANG AND RAPED

A 20 year old girl was kidnaped from her escort on the south side early this morning, raped by one of four bandits, and then thrown out of their car. She lives in the 7000 block on South Lincoln street and is a clerk in a loop store. She was taken to the Auburn Park hospital.

The girl was sitting in the automobile of Edwin Jones, 27 years old, of 8236 South Racine avenue, a draftsman, at 84th street and Winchester avenue when the four hoodlums drove alongside. They forced Jones to hand over $19 and to remove his outer clothing. They took the clothing and left him standing in the street. Then they dragged the girl into their car. One of the men drove away in Jones' car.

At 90th and Wallace streets one of the hoodlums raped the girl. She was found by a motorist and taken to the hospital. Jones was also picked up by a motorist and taken home.

tions in return. It was said at the legation tonight that for the present no further steps will be taken with regard to Insull, indicating that any action here will depend on new instructions from the state department and that in the meantime Insull will have the same status as any American citizen living in Athens.

This situation may remain until 30 days after the date of Insull's arrival here when he must renew his visa or obtain special permission to take up his residence in Athens. The question then will arise whether the Greek government will recognize the document which, it was understood at the legation, the American government considers as nullified.

EXPECT WARRANT SOON

State's Attorney Swanson's assistants expressed confidence yesterday that a presidential warrant for the extradition of Samuel Insull from Greece will be obtained in a few days and that their colleagues, Charles A. Bellows and Andrew J. Vlachos, who are now in Washington, would be on their way to Athens this week.

The assistant prosecutors are awaiting the arrival of complete documentary evidence necessary to get a presidential warrant from the state department. John O'Hora, a member of the Insull staff, said yesterday that Oliver E. McCormick, treasurer of Middle West Utilities company, who has been out of town, would return tomorrow, and that the necessary depositions would be taken from him and Washington Flexner, president of the Lincoln Printing company.

Abstracts Middle West Funds.

These depositions, covering the testimony given by the men before the grand jury, will relate in detail how Martin J. Insull abstracted funds from Middle West Utilities, with the written approval of his brother, Samuel, to protect private brokerage accounts.

It was largely on the testimony of these men that the Insull brothers were indicted Oct. 4 on charges of embezzlement, larceny and larceny by bailee.

The depositions will be sent by air mail to Bellows and Vlachos in Washington. As soon as they obtain the necessary warrant they will proceed immediately to Athens for the Insull extradition fight, O'Hora said.

Subpoenas duces tecum will be served today upon the Northern Trust company, the Central Republic Bank and Trust company and other loop banks with which the Insull corporations had dealings, calling for all records of Insull transactions, and from these Prosecutor Swanson hopes to obtain additional indictments against the Insulls and "favored persons" not yet accused.

The prosecutor has obtained information that various Insull officials and business associates of the fallen utilities magnate were permitted to use funds of the Mississippi Valley Utilities Investment company for the private purchase of stocks. When the market price of these stocks declined the losses were charged to "special accounts" of the company, Mr. Swanson said.

Just what amounts were involved are not yet known, but the bank records will reveal this information before the grand jury during the week.

On Favored List.

Among the favorites involved in the stock purchasing deals are Marshall E. Sampsell, F. E. Kreusi, A. L. Peterson, G. E. Peterson, Oliver E. McCormick, E. A. Davis and G. W. Hamilton, all officials of Insull companies; James L. Martin, a member of the former brokerage firm of Pynchon & Co., W. H. Barker, a member of another brokerage firm, and A. C. Coulter, whose identity has not been learned.

While the state prosecutors, who declare they have "merely scratched the surface," are carrying on their investigation of the two billion dollar utilities crash, ten expert accountants of the United States bureau of investigation are at work preparing what they term "an investigative audit."

Although the government officials will not discuss their case until it is shown conclusively that they have one, it is known that United States District Attorney Dwight H. Green is centering his investigation on the development of a mail fraud case.

SCHACHT CLAIMS FIGHT FOR EQUALITY PROVES REICH IS AWAKENING

BERLIN, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Hjalmar Schacht, former president of the Reichsbank, inaugurated an international forum today with an address declaring Germany was awakening as manifested by her insistence upon equality and her fight against the "war guilt lie."

Speaking on "Germany's regeneration," Schacht said Germany's attempt to revise the Versailles treaty was not due to material factors nor rancor over defeat in the world war, but to the fact that Germany's honor had been trod upon.

The Rev. E. E. Turner, pastor of the American church, where the forum was held, introduced Col. Herwarth von Bittenfeld, former German military attaché at Washington, D. C., as the permanent chairman of continental Europe's first international forum patterned on American lines.

Stylishly Garbed Woman Wields Gun in Robbery

A young woman, stylishly dressed and wielding a gun, and her man companion alighted from an automobile at 103d street and Prospect avenue late last night and held up and robbed Mrs. Helen Lang, 10559 Prospect avenue, of her purse, containing $9, a fox fur valued at $200, and a diamond ring valued at $75. Mrs. Lang was returning home from a theater. The pair fled in their automobile.

BRITISH URGED TO SPEND MONEY BY ECONOMISTS

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Oct. 16.—The public must spend its money. To restore national prosperity and increase employment there must be an end to private economy. This, in in effect, is the verdict of six leading British economists, who, in letters to the London Times tonight, indicate they have ceased preaching economy and have become spendthrifts. They are Prof. David H. MacGregor of Oxford, Prof. Arthur C. Pigou of Cambridge, J. M. Keynes, Sir Walter Layton, Sir Arthur Salter and Sir Josiah Stamp.

Urging abandonment of that form of wartime economy, which had as its purpose the freeing of man power, machine power and shipping power for service of state, they declare:

"Some people doubtless are stinting their consumption because their incomes are diminished and they cannot spend as much as usual, others because their incomes are expected to diminish and they dare not to do so. What it is in any individual's private interest to do and what weight he ought to assign to that private interest against public interest when the two conflict, is not for us to judge. But one thing is, in our opinion, clear. The public interest in the present condition does not point to private economy. To spend less money than we should like to do isn't patriotic."

Girl Ends Life by Poison After Row with Brother

An argument with her brother over the fact that he had no clean shirts caused Eleanor Benedict, 16 years old, 4334 North Monticello avenue, to swallow poison yesterday which caused her death a few hours later. Her brother, William, 23 years old, told police that he had upbraided her and the tragedy followed. The girl had been doing the housework for the family. Her mother is an invalid and her father, Frank Benedict, a city teamster, was killed in a runaway on April 1.

DENTIST SHOOTS HUNTER IN ROW OVER DEAD COOT

Assailant Jailed; Bail Is Fixed at $15,000.

A quarrel over possession of a mudhen yesterday on Fourth lake, in Lake county, led to the shooting of John E. Kabel, 28 years old, an Evanston city fireman, living at 2102 Wesley avenue, in the suburb.

Kabel's condition is serious and State's Attorney A. V. Smith had Dr. Anton P. Lombardo, 38 years old, 729 West Grand avenue, a dentist, who shot him, placed in the county jail at Waukegan under $15,000 bonds on a charge of assault with intent to commit murder.

Kabel was shooting from a boat on Fourth lake, which is 15 miles west of Waukegan, with Cyril Poole, 3018 Swing avenue, Niles Center. According to Poole's story, Kabel shot the coot and rowed over and picked it up, when Dr. Lombardo, who was hunting with his wife, Agnes, called from another boat about 75 feet away and claimed the bird.

Dentist Shoots Hunter.

Dr. Lombardo started to row toward Kabel and Poole, and when Kabel started to row away from the spot where he had picked up the bird, Poole charged, the dentist raised his shotgun and fired at Kabel. Kabel slumped in the bottom of the boat, wounded in the arms, legs, and abdomen.

Poole charged that Dr. Lombardo then called to Kabel: "Give me that bird or I'll shoot again."

Dr. Lombardo admitted the shooting, but asserted that it was accidental.

"My wife shot the mudhen," he told State's Attorney Smith. "When Kabel rowed over and picked it up I warned him to leave it alone. I raised my gun, intending to bluff him, but somehow it went off."

Kabel was taken to St. Therese's hospital in Waukegan. Dr. Lombardo was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Harold J. Tallett in North Chicago. State's Attorney Smith refused a plea to reduce the charge against the dentist, stating that several other hunters who had been on the lake had testified that Dr. Lombardo fired deliberately. Justice Tallett set a hearing on the charge for Oct. 27 and sent Dr. Lombardo to jail when he was unable to furnish the bail demanded.

Other Hunters Wounded.

Several other minor accidents occurred yesterday as hundreds of hunters descended upon the lakes and swamps in the Chicago area for the first day of the duck hunting season. Another hunter on Fourth lake, where Kabel was shot, was struck in the neck by a shotgun pellet, but "didn't seem to mind it," witnesses said.

James Bampballo, 2435 Lexington street, was given first aid at the Cordell hospital in Libertyville for a wound on his face caused by two shots which struck him as he was hunting on Fox lake.

Samuel Sabatka, who lives west of North Chicago, complained to Sheriff Laster Tiffany at Waukegan that a hunter seeking ducks in a slough near his home had fired a charge through his kitchen window, narrowly missing himself and his wife as they sat at breakfast.

U. S. DRY AGENT, AID OF SHERIFF SLAIN IN FIGHT

Die in Pistol Battle in Cabin.

Russellville, Ky., Oct. 16.—(AP)—A pistol fight in a Negro cabin used by federal prohibition officers as a corral for prisoners brought death late last night to Frank A. Mather, 49, prohibition agent, and Bluch Soyars, 47, special Logan county deputy sheriff.

Police Chief C. H. Saunders of Russellville led a party of city and county officers to the cabin when told there was a disturbance there. Finding several white men and Negroes in the cabin, the officers ordered them not to leave pending investigation.

Mather started toward the door and was ordered by Soyars to halt. Both men pulled pistols and exchanged shots. Soyars fell with two bullet wounds and died an hour later. Mather fell with one bullet in the chest, and died this morning.

Not Informed, Officers Say.

County Attorney John A. Whittaker, after a preliminary investigation in County court today, said the local officers testified they did not know the federal agents were using the cabin as a base of operations, or were raiding in the county.

William M. Woodruff, prohibition administrator of the Sixth district, with offices in Cincinnati, said reports to him were that "our men had properly identified themselves to the local officers at Russellville." He said the matter would be thoroughly investigated "to determine wherein the responsibility lies."

Eight Prisoners Scatter.

There were eight prisoners, arrested during raids conducted while the Logan county fair was in progress last week-end, and four federal men in the cabin at the time. The prisoners, which included two white men, one Negro woman, and five Negro men, scattered after the shooting, but the officers had previously taken their names and expected to round them up without difficulty.

Jewelry, Gift of Czar, Stolen from Chicagoan

Fifty years ago Czar Alexander III. of Russia presented a watch and an engraved pendant to Marie Bielaiusoss as a token of his friendship. George Broide, 1044 Sheridan road, has asked the Summerdale police to search for the watch, pendant, and other jewels, which were stolen from his home Oct. 13. The watch is a family heirloom passed on to his wife, Fritsi, from her grandmother, who received it from the czar.

EINSTEIN ADDS 7 BILLION YEARS TO EARTH'S AGE

Scientist Upsets Previous Theory in Findings.

BERLIN, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Dr. Albert Einstein, the eminent German scientist, presented observations today which may indicate that the earth is several billion years older than scientists generally heretofore have calculated.

Lecturing on "The Conception of Space," Dr. Einstein described the universe in a state of expansion which possibly had been progressing for some ten billion years. Asserting that the calculation at present could not be proved, Dr. Einstein said, however, that the birthday of the earth might be linked up with the beginning of this expansion period.

[The latest calculations of reliable scientific authorities placed the age of the earth at about three billion years. Dr. Einstein's computation thus might add seven billion years to this.]

Cites American's Observations.

Dr. Einstein cited the recent observations of prominent astronomers, particularly the work of Dr. Edwin P. Hubble of Mount Wilson, Cal., observatory. Dr. Hubble is distinguished chiefly for his study of the nebulae and the "red shift" in space.

The German scientist explained that these observations indicated there were thousands of spiral nebulae in space speeding apart at a velocity up to 20,000 kilometers [about 12,500 miles] per second.

The author of the theory of relativity said his theory aided in the understanding of the process of expansion in the spiral nebulae, but asserted that the limits of the universe could not yet be indicated from such computations. He emphasized that physical happenings determined what was space.

The newspaper Montag Morgen announced today that Dr. Einstein will in the future divide each year evenly between the United States and Germany as a result of correspondence between the Prussian ministry of culture and the professor, who offered to resign his German connections in view of the fact that his work will carry him to the United States hereafter during many months of the year.

HOW AGE IS CALCULATED.

Generally of late scientists have been calculating the age of the world on three bases. One is upon the age of radioactive rock. This is made possible because of the fact that radium in such rock disintegrates into lead at a clocklike rate. Thus the age of such rock can be definitely determined almost within the period of a month of its origin.

A second calculable source is the amount of soluble rock, that is salts of various kinds, in the ocean, on the strength of the fact that it is possible to determine the rate of solution of such rock.

The third method is by measuring and computing the formations of the earth's crust as far down as it has been examined.

A cooperative group of scientists of Yale university, the national research council and other educational institutions, has just recently offered the three billion year computation of the age of the earth.

Their efforts dovetailed when applied to all three methods, indicating an approximation of correctness in the calculation that the earth is about three billion years old.

ANN HARDING.

RICHARD BENNETT.

$1,166 Is Asked

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 16.—[Special.]—Richard Bennett, Ann Harding, and Gwen Lee, all of the films, were named defendants in lawsuits recorded here yesterday by asserted creditors.

Judgment for $630 said to be still owing on an $830 dentist bill was requested against Bennett by Dr. George W. Connell of New York.

The Los Angeles court was asked to compel Ann Harding to pay $63 for two rooms assertedly occupied by her in the Warwick hotel, New York, together with $92.78 additional expense to which the hotel says it was placed in charges incurred by the actress and money she borrowed from the hotel.

Gwen Lee was sued for $411, claimed by the New York Cloak and Suit house.

Fired on by Gang at Door of His Home, He Charges

Mike Dooman, minor hoodlum in the 42d ward, reported to police yesterday that he had been called to the door of his home at 752 North Dearborn street and fired on by three men sitting in an automobile at the curb. Dooman charged to Lieut. George DeMar at the Chicago avenue station that Thomas Brennan, a Democratic precinct captain in the ward, and Edward Sturch, a worker for Brennan, were the men who called him to the door and were apparently companions of the three men who fired the shots. Brennan, arrested, denied the charge. Dooman asserted that he was a Republican precinct captain in the ward, working under Assistant State's Attorney Harry Busch, but Busch denied this.

PLANE CRASHES FROM 1,500 FEET; 2 FLYERS HURT

Passing Motorists Witness Crash.

Two aviators were hurt seriously yesterday afternoon when their plane got out of control at an altitude of 1,500 feet and crashed in a field near the intersection of Higgins and Mount Prospect roads, near Elk Grove. The injured flyers, Richard Van Eden, 7615 Washington boulevard, River Forest, and Albert Edwards, 601½ Lake street, Maywood, were taken to the Des Plaines hospital. Both are expected to recover.

The flyers took off from the Ravenswood airport, Mount Prospect road and Touhy avenue early in the afternoon. Van Eden, a youth of 21, who has a transport pilot's license, occupied the front cockpit and Edwards, who is 38 years old and has a student pilot's permit, was in the rear seat.

Dual Control in Plane.

The plane, which was an American Eagle powered with a Curtis O X 5 engine, could be controlled from either cockpit. It was partly owned by Edwards and was licensed, airport attendants said.

The plane had been cruising for about 25 minutes and was at an altitude of about 1,500 feet, witnesses said, when it went into a tail spin and crashed in view of many passing motorists. The machine plowed deep into the soft earth but did not catch on fire. Van Eden who was an experienced pilot evidently had shut off the motor when the crash appeared imminent, thus preventing the wreckage from taking fire, airport attendants said.

Van Eden's injuries consisted of a broken leg, broken ribs, numerous cuts and a possible fracture of the skull. Edwards had lacerations but no broken bones. Both suffered severe shock.

Begin an Investigation.

O. M. Young of the department of commerce aeronautic bureau began an investigation but was unable to determine the cause of the crash. He said he would question the victims later.

Les Frye, chief flying instructor at the Ravenswood field, said that he did not believe the plane was mechanically defective. He was watching it at the time it fell.

Two theories in explanation of the crash were advanced unofficially. It was thought that Van Eden, demonstrating a maneuver to Edwards, might have purposely put the plane into a spin and then failed to bring it out. It was also suggested that Edwards might have "frozen" to the controls.

GUNMEN WRECK TRUCK OF MILK BOUND FOR CITY

Kidnap Driver, Run His Load Into Ditch.

Three armed men yesterday seized a truck owned by the Crescent Dairy company, 515 North Crawford avenue, and drove it over a retaining wall at Lake street and North avenue, near Elmhurst, spilling approximately 8,000 pounds of milk and damaging the truck. The act is believed to have been prompted by a price dispute among factions of dairymen in the Chicago area.

The truck was seized at 9 o'clock in the morning from Stanley Zientarski, the driver. As he was passing the grounds of the Medinah Country club, on Lake street, near Bloomingdale, the three gunmen, riding in a sedan, forced him to the side of the road.

Gunman Takes Truck's Wheel.

One of the gunmen climbed to the driver's seat of the truck while the other two covered Zientarski with pistols and forced him to lie face downward in the rear of the sedan.

The truck was then driven eastward in Lake street, with the sedan following, until the new grade separation under construction at North avenue was reached. There the driver of the truck checked his speed, headed the truck toward the edge of the retaining wall and jumped out. The truck plunged over the wall, dropped about 18 feet and rolled over. The 100 cans of milk it contained were flung out and their contents flew in all directions.

Zientarski Put Out of Car.

The man who had been driving the truck then joined his companions in the sedan and they proceeded east in Lake street to the outskirts of Bellwood. Zientarski was put out of the car at the edge of a prairie. He was told to start walking and not to look back.

When Zientarski told his story to the Elmhurst police, he described his kidnapers as two well dressed men and a third man attired in a rough leather jacket. They spoke French when conversing with one another he said. Zientarski said that he had picked up the load of milk at Union, 20 miles northwest of Elgin, and was bringing it to Chicago.

Mystery to Dairy President.

Robert Hirah of 518 May street, Gary, president of the Crescent Dairy company, said that he did not buy his supplies through the Pure Milk association, an agency which handles the marketing of milk for 19,000 dairymen in the Chicago area. He said that he had not received any threats and had no idea who wrecked his truck.

Found Slain in Cemetery, a Pistol in His Hand

The body of an unidentified man, a bullet through the head, was found in Calvary cemetery last night. In the right hand was a small pistol. The man was about 55 years old, 5 feet 8 inches tall, and weighed about 190 pounds. He wore a blue suit, bearing the label of A Nash, a tailor in Cincinnati.

G. O. P. PRAYS FOR MIRACLE TO WIN OHIO FOR HOOVER

Discontent Turns State to Roosevelt.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Columbus, O., Oct. 16.—[Special.]—All the signs in the manual of political soothsaying point to a thumping Roosevelt victory in Ohio on Nov. 8.

Virtually all of the Republican leaders themselves have given up hope of carrying the state for Mr. Hoover in the absence of some miracle to turn the tide. Whether the President's speech last night at Cleveland is to be regarded as such a miracle they are not quite sure.

The vigorous presentation of the Republican cause by the President and the enthusiasm of the reception accorded him have pepped up the Republican organization. Charles J. Lewis, Republican campaign manager, was deluged with telephone calls today from all parts of the state reporting the most favorable reaction to the speech. That it has made votes for Hoover was the burden of the messages, strengthening Mr. Lewis' confidence that the President will carry Ohio after all.

Mr. Lewis, however, is one of the few Republican leaders who retain any faith in the power of the spoken word to do what King Canute could not, as one of them put it.

Claim 300,000 for Roosevelt.

Henry G. Brunner, the Democratic state chairman, is predicting a Roosevelt plurality of upwards of 300,000. He regards that as an extremely conservative estimate, inasmuch as the numerous state-wide straw votes indicate that the Democratic candidate will win the state by not less than 500,000. Here are the results of the various Ohio polls up to date:

	Hoover.	Roosevelt.
Literary Digest	65,040	99,906
Cincinnati Enquirer	6,872	14,463
Cleveland Plain Dealer	2,736	4,287
Columbus Dispatch	13,260	26,579
Scripps-Howard Ohio papers	16,094	35,187

The Cincinnati Enquirer and the Columbus Dispatch have the reputation of infallibility in their political polls, reaching back over a quarter of a century.

That Mr. Hoover could possibly lose a normally Republican state which gave him an 800,000 plurality four years ago was regarded by the Republican leaders at the beginning of the campaign as beggaring the credulity of even that type of intelligence that is equal to believing seven impossible things before breakfast. And if Roosevelt should carry Ohio on a landslide scale the overturn would go down in history as a political phenomenon of the first water.

1928 Vote Abnormal.

Of course the explanation is not so far to seek, as you might think. Hoover's vote in 1928 in this state was swollen by hundreds of thousands of men and women who were voting not the pope. Ohio is one of the most bigoted states in the Union.

A more nearly normal Republican margin was Coolidge's 340,000 majority over Davis and La Follette combined in 1924 and Harding's home state plurality of 400,000 in 1920. Except in 1912, when the Republicans were split, Ohio has gone Democratic only once—in 1916—when its electoral vote gave Wilson his reelection. Wilson's Ohio plurality was 90,000.

The extent of Democratic sentiment in this old time Republican state coincides pretty accurately with the extent of the distress created by the depression. The hundreds of thousands of Republicans who are going Democratic in this election are not so much for Roosevelt as against Hoover, the symbol of the party in power which is responsible in their eyes for their present afflictions.

Steel Districts in Turmoil.

If there is more of a political upheaval in this state than in many others it is because Ohio is more of an industrial state and consequently has more factories shut down and more workers out of work who are going to vote for a change in parties in the hope of changing their luck.

The desperation of the unemployed in the great steel producing communities along Lake Erie is an outstanding political factor. In Youngstown, for example, only 15 per cent of the community is employed and 15,000 persons are being fed daily in the soup houses.

The Republican managers, eager to capitalize any evidence of an upturn in industry, blazoned forth an announcement that the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company had taken on 2,000 more workmen in one of its plants. Not long afterward, however, the Democrats came back at their rivals with the assertion that the company had let out 3,000 men in another plant.

Farmers Also Sullen.

The farmers almost everywhere are described as being in a mood as sullen as the urban unemployed. Bountiful crops selling at starvation prices is the general complaint in the rural regions. One hears of wool growers losing faith in the protective tariff, of wheat growers down on Hoover because of the farm board experiment, of farmers disgruntled over 3½ cent hog prices that dropped even lower after the Des Moines speech. Dairy farmers are up in arms against the milk trust that pays them from 1½ to 3 cents a quart for milk and sells it at 10 cents.

Just as the depression has disaffected agricultural districts that ordinarily are overwhelmingly Republican, the prohibition issue on top of unemployment has disaffected normally Republican cities that are overwhelmingly wet.

The Democratic platform advocating unqualified repeal of prohibition and the immediate restoration of beer and light wines has simply played havoc with the Republicans in the heavily Republican city of Cincinnati. There is no community more opposed to prohibition than Cincinnati. It was against prohibition to begin with and has been unswervingly for repeal ever since. The straddle plank of the Republican platform and even Mr. Hoover's further concessions to the wets in his acceptance speech were coldly received in Cincinnati.

Beer Promises Reap Votes.

On the other hand, the Democratic platform took this old time beer drinking city with its large Germanic population by storm. What captured the Cincinnati burghers particularly was the Democratic promise of beer by next spring, a matter on which the Republican platform and Mr. Hoover are silent. So many Republican leaders became lukewarm to the Hoover ticket because of dissatisfaction with the party stand on prohibition that the Republican organization broke down and has not been repaired yet.

The Enquirer poll indicates that Roosevelt will carry Hamilton county [Cincinnati] by from 40,000 to 50,000. How tremendous a turnover this would be is indicated by the fact that when Wilson carried Ohio in 1916 Hughes carried Hamilton county by 10,000.

Normally Republican Cleveland also shows signs of tottering. A preliminary canvass made by the Republican organization indicated that Roosevelt would carry Cuyahoga county [Cleveland] by about 100,000. The organization has been crippled by the enforced withdrawal of its leader, Maurice Maschke, who is being tried for alleged complicity in local tax frauds. Carmi Thompson is temporarily in command.

State Organization Split.

Nor is the Republican state organization hitting on all cylinders. Postmaster General Brown, the new national committeeman for Ohio, dictated the direction of the Hoover campaign to Mr. Lewis, thus sidetracking State Chairman E. D. Schorr, who had 30 of the 44 state central committeemen behind him. Mr. Brown forced acceptance of this arrangement by threatening to place the Hoover campaign in the hands of a wholly separate organization, a Hoover-Curtis club, as has just been done in Indiana.

The indications are that Senator Bulkley, Democrat, who came out for repeal two years before his party, will defeat his Republican rival, Attorney General Gilbert Bettman, who was for repeal at first but later switched to support of the Republican platform. The wet organizations came out against Bettman.

A close contest is that for the governorship between David S. Ingalls, Republican, and Gov. George White, Democrat. Both are standing on their party platforms and the wet organizations pronounce both satisfactory.

Smith Democrats Appeased.

The famous handshake between the "brown derby" and the "old potato" has gone far to allay any lingering antipathy of the Al Smith Democrats to Roosevelt.

On the other hand, fresh evidence of Republican schism appears almost daily. The latest is the declaration of Congressman Charles Brand, Republican, for Roosevelt. He says the G. O. P. has failed the farmers and deserves defeat and reorganization. The Republican committee says Brand was denied a renomination and is sore. The congressman says he is retiring voluntarily.

ENDS HIS LIFE IN GARAGE.

George H. Sode, 45 years old, 6911 South Washtenaw avenue, shot and killed himself yesterday in the garage in the back of his home. Police were told he had been depressed over illness.

READY TO BET FARM ON ROOSEVELT; SAYS HE CAN'T FIND TAKER

Atlanta, Mo., Oct. 16.—[Special.]—Clarence G. Sagaser, editor and publisher of the Atlanta Express, is a devout Jeffersonian. Witness this page 1 notice in his latest weekly issue:

"The offer to bet a 300 acre farm on Roosevelt for President, which ran in the Express three weeks ago, has been copied and reproduced in practically all city newspapers in the United States.

C. G. SAGASER.

"We have received letters from the four corners of America—some of them from Democrats, some from Republicans. All the writers were delighted to know we had that much confidence in Roosevelt.

"But we did not receive one single acceptance to our challenge!

"So we have about given up hope. We do not believe there is any Hoover money in the United States—at least, not in the middle west. So we are addressing this challenge especially to the east. We will bet our $6,000 Missouri farm on Roosevelt, giving odds of 2 to 1. This farm should be well worth $6,000. It has two sets of improvements. It sold for $30,000 under the Wilson administration. We'll wager it on a basis of 3 to 1 on a $6,000 valuation.

NINE STATES TO VOTE ON DRY LAW NEXT NOVEMBER 8

[Copyright: 1932: By the Associated Press.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 16.—(AP)—American voters will be called upon next month to approve or reject some 150 state constitutional amendments, referenda, or initiative measures, including proposals to repeal prohibition enforcement acts in seven commonwealths.

Already confronted with an unparalleled roster of candidates for national and state offices, the millions who will register their choices at the ballot box on Nov. 8 will be required at the same time to mark as high as 20 constitutional amendments—in California—and from one to seventeen in a score of other states. Louisianans will vote on 17, the second highest number.

These facts were shown today in a survey by the Associated Press. Nine states will have prohibition proposals on their ballots. All but two of these present the question, "Shall the state enforcement act be repealed?"

The seven states to vote on prohibition enforcement repeal are California, Colorado, Louisiana, Michigan, New Jersey, North Dakota, and Washington.

Connecticut will present this question: Whether the general assembly shall petition congress to propose repeal of the 18th amendment to the states.

Voters in Wyoming will check a legislative referendum, "Shall the 18th amendment be repealed?"

Her Watchful Dog Saves Woman from Drowning

Bloomington, Ill., Oct. 16.—(AP)—Mrs. Samuel Rush, 34, of Normal, today owed her life to her watchful police dog. Walking across the top of a 30 foot wall, she fell in when the board covering gave way. The dog, chained nearby, barked and strained at his chain until neighbors arrived. She clung to the brick sides of the wall for fifteen minutes to keep from drowning in eight feet of water.

G. O. P. HITS BACK AT DEMOCRATIC VICTORY CLAIMS

Their Predictions Usually Wrong, Sanders Says.

Predictions of a Democratic landslide three weeks from tomorrow were answered formally yesterday by Everett Sanders, chairman of the Republican national committee, from the national headquarters at the Palmer house. His reply was directed chiefly to James A. Farley, the Democratic chairman.

"One of the best signs that President Hoover is certain of reelection," said the Republican leader, "is the enthusiastic forecast of victory for Gov. Roosevelt by the chairman of the Democratic national committee. The record shows that the Democratic claims in national campaigns are about 99 per cent wrong."

Chairman Sanders also asserted emphatically that President Hoover is gaining ground rapidly.

"Every time President Hoover speaks," Mr. Sanders said, "he gains millions of votes."

Democratic Forecasts Analyzed.

The Sanders statement went into an analysis of Democratic forecasts in previous presidential years.

"The most ardent and extravagant prognosticator in 1920," the statement said, "was Franklin D. Roosevelt, then the Democratic vice presidential nominee. In interviews scattered all the way from Maine to Oregon he predicted a Democratic landslide. That was in September and October.

"That year, in November, the Democrats carried only eleven states, ten of which were in the solid south, while the eleventh was Kentucky. Not a single state in the east, middle west or far west, representing the areas to which Mr. Roosevelt devoted himself in a speaking tour, was carried by the Democratic ticket.

1924 Prediction Recalled.

"In 1924 the chairman of the Democratic national committee asserted it was 'absolutely impossible' for President Coolidge to be elected in view of the manner in which the La Follette third party ticket would draw from him. He gave definite and detailed figures to support his contention. On election day Mr. Coolidge had a margin of 264 electoral votes and in the popular vote a margin of over seven million votes.

"In 1928 the Democratic election claimers started their forecasts early with their chairman in the rôle of chief prophet. As early as Sept. 18 he insisted that the Democratic nominee would receive 309 electoral votes and that Mr. Hoover was certain of losing Indiana and Illinois.

"On Oct. 21 a Democratic statement assured the world that New York City would give the Democratic nominee 600,000 plurality and Edward N. Hurley, on the same day, 'delivered' Illinois to Smith."

"G. O. P. Gets the Votes."

The statement listed other landslide claims of 1928 and then said:

"Well, the election day count was 87 electoral votes for the Democratic candidate [Smith] and 444 for President Hoover with a popular vote plurality of over six million votes for Mr. Hoover.

"Let the Democrats make the claims as long as the Republicans get the votes."

Chairman Sanders' headquarters also made public a reply to another Democratic campaign utterance. It gave out a letter from John R. Stevenson of the Chicago district council of carpenters to Daniel J. Tobin, chief of the Democratic labor bureau, denying charges in a pamphlet bearing Tobin's name.

The pamphlet contained an allegation that the Hoover administration has ignored the prevailing rate of wage law in the construction of the new nurses' home at the Hines hospital and elsewhere. Stevenson said that an attempt to evade the law was discovered, that thereupon the contract was canceled and that the work is being completed by the bonding company.

ROOSEVELT TO GIVE HIS BONUS PAYMENT VIEWS WEDNESDAY

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 16.—[Special.]—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt returned to the capital tonight after having spent a week-end at his Hyde Park home working on the speeches he will deliver during his trip through the south and midwest lands.

The Democratic presidential nominee's second campaign trip begins Tuesday and he will swing through New York state, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia, North Carolina, Virginia, Maryland, and then back to New York and Albany.

The governor will speak on the bonus at Pittsburgh on Wednesday. He is expected to oppose immediate cash payment of the bonus, but will offer a plan to give relief to all destitute war veterans.

The governor announced today that on Oct. 27 he will hold a meeting with Lieut. Gov. Lehman, Budget Director Mark Graves, the leaders of both houses of the assembly and officers of the temporary emergency relief association, to determine whether a special session of the legislature will be necessary to cope with relief needs in the coming winter. If a session is called, the governor said, it will be held on Nov. 14.

ELECTION BOARD ERASES 15,395 NAMES IN CITY

The names of 15,395 voters were erased from the registration books of Chicago by the board of election commissioners after revision last night, leaving 1,499,147 persons eligible to vote, of which 851,920 are men and 647,227 are women.

The board also erased 412 names from the registration books of Chicago Heights, Berwyn, Cicero, Summit, Evergreen Park and Stickney, which are also under their jurisdiction, leaving 67,876 eligible voters in these communities. The total registration of Chicago and these communities is now 1,567,023.

The registration for the country towns outside the jurisdiction of the Chicago election board, as announced Saturday by County Clerk Sweitzer is 218,789, making the total for the county 1,785,812.

Record in New York.

New York, Oct. 16.—[Special.]—Registration in the city for the November election totaled 2,334,131, breaking by 305,000 the record of 2,029,618 set in 1928.

The registration yesterday, the last day for qualifying to vote in November, was so heavy that a number of registration booths did not close until well after midnight, and final figures for the city were not available until today.

CENTRAL STATES TRIP AGAIN THIS WEEK FOR HOOVER

Detroit One of Cities on Tentative Program.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 16.—[Special.]—Another swing into the central states was being planned by President Hoover today as part of the personal speaking campaign which Republican leaders count on to write a 1932 edition of the winning of the west.

The President will follow up his first midwestern speech at Des Moines and his second last night at Cleveland with a third to be made, according to present plans, not later than the end of the week.

Detroit, Indianapolis, Minneapolis, and Kansas City are all under consideration as possible sites for the speech's delivery.

Previous predictions called for the President's appearance in more than one, perhaps all four of these cities, but the present program contemplates a single appearance. Like yesterday's trip across Maryland, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, and Ohio, the journey will be broken by numerous halts and brief addresses from the train platform.

Following the western trip will be one to New York, Boston, or some point in New Jersey, with New York at present getting the edge on being the final choice.

Heartened by Cleveland Trip.

The President returned this morning from Cleveland "heartened and encouraged" by the greetings accorded his speech last night and the brief speeches which he made at a half score places on the westward journey.

"Heartened and encouraged" were the words the President himself used in replying to the demonstrations along the route and those words still held good in his campaign managers' summing up the political results of the trip today.

Counting the 30,000 persons estimated to have listened to the Cleveland address, the 25,000 to 30,000 persons who gathered to greet the Hoover train at Akron, and the other crowds along the way, numbering from 1,500 to 10,000, it was estimated that the President had made a personal contact with some 100,000 citizens during yesterday's trip.

It was on the brief stopover showings that Mr. Hoover's political associates were inclined to place the greater emphasis.

Audience Partisan.

The audience that packed the Cleveland auditorium to hear the evening's formal address was a partisan gathering. The applause that greeted the President's attack on Gov. Roosevelt, Speaker Garner, and the Democratic party was Republican applause. The heartiest laughter over the President's description of Democratic ignorance of world causes of the depression came from loyal party workers.

The approval of the President's insistence on a tariff for protection came from citizens of McKinley's state and Mark Hanna's home town. The cheers that followed the President's denunciation of the Democratic charge that he employed coolie labor in preference to skilled labor back in his mining days came from those with opinions.

The back platform appearances en route, on the other hand, were before crowds recruited from communities where industry and mining provide the chief source of livelihood. They were in a region hit hard by the depression, and it was no secret that the President's friends would have been satisfied merely with an absence of hostility.

The size of the crowds and friendly receptions they gave Mr. Hoover were being noted down in the campaign account books, therefore, as distinctly on the credit side of the ledger.

In Ohio, Mr. Hoover by no means found Republican confidence. But the tale he heard was that from a situation distinctly unfavorable to Republican chances a new and favorable sentiment had sprung up as the result of his Des Moines speech. State leaders were hopeful if not confident that with the help of the Cleveland speech that sentiment would grow sufficiently by Nov. 8 to put Ohio into the Republican column.

President Hoover's Speech at Cleveland Brings Praise

Following President Hoover's speech at Cleveland Saturday night, Republican national headquarters in Chicago received a large number of messages of commendation from widely scattered parts of the country, several of which it made public.

Extracts from some of the messages follow:

HARRY LESLIE, governor of Indiana—The President talked in a way that folks could understand. It was one of the most forceful expositions of the affairs of our nation that I have ever heard.

In a Fighting Mood.

HENRY KIEL, nominee for senator from Missouri—The thing I liked best about him last night was that he was in a fighting mood. I think a lot of the fellows who have been abusing President Hoover believed that if they struck him on one cheek they could take a swing at the other one. They found a different sort of a man last night. The President was the man using his fist.

DANIEL WILLARD, president of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad—He discussed the labor question in a thorough and complete way and his ideas as expressed on it meet with my full approval as a large employer of capital.

"Every Question Answered."

MRS. CARRIE CHAPMAN CATT, suffrage leader—With the speeches he has now made, President Hoover has squarely faced and answered every question, every point, that the voters could ask.

WILLIAM L. HUTCHESON, president of the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners—It is to his everlasting credit that one so powerfully eloquent could and did stand mute through so many weary months of calumny and abuse lest by venting the indignation that must have been his, he make a bad matter worse. Now that the common weal not only permits him to speak but demands that he speak, he reveals to the American people the real character of the patient, hard working man they will vote to keep in the White House.

NATIVE WHITES LEAD IN RADIO OWNERSHIP IN U. S.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 16.—(AP)—Back in 1930, when the last census was taken, exactly 12,043,752 families in the United States had a radio.

They constituted 40.3 per cent of the country's nearly 30 million families. The census bureau published today an analysis showing that native whites led in radio ownership, with 44.4 per cent; foreign-born whites followed close with 43.6 per cent, while only 7.5 per cent of Negro families could boast a set.

Urban families had the edge on country folks, 50 per cent of them being equipped, while only 21 per cent of the farm families had the world brought to them through a loudspeaker.

THOMSON FIRES NEW BLAST AT SWANSON CAMP

Former Judge Charles M. Thomson, chairman of the Country Towns Republican Courtney club, issued a statement yesterday calling the roll of some of the undesirables he says are supporting State's Attorney Swanson. He declared they are "as sorry a crew as ever rigged a political ship."

He gave prominent place on the list to "the two Joes"—Joseph Porcaro, committeeman for the 28th ward, and Joseph R. Orrico, an unsuccessful candidate for committeeman of the 29th ward last April. Thomson charged that both had Capone backing, that Porcaro was on the Swanson pay roll until recently and that Orrico is still an assistant state's attorney.

Other names on the list were those of State Senators Dan Serritella and James B. Leonardo, Peter C. Granata, and three members of the Klenha family in Cicero—Joseph Z. Klenha, his son, Robert Klenha, an assistant under Swanson for four years, and his son-in-law, Frank J. Kriz, former county commissioner, whose duties under Swanson, Thomson charged, are vague.

Two Groups Seeking to Cut Expenses.

learned that a recommendation is bound to come forth for a substantial reduction of salaries all over the state service, but particularly among the higher paid officials.

In no other way, in the opinion of members of the committee, can a suitable reduction of state expenses be effected. The governor has resisted suggestions of a horizontal pay cut among the public employés, partly on the ground that their salaries never were raised during boom times to the heights enjoyed by the employés of private business, and are now no more than on a par with them. The legislative committee has carefully avoided any discussion of pay cuts.

The membership of the state budget advisory committee is made up from leaders of the outstanding commercial and civc groups of the state. Among the members and the organizations they represent are Henry Bruere, New York City, New York State Association of Savings Banks; G. William Magley, Jamaica, L. I., New York State Association of Real Estate Boards; George V. McLaughlin, Brooklyn, Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York; Charles J. Tobin, Albany, New York State Tax association; Merwin K. Hart, Utica, N. Y., New York State Economic council; Arvie Eldred, Albany, New York State Teachers' association; Fred J. Freestone, Interlaken, New York State grange; George H. McCaffrey, New York, Merchants' Association of New York; Mark A. Dady, Buffalo, Associated Industries of New York State, Inc.; John H. Gregory, Rochester, New York State Bankers' association, and R. C. White, Ionia, New York state Farm Bureau federation.

No Program Announced.

Gov. Roosevelt has not, up to now, made public any detailed program of economy. He has conferred almost daily of late with Budget Director Graves, and perhaps a short time after the election on Nov. 8, after the advisory committee has made a report, the governor will publish his economy recommendations.

In a series of weekly discussions over the radio, completed recently, Gov. Roosevelt took up the economic problems of the various state departments and he asked the citizens of the state to write to him what they desired done about the expenditures, whether certain new activities should be abandoned or if they were deemed of such public value as to be continued, even at the cost he outlined. The governor in his talks presented both sides of each question, although in many instances he was thought by his listeners to lean toward a continuance of many new state activities on the ground that they improved the lot of humanity within the state.

In the hearings before the state legislative committee, of which Republican Senator Charles J. Hewitt is chairman, the first department under examination was the department of agriculture and markets, which is not under Roosevelt's control, but is manned by commissioners appointed directly by the legislature. The commissioners are all Republicans.

Palatial Cow Barns.

Summoning Commissioner Charles H. Baldwin, head of the department, the committee counsel, Clayton R. Lusk, a former Republican state senator at once discussed the cost of buildings erected on the grounds adjoining state institutions.

Thus it was brought out that at the Marcy division of the Utica state hospital a cow barn 38 by 176 feet, and a silo 21 by 40 feet, to care for 80 cows, had cost $44,600. Also that at the Harlem valley state hospital a barn for 60 cows, size 38 by 160 feet, with a milk house and silo, had cost $47,266. And that at Letchworth village, an institute for the feeble minded, a cow barn for 144 cows, including silo and hay storage, had been contracted for at $85,000; a calf barn at the same site $30,000, a horse barn $35,000; and a milk house $20,000.

At Central Islip, a state hospital, a high pen with slaughter room and grain storage cost "over $20,000," Commissioner Baldwin brought out.

Then Counsel Lusk asked Commissioner Baldwin what he thought the ordinary kind of cow barn a farmer would build would cost.

"Well," he replied, "a farmer could build a barn for $6,000, a silo for $2,000, making a total of $8,000."

The committee hearing did not bring out plainly just why the state barns cost so much more, so an inquiry made today to Commissioner Baldwin, answered by another commissioner who did not choose to be quoted, brought the following explanation, the other commissioner being also a Republican appointee.

"There is nothing lavish or princely about these barns. They were solidly and permanently built, of concrete and tile instead of pine boards. The foundations were solid, and the construction was of the beam type, adding to the cost of the building. Then, too, they were designed to harmonize with the main institution buildings, which naturally made them cost more than ordinary farmers' barns."

Commissioner Baldwin, under the questioning of Counsel Lusk, said that he had no control over the design or cost of buildings; that this duty was entirely the responsibility of the department of public works, headed by Col. Fred Greene, a Democratic Roosevelt appointee.

Efficiency of Employés.

On the question of general inefficiency among the state employés, the charges presented by Efficiency Expert Everett were in the main not refuted by the Roosevelt appointee. Civil Service Commissioner William Gorham Rice, although he did dispute the practicability of some of the recommendations.

"The state of New York," said the report of Mr. Everett, "has no policy or standards, no common requirement as to service required for the salaries that it pays. It attempts no control.

"All the control that is exercised lies in the varying practices of the several departments. When a name once appears, under proper authorization on a pay roll it can continue there indefinitely even if the employé never reports for duty, nor does a stroke of work so long as the department continues the names on its periodic pay rolls presented for payment, and no one ever will ask a question about it.

"Leaves of absence with pay are permissible by consent of the appointive officers. There is no general rule. We have found cases granting six months' leave with pay. There is no check or control of attendance and absence of the employés, and their practices of going shopping, to matinees, ball games, late arrivals, early departures, long lunch hours, all cut deeply into effective hours of service.

Time clocks are employed, but the time records are not used in most departments, the report continues, and pay rolls are made up without reference to them.

The report recommends the establishment of a definite policy and plan of control over working hours and attendance and absence of employés, a system uniform to all employés. It points out that state employés now work but 36¾ hours per week, and adds that "since the majority of workers [taxpayers] who provide the funds for the payment of the state salaries work an eight hour day, and a 44 hour week, the same hours ought to be established as the minimum for the state.

Two Sets of Triplets in Hospital

Mothers "Doing Well"

Two sets of triplets blinked at the world yesterday from their cribs in the Lewis Memorial hospital nursery. Three boys born on Oct. 7, to Mr. and Mrs. Patrick McNicholas of 5649 South Green street, comprised the elder of the two sets. Each weighed approximately five pounds at birth. The junior set, arriving at 8 o'clock yesterday morning, consisted of two girls and one boy, born to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Zahradnik of 4124 Wellington avenue. Both mothers and the babies were reported yesterday to be "doing splendidly." Each of the Zahradnik progeny weighed four pounds six ounces at birth.

RITCHIE TO OPEN DEMOCRAT DRIVE IN STATE TODAY

Senator Norris to Aid Foes of Republicans.

National speakers for the Democratic ticket will begin an invasion of Illinois this week. Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, one of the contenders for the presidential nomination, will arrive in Chicago this afternoon and will open the hostilities with a speech tonight.

On Thursday there will be two big shows downstate. Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska, a Republican, will be the headliner at a Democratic mass meeting at Mackinaw Dells, Woodford county, near Peoria, the spot where the Republican state candidates opened their campaign two weeks ago. Newton Jenkins, who polled 400,000 votes as a candidate for senator in the Illinois Republican primary last April, will preside and will speak for both Roosevelt and Judge Horner.

Senator Gore to Speak.

Also on Thursday Senator Thomas P. Gore of Oklahoma will speak for the national ticket at Galesburg, the center of a Republican district in which the Democrats have high hopes this year.

Gov. Ritchie will arrive at the union station at 2:15 p. m. and will be met by a number of Chicago leaders who will escort him to the roof house on the Hotel Sherman, which will be his headquarters during a two day stay.

His appearance tonight is as a participant in a debate arranged by Northwestern university as the principal feature of the dedication of George R. Thorne Memorial hall on McKinlock campus on the near north side. The opponent originally scheduled for him was Ray Lyman Wilbur, secretary of the interior, but, at the direction of President Hoover, it is said the cabinet member's name was withdrawn. For that reason the Republican speaker will be Henry J. Allen, former governor of Kansas. Representatives of some 200 colleges have been invited to attend. The debate will be broadcast from 9 p. m. to 10 p. m.

Preceding the political talks, the hall will be formally presented to the university by Hallett Thorne, grandson of the late Mrs. Ellen M. Thorne, who donated the building as a memorial to her husband, George R. Thorne. Arthur Andersen, president of the board of trustees, will accept the building on behalf of the university and President Walter Dill Scott will deliver an address.

Guest at Luncheon.

At noon tomorrow Gov. Ritchie will be the guest of honor at a Democratic luncheon in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Sherman, which seats 3,000. Tomorrow night he speaks for the Democratic organization at Guyon's Paradise and at the Calumet High school, 83d and May streets.

Judge Horner, who in advance of a night meeting at Waukegan, will tour Lake county today, received an indorsement yesterday to which the Independent Horner for Governor committee attached great importance. It came from Brig. Gen. John V. Clinnin, one of the regimental commanders of the Prairie division during the world war, now chairman of the Illinois state athletic commission. He has been a life-long Republican.

"Judge Horner's character and reputation," said Gen. Clinnin, "merit the support of all the voters of Illinois regardless of party. When elected he will be governor for all the people and not for any minority, either of party, group, or other division. Let the voters of Illinois make it unanimous for Judge Henry Horner."

Gen. Clinnin will speak at a dinner in the Red room of the Hotel La Salle Wednesday evening, to be given by 150 service men who are members of the executive board of the Independent War Veterans' Horner-for-Governor committee.

Swanson Shows His Record of 4,696 Sent to Prisons

State's Attorney Swanson yesterday made public statistics showing that for the three years and ten months during which he has been in office his staff has obtained nearly 5,000 felony convictions carrying sentences to the penitentiary or Pontiac reformatory. The period covered is from Dec. 1, 1928, when Mr. Swanson took office, to Oct. 1, 1932.

The prosecutor, who is a candidate for reelection, made public the data as an answer to certain organizations which have urged his defeat. He said his record of convictions showed a substantial increase over that of any predecessor in the state's attorney's office.

253 Convictions for Murder.

"The period covered in the report shows 253 convictions for murder and 139 convictions for manslaughter," says the prosecutor's statement. "Many of these latter convictions, it was pointed out, are cases involving automobile deaths caused by reckless or drunken drivers.

More convictions were obtained against gun toting robbers than against any other class of felons, the prosecutor said. Prosecutor Swanson said that 2,259 robbery convictions were obtained by his staff. This figure was almost equaled on larceny convictions, which showed a total of 2,186, many of them being for automobile thefts. During the same period 621 burglary convictions were obtained.

43 Per Cent Boost in Sentences.

"While complete figures are not available for comparison, I have in three years and ten months sent 42 per cent more individuals to the penitentiary and Pontiac reformatory than were sent in any four years preceding my incumbency," said the prosecutor's statement. "The total number of individuals sent to these institutions for this period was 4,696, or an increase of 1,414 over any previous four year period. The best previous total was 3,282 persons in four years."

The prosecutor also called attention to his use of the habitual criminal act, which although on the statute books for years, had seldom been used.

"I have made the habitual criminal act effective," he said. "Twenty-three habitual criminals have been convicted during my term and in most cases they have got life imprisonment. I have also obtained 13 convictions for kidnaping and seven for bombing and conspiracy to bomb."

Prosecution of Bank Cases.

Prosecutor Swanson called attention to his prosecution of bank cases.

"More indictments and convictions of crooked bank officials and employés have taken place during my administration than in the 100 years preceding my election as state's attorney," he said. "To date, 22 bank officials and employés have been convicted, and there are 74 other indictments in bank cases yet to be tried."

The prosecutor also called attention to the success he has had in his drive against rapists. During the last month eleven rapists have been convicted and sentenced to long penitentiary terms, the prosecutor said. The statistics showing the total number of such convictions during the preceding months is not now available, he said.

SHANGHAI JAILS FAMOUS CHINESE LEADER OF REDS

(Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.)

SHANGHAI, Oct. 16.—The most important communist arrest ever made in Shanghai occurred today. International Settlement police, acting on warrants from the Chinese authorities, raided secret communist headquarters and seized Chen Tu-hsiu, secretary general of the Chinese communist party, and six co-workers, and confiscated a mass of documents and records.

Chen Tu-hsiu, China's most famous nonmilitary communist, was at one time an associate of Hu Shih in the literary renaissance movement. Later he organized the youth movement of the communist party, and in 1924 was associated with Wang Ching-wei in the Canton government.

Subsequently he was exiled, living in Russia until recently, when he returned to China secretly.

PRINCE AT HOME AS CAROL MARKS 39TH BIRTHDAY

State Officers and Maniu Attend Dinner.

SINAIA, Rumania, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Former Queen Elizabeth of Greece and little Crown Prince Michael attended King Carol's 39th birthday dinner at his summer residence here today. Dowager Queen Marie and Archduke Anton and his wife, Ileana, one of Carol's sisters, were not present.

Little 11 year old Michael, returning here from a visit in England with his mother, Princess Helen, the King's former wife, was allowed to drive his own American made automobile to the station to meet former Queen Elizabeth. There was only room for himself and his aunt in the machine.

The king's birthday was celebrated quietly throughout Rumania but special services were held in all churches.

Sits Beside Elizabeth.

Little Michael sat beside the king's sister during the birthday dinner. At the king's right sat Premier Alexander Vaida-Voevod. At the left was Dr. Juliu Maniu, leader of the National Peasant party, and at the opposite side of the table were Elizabeth, Michael, and Nicholas Titulescu, former ambassador to Great Britain who has been offered the post of foreign minister.

There were smiles when Michael, after dessert was served, turned to the silver tongued Titulescu and piped: "Won't you please make a speech, Mr. Titulescu? I have heard so much about your oratory."

There was no speech, but Premier Vaida-Voevod lifted a glass of champagne and cried: "Long live the king!" The company cheered.

Carol Talks With Cabinet.

Over coffee and cigars, King Carol chatted a long time with Dr. Maniu and later with various members of the cabinet.

In the evening Sinaia was gayly illuminated and a torchlight parade was held in honor of the king.

The midday dinner was preceded by a formal ceremony in the marble hall of the king's residence, where the premier congratulated Carol in the name of the Rumanian people. Later, in an adjoining hall, Dr. Maniu and Titulescu presented their compliments to the king.

SCISSORS VICTIM

THURE R. SANDSTEDT JR.

Thure Robert Sandstedt Jr., 11 years old, of 4745 North Hermitage avenue, died yesterday in the Presbyterian hospital, supposedly from pneumonia which developed from a surgical accident in a north side hospital.

He underwent an operation for the removal of his tonsils at the north side hospital on Sept. 29 and a piece of the small surgical scissors being used snapped off. The piece was breathed down into his right lung. Efforts to remove it were unavailing and the boy was taken to the Presbyterian hospital on Oct. 6. Surgeons there were likewise unsuccessful in removing the bit of blade.

The boy's father is a teller in the federal reserve bank. The family said last night they were convinced that the breaking of the scissors was an unavoidable accident and that the operating doctor had done all in his power to save their son.

Boy Wounded When Gun Is Fired Accidentally

Frank Pryztula, 18 years old, 4532 South Wood street, was shot in the abdomen and critically wounded yesterday by the accidental discharge of a revolver in the hands of Peter Ducek, 18 years old, 4443 South Honoré street. The shooting occurred in front of the home of Charles Pondenus, 28 years old, 4429 South Honoré street. Ducek had taken the gun from Pondenus, who had tried to fire it in the air, police said, and was running away from Pondenus when he stumbled and discharged the weapon. The wounded boy was taken to the Southtown hospital. Pondenus was held for questioning.

NEW YORK CITY OUT OF CASH TO PAY EMPLOYES

Gotham Teeters on Brink of Bankruptcy.

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 16.—[Special.]—The day on which the piper must be paid has rolled around for New York City. The municipal money bins are empty and the fate of future pay checks for the policemen, firemen, and school teachers lies in the hands of the city's budget makers. Their actions in curbing municipal extravagance, bankers warned today, will decide whether or not New York is to join the growing list of bankrupt American cities.

The showdown with the money lenders will come this week, possibly by Wednesday. The first default in payment of city workers may come when the November pay rolls fall due. If it does not come then (it seems incredible on the eve of a mayoralty election) bankers and leading taxpayers say, bankruptcy is certain within six months to a year under the present tentative budget of $614,648,912.

The budget makers have tomorrow and Tuesday to cut at least $80,000,000 from that total. So far they have given no indication that such wholesale reductions will be made.

Credit in Imminent Danger.

The financial condition of the city, according to figures obtained in the last three days, is such that its credit is in imminent danger. The figures disclose the following facts:

There is less than $6,000,000 of the $151,000,000 revolving fund set up by a banking group last January to supplement the city's income remaining in the city treasury. Controller Charles W. Berry sought last Tuesday and was refused a further loan from the banks.

A semi-monthly installment of city pay rolls is due Nov. 1. It amounts to approximately $13,000,000. Another pressing need, in addition to current expenses, interest payments, and the like, is the necessity of raising $30,000,000 to finance unemployment relief this winter.

City Bond Values Decline.

In addition to refusing a loan unless drastic retrenchments are effected, the bankers have advised the city authorities that the sale of city securities of any kind cannot be undertaken with the confidence of the investing public shaken by the administration failing to agree upon a retrenchment program.

New York City bonds have lost approximately $140,000,000 of their total value of a month ago and are steadily declining as the city moves toward receivership. During Acting Mayor Joseph V. McKee's recent economy drive, which was nipped in the bud by Tammamny, the bonds had risen to new values. On the day the board of estimates sheared Mr. McKee of his budget control the bonds shed more than $47,000,000 of their value.

As a further indication of the reduction of anticipated income, Anton L. Trunk, president of the New York Real Estate board, said today there would be $146,000,000 uncollectible in taxes this year out of the approximately $520,000,000 expected from taxes on real estate.

Outlook for Income Poor.

The city's income from the state—directly and indirectly—which amounted to about $90,000,000 this year has been mostly received and expended. Its only other source of revenue—pier leases, licenses, concessions and the like—netted under $100,000,000 this year and will be considerably less next year.

Last Jan. 18 at a meeting in the Morgan offices, bankers took a look at the income and expenditures and said, "No more money unless you cut your overhead." Mayor James J. Walker made valiant promises and a week later the bankers, including Charles E. Mitchell of National City bank, Thomas W. Lamont of Morgan & Co., Winthrop W. Aldrich of Chase National bank, and John M. McHugh, chairman of the same institution, believed him and advanced the city $151,000,000 credit but at the unusual—for this city—rate of 5½ per cent interest.

Tammany Stops McKee.

Early in September Acting Mayor McKee called to borrow $17,000,000 of the revolving fund and stopped to talk to the same bankers. Coming back to city hall, Mr. McKee told his associates:

"We won't get any more unless we put through a definite retrenchment program. We must economize to satisfy the bankers. They want results and I have determined to see that they get them."

Tammany scotched Mr. McKee's economy efforts and last Tuesday it became Controller Berry's turn to call on the bankers. He was told of the unfulfilled pledges of economy and refused a loan until the pledges were effected.

Last Jan. 19 the banking group saved the city from bankruptcy by an unprecedented act of lending the administration $12,500,000 for eleven days at 6 per cent interest. The emergency loan was made while the revolving fund was being arranged.

This time, the bankers have advised the city, there will be no emergency loans unless specific proof of economy is forthcoming.

Bankers Hesitate to Protest.

One reason for the bankers' hesitation in coming out with statements over their own names that the city's credit has reached the breaking point is that they do not desire to endanger a highly profitable money lending business in event Tammany makes retrenchments.

They say they would personally be accused of putting the screws on the city administration just before a mayoralty election. The bankers had expected Tammany to ride along with McKee in effecting an acceptable budget reduction. Now, they are definitely through lending money under present conditions.

Late this afternoon there were indications that the Tammany leaders were in conference in some secret place endeavoring to work out a solution of the credit problem. None of the leaders were located in their homes or usual Sunday haunts.

FIGURES SHOW HUGE TOTAL OF NEW YORK RELIEF EXPENDITURES

New York, Oct. 16.—[Special.]—Between Jan. 1, 1929, and June 30, 1932, public relief agencies in New York City aided about 2,000,000 persons and spent a total of $183,481,502. This was disclosed today when Frank J. Taylor, commissioner of public welfare, made public statistics he had submitted to Acting Mayor Joseph V. McKee.

This sum, which was exclusive of amounts spent by charitable organizations and by the city in health activities, was about equal to two-thirds of the New York state budget of 1929 ($286,463,959), more than the budgetary expenditures of the City of Detroit in 1929 ($152,341,000), and about $5,500,000 more than the state of New York spent on ordinary disbursements in 1928 ($178,016,047).

More than $50,000,000, or nearly one-third of the total spent in the three and one-half year period, was dispensed in the first six months of 1932. This is believed to indicate that the total expenditures or 1932 may reach $100,000,000, or three times the amount spent in 1929.

A chart explaining the statistics puts the total number of men, women, and children now receiving relief in New York City at 775,967. This number is about equal to the 1928 census figures for Boston, St. Louis, or Baltimore, or to the combined population in 1928 of Newark and Jersey City.

Hearings on 1934 Budget Approach Showdown Stage

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 16.—[Special.]—Hearings on the 1934 national budget have now reached the stage where President Hoover shortly will be called upon to advise cabinet members and the various other heads of independent establishments what cuts, if any, they will have to make in their estimates of expenditures for the fiscal year beginning July 1 next.

On Sept. 10 President Hoover sent out a circular letter to all government executives urging them to join in cutting next year's budget by one-half a billion dollars below appropriations for the current year, which amounted to approximately four billion eight hundred million dollars. At the time, however, the various officials were not advised as to the limiting figure which would be placed on their spendings for the next fiscal year.

Few Major Department Cuts.

Indications today are that the major departments are not to be cut much below the regular appropriations granted them this year. The greater part of the 500 million dollar reduction is to be effected, it is understood, through the elimination in 1934 of the nonrecurring item of 322 million dollars appropriated for public works construction this year in the two billion dollar emergency relief bill.

Another sixty or eighty million dollar reduction is to be effected through eliminating other nonrecurring items, leaving something like a hundred million dollars to be taken off the appropriations for the routine activities of the regular government departments and establishments.

Unless new cuts are ordered as an economic move, most departments will be allowed to submit budget estimates to congress asking for within a comparatively small amount of the sums which congress appropriated for them this year.

Await Revenue Estimates.

Officials stated today that no definite decision as to the exact size of the budget to be forwarded to congress will be made until after treasury estimates have been worked up outlining probable revenues for the next year.

Although no definite figures have been made public, it became known today that the preliminary budget estimates, submitted by the departments before the President's appeal for a half billion cut was made public, called for larger sums in several instances than had been appropriated by congress for this year's expenditures.

Hearings are being held at the budget director's office this month on all the government department estimates. On the conclusion of these hearings the budget director and the president will get together and fix the limiting figure.

Indications today were that the various departments will be cut something like 4 or 5 per cent below their regular appropriation for the current year.

Seven Killed, 15 Injured as French Trains Collide

CERENCE, Manche, France, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Seven persons were killed and 15 injured in a train wreck near Cerence station late this afternoon. A passenger train rammed a freight train, and caromed off the track down a steep grade, splintering the leading coaches.

SCHOOLS WORTH MILLIONS REMAIN PREY TO STORMS

Because the school board is without the $10,000,000 necessary to complete them ten unfinished school buildings on which $9,000,000 has been spent will be prey this year to a second winter's weathering and vandalism.

Architect John C. Christensen said he could not possibly estimate what the loss would be in stolen fixtures, torn up floors, warped woodwork, rusted steel, and walls disintegrated by frost. Hope of getting contractors to resume the work and thus save the buildings and help reduce the 70,000 seat shortage, he said, is slight.

The contractors were last paid in April, 1931, and ceased work a few months later, unable to carry through the large projects. Negotiations are now in progress seeking to secure protection for the board from claims for judgment by the contractors by reason of the board's default on its contracts. The board is understood to have offered to pay a five per cent penalty on the unpaid portion of the contracts, but at the last meeting the contractors were reported as asking 18 per cent.

The ten buildings which stand unfinished are the new Lane Technical High school, Western avenue and Addison street; addition to Senn High school, Ardmore and Glenwood avenues; Phillips High school, 49th street and Wabash avenue; Steinmetz High school, Wellington and Barry avenues; Verdi Junior High, 56th and Rockwell streets; Dvorak Junior High, 18th street and Keeler avenue; Rogers Junior High, 32d street and Essex avenue; Galileo Junior High, Fullerton and Long avenues; the Wells Elementary, Ashland avenue and Augusta boulevard, and the Jamieson Elementary, Hollywood avenue and Mozart street.

Of these, according to Mr. Christensen, the $6,500,000 Lane structure is in the worst shape. It is only partly inclosed, some of the walls are only partly completed, and in consequence the steel is rusting, the woodwork and floors are warping, and the unfinished walls are disintegrating.

SCHOOL OFFICIAL PRAISES FUND FOR HUNGRY PUPILS

Reduces Delinquency, He Asserts.

In a letter to THE TRIBUNE, William L. Bodine, superintendent of compulsory education in the Chicago public school system, tells his views on the results of the feeding of warm lunches to youngsters who otherwise would go hungry.

"In behalf of the truant officers and headquarters staff of the bureau of compulsory education," he says, "I desire to thank THE TRIBUNE for its timely and humane interest in the maintenance of free luncheons at schools, for the poverty stricken children of Chicago.

"We indorse and commend the Hungry School Children's fund as worthy of public support. Truant officers know the pathetic conditions in these homes.

10,000 Children Fed.

"The little brothers and sisters of the poor are the innocent victims of the depression. Last year 10,000 children, with the acute hunger that only destitution knows, were fed and made happy every school day. THE TRIBUNE and its readers saved lives.

"Free luncheons to the needy boys and girls was a material factor in helping truant officers and teachers keep children in school. An empty stomach is the storage battery of juvenile delinquency. Fewer delinquents now means less adult crime in the future.

"Some of these children were starving. At least 15,000 children are going to classrooms every school day now, without breakfast. A dime will supply a hot meal for a hungry child."

Readers Provide Funds.

These hot lunches, served in scores of the public schools, are made possible by the contributions of TRIBUNE readers mailed to the cashier of this newspaper and acknowledged in its columns. Through the system used successfully last year, only the teachers know whether a child pays for his own lunch or is given a free meal. Many thousands of dollars will be required to keep the fund operating through the winter. All contributions are welcome. Contributors will find a coupon elsewhere on this page to be filled out and mailed in with their gifts or pledges.

Hungry School Children Fund

There are 15,000 children who go to school hungry every morning. A dime a day will furnish a substantial noonday meal for each of them.

I will contribute $....., weekly ....., monthly, or the enclosed donation. State school, if any, to which you prefer donation assigned.

BRAZIL DECREES MORATORIUM ON CURRENCY DEBTS

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Provisional President Getulio Vargas has decreed a 60 day moratorium throughout Brazil on obligations of the national currency effective as of Oct. 15. The redemption of certain currency issued by the rebels in the abortive Sao Paulo uprising was also decreed.

The redemption decree authorized the state of Sao Paulo to issue 220,000 contos [about $15,000,000] official exchange 30 year, 7 per cent internal bonds to finance the redemption of rebel currency. Redemption is necessary because the rebels requisitioned 2,000,000 sacks of coffee to guarantee their currency, which placed a burden on the coffee growers.

Seventy-five prisoners arrested in connection with the recent Minas Geraes conspiracy have been released, it was announced today. Dispatches from Sao Paulo said railroads had resumed coffee transport.

YAQUI INDIANS ON WARPATH; RAID VALLEY SETTLERS

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 16.—The never subdued Yaqui Indians are on the warpath again. They made the first raid last night to drive settlers out of the Guaymas valley, in the state of Sonora, which they insist belongs to them.

A band of well armed mounted Yaqui braves descended from their stronghold in the Sonora mountains and captured 53 cows and a number of horses and mules belonging to Antonio and Manuel Maytorena, according to dispatches from Guaymas today.

The raiders captured Reynaldo Trias, a peon who was guarding the cattle, and took him back into the hills. After forcing him to march on foot from 7 p. m. until dawn, they turned him loose stripped of his clothing. Trias made his way to the nearest officials and told them the Yaquis had said they intended to make other raids in the near future to destroy crops and property in the valley to drive out the residents.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

NO COMPROMISE WITH THE TAX STRIKERS.

The tax strikers, having been defeated in the courts of Illinois, are now seeking to effect some kind of a compromise with the county. Naturally and rightly the spokesmen for the various governments in the community are resisting this proposal.

THE TRIBUNE believes and has said a hundred times that taxes in this community are too high and must be reduced, but that is very different from saying that this community can do without any services of government. Taxes are too high and in many instances are, in fact, confiscatory under present rental conditions, but that injustice is not lessened but aggravated when half the property owners carry the whole load while the other half is permitted to bear as little of it as their lawyers can manage to get the county to agree to.

This much seems certain: If a settlement is reached with the tax strikers which gives them any material advantage as a result of their strike, few of those who have paid their taxes regularly in the past will continue to do so. If tax striking pays every property owner will seek to avail himself of the opportunity to save money which tax striking presents. The result must be such a drying up of tax revenue as this community has not yet known. Instead of nearly half the taxes being delinquent, as at present, 95 per cent of the taxes will be delinquent. Instead of the public employés being a few months in arrears on their salaries there will be no money at all to pay the police, the firemen, the teachers, the county hospital nurses, and other employés.

MR. GARNER LOOKS ALIKE.

The common failing is trying to prove too much. Usually the case will not stand it. Mr. Garner, who devoted the session of congress to revelations of himself as the natural friend of the people and who now wants no exaggerated idea of that to prevail, said in his New York speech:

"Did the depression come from abroad? Our export business is less than 5 per cent of our total business and the par value of foreign loans about 3 per cent of our wealth. Say we have lost one-half of all this foreign stake, or 4 per cent of wealth and business, does that account for the 40 to 50 per cent loss of both?" To this he later added: "The Smoot-Hawley tariff on the one hand gave higher rates and on the other destroyed export farm markets."

Mr. Garner's followers may be perplexed in which direction to follow him. If the foreign stake was inconsequential the tariff likewise was of no consequence. The retaliations hit manufactured products, but all told Mr. Garner finds that nothing much was lost. But then Mr. Garner would have balanced the budget by building postoffices. He should be added to the Marx Brothers. He looks alike.

THE TOWN OF X GETS A LOAD OF FLOUR.

A small town which need not be named, it being only one of thousands of its kind in the country [it can be known as X], recently received a shipment of flour which when unloaded and stored in a front room on Main street made an imposing consignment. It created a good deal of talk along different lines, some of it bitter. The resentment was shown by the half dozen general store merchants. X is of less than two thousand people, but it does considerable summer business. The flour was the town's apportionment of Red Cross farm board relief supply.

X had been on Postoffice Jack's list of mail mausoleum locations, but that didn't go through as the edificial Mr. Garner intended, and, although a good many marble halls were salvaged out by the postoffice for many a village by the trickling fill, X was left with its entirely adequate pine board stamp habitation. The only improvement its postoffice really needs is an occasional thinning of the ink in the collectivist stand. That sometimes has too high a content of dirt by volume.

The postoffice is the place where the townspeople are accustomed to meeting Uncle Sam face to face. Rumors of prohibition agents in the neighborhood never amounted to much and Volstead is generally what the constabulary construes it to mean—again not much. The consignment of flour dropped down as if out of the heavens, from the invisible Christmas tree of the great fathers in Washington. Here was a new form of government. The spirits were definitely materialized. The R. F. C., the grain stabilization board, etc., had been disembodied functions until the sky opened and dropped flour.

The town had been handling the hard times without much complaint. It had provided barracks for some casual laborers drifting to it and saw that they had enough food for their mess. There is plenty of timber land and tracts were donated for cutting. Good birch mixed with tamarack was available. Not much coal is used in X. Corded wood is the main provision for winter fuel. The town has been accustomed to getting by, but when Uncle Sam gave a flour shower there wasn't much excuse for leaving it off the list. Of course, X can use the flour. The merchants were indignant because from remarks they heard it seemed unlikely that there would be many flour items on their monthly bills for some time to come. No doubt they would have easily reconciled themselves if that consignment had been dropped in China.

In the evolution of the American government the incident is a trivial one, but this town has a new idea of the federal Union. The internal revenue department hasn't bothered it much. A captured gun and a tablet indicate that it had a part in the war. Such things are expectable. Reasons for them can be found in the constitution. But nothing in previous experience or prospect had prepared the people for the freight car that was shunted off on a siding with that load of flour. Possibly the incident is not trivial. Hindsight may be clearer.

THE BEST SPEECH OF THE DAY.

The political campaigns have slipped into high and scores of speeches are being made nightly. None of them carries a message as important for the American people as that which was brought to Chicago by Rear Admiral Byrd, president of the National Economy league. The truth of the matter is that both parties are reluctant to accept the gospel which he is preaching, though both have paid it lip service. If government expenditures are reduced in this country it will not be because the officeholders are burning to end the regime of waste but because an outraged people has demanded economy and will accept no excuses for failure to bring it about.

Chicago is well prepared to receive Admiral Byrd's message. This community is tax conscious as few others can be. The impossibility of maintaining the local governments at the whoopee standard became evident here long before most of the cities of the country knew they were broke. And in Chicago the connection between excessive taxation and the depression is clearly understood.

One point stressed by Admiral Byrd deserves particular attention. He says that taxes are the prime cause of unemployment, and he is right. When the tax collector muscles in to destroy profits he is at the same time destroying industry, and therefore employment. Factories will not stay open when no profits are to be made, and when factories close unemployment is inevitable. The campaign against excessive government expenditures is not a rich man's campaign, as some of the spenders pretend. It is a campaign in which all elements of the population, save only the feeders at the public trough, have an equal interest.

THE FASTEST TRAIN.

The Cheltenham Flyer—"world's fastest train"—has beat its own record again. On its run of 77½ miles from Paddington station in London to Swindon it beat its previous schedule by over six minutes, increasing its average speed from 69.13 to 71.3 m. p. h. On certain sections of the line it ran 86½ m. p. h., and, as it was compelled to slow down to 45 at one place on account of road repairs, its new record probably will soon be cut.

This was not a sporting event or speed test, but an advance in regular running time for this train. It is, of course, a special service, but it is one of the indications that British railway management realizes the value of speed at a time when railways, there as in America, are suffering seriously from motor competition. Speed, as we have suggested repeatedly, is the factor in competition in which the advantage is securely with the railways so far as any highway transport is concerned. This advantage has been neglected, no doubt largely because of the conditions which government restrictions and exactions have brought about. But resourceful management will go as far as it can to exploit this advantage.

Editorial of the Day

BLONDS FOR DEMOCRACY.

[New York Times.]

Reference was made the other day in our Berlin correspondence to the use which Hitler is making of the doctrine of Nordic race superiority as originated by a Frenchman and developed by an Englishman. The Frenchman was Count Gobineau of nearly a century ago. The Englishman was Houston Stewart Chamberlain, son-in-law of the great Wagner. Since the publication of Chamberlain's "Foundations of the Nineteenth Century" in the years before the war much has been said about his famous ascriptions of all the great acts of history to the blue eyed, blond haired races back to the very beginning of the present era in Palestine. The liberation of the pure German race from the perils that beset it—the treaty of Versailles, Marxism, the Jews—is an integral part of the Hitler teaching. It has just been subjected to a spirited examination by the Vienna Arbeiterzeitung, the leading Austrian labor and Socialist daily.

It found its text in the recent Swedish general election, which resulted in the replacement of a conservative government by a Socialist ministry under P. A. Hansson. In Denmark a Socialist government has been in power for some time. Now it is odd, argues the Vienna journal, that just when Hitler is stigmatising democracy, socialism, and laborism as traits of the lower non-Nordic races and exalting the dictatorship method as the only one suited for the rescue of the pure Germanic races—just at this time the Social-Democratic principles of government should be most strongly affirmed among the most northern of Nordics, among the very blondest of Teutons, among the fair haired, blue eyed, long headed natives of Denmark and Sweden. If there were something in the old Wotan blood that is instinctively repugnant to freedom and self-government for the masses it ought surely to be visible among Wotan's closest neighbors.

The Vienna writer scores hardest when he turns from Scandinavian Nordicism to Scandinavian culture. Sweden and Denmark he describes as standing at the very top of popular education in Europe. It is there, he says, that one may find "in almost every farmhouse a peasant lad who has been through high school and whose little book shelf will show, along with his textbooks in agriculture, translations of Goethe and Shakespeare." The Scandinavian countries have not escaped the world depression. Tariffs and quotas have played havoc with the dairy industry in Denmark. Economic life in Sweden is reeling from the effects of the Kreuger crash. But in neither country have the people sought salvation in Fascism. On the contrary, they have moved further on toward democracy.

The educational test is a useful one to apply in all discussions of the alleged doom of democracy. It cannot be sheer coincidence that European Fascism flourishes in an environment of high illiteracy, while the countries of advanced education have remained true to democracy. Germany is the only country of high standing in popular education where the democratic cause is on the defensive. But Germany's very culture is an excellent reason for maintaining that in the end German democracy will come out on top.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

THE CANDIDATES for President of these more or less United States seem to have covered or expect to cover about every subject possible except the amount of rainfall annually in Madagascar, the cruelty of deherning hydraulic rams, amount of calories in sugar beets, and where was Moses when the light went out.

ANOTHER OUTRAGE, showing the danger of picking up hitch-hikers, is reported from Virginia. A kind hearted motorist stopped his car to take in a forlorn looking lady, and, after he had driven her for a couple of miles, discovered the hitch-hiker was his former wife, to whom he was behind some nine hundred dollars in alimony. After beating the kind hearted motorist with her umbrella until her arms got tired, the cruel hitch-hiker called the constabulary and had her ex-husband taken to the hoosegow while she drove triumphantly away in his car. A motorist can't be too careful about these hitch-hikers.

IRISH WEATHER.

The scrawny year is gray as an old gull dying;
The world is wind and water and groans sighing
Like banshees in the crannies of the cliff.

I have peat for my fire, a cake and pot of tea,
But nary chick nor child to warm the heart of me
Alone and chill, lonely on the hill.

Was that a rattle? Belike a hand at the latch!
Wirra, 'tis no one—only the thatch
Troubled with the thrust of the wind.

Never himself nor the childher will ever pass that door
That saw them palled feet foremost to rest in Burrenmoir.
I was a born slave to them all, for a bite and a sup.

Mists whiten Slieve Neaphan's purple heather
Where often we danced so lovely together,
He had a grand funeral, thanks be to God!

The sun glitters in the heavens, and a linnet:
I have heard him often, yet wonder is in it.
The vale is like a carpet I saw long ago.

Amen to my beads, my tongue is worn to a shred;
The dead sleep of sorrow I bring to my bed.
Jesus, Mary, Joseph, give rest to my soul.

STARRHATT.

THE FRONT PAGES simply throw fits over Hiram Johnson coming out against his party's nominee for the presidency. If that's news then the fact that we gave Tommy Atkins, our small Sealyham, a bath Saturday morning ought to have a scare head, with a three column story and pictures on the back page.

IN REVERSE.

He had been a keen, upstanding villain in the days of Shore Acres and The Old Homestead. His name must have been Montague McFarland, or something like that. He had a haughty mien and a mean leer; also, of course, a black, upcurled mustache. He wore high boots and carried a riding whip. And he was the Mortgagee.

The Mortgagor was a widow, lean, lachrymose, pious, and poor. Her daughter, Violetta, then a lass of eighteen, was all that a lily or a snowflake should be. She loved Henry, the Hand; but no need to bring that up at this time.

Look at them, as the scene opens now: Montague, the Mortgagee, sits alone in his dreary hovel, his pipe out, his mustache drooping, his tie untied. An inclement day. Wet, windswept snow pelts the window panes and slips down in tears . . . A rap at the door. Montague starts up, clutches his mustache, sits down, and groans "Enter." The Widow Mortgagor comes in, leading Violetta, who has aged considerably, by the hand. Mother and daughter have a hard, relentless look, which augurs ill. Sure enough! "Mr. McFarland," recites the Widow, incisively, "the mortgage you hold on my little homestead is overdue. The taxes are unpaid, the garage roof leaks, and the henhouse is out of repair. I can give you no more time, my good man. Positively the mortgage must be foreclosed today."

"But surely, madam," pleads Montague, the Mortgagee, "you cannot be so harsh, so cruel, so inhuman as that! Is there no mercy in your heart? Already I have foreclosed on half a dozen tax-burdened homesteads, and I can endure no more. Madam, I beg of you, spare me—spare me!"

"On these conditions, sir, only," says the Widow sternly, "that you retain the mortgage, pay the taxes, fix the henhouse, and take Violetta's hand."

"Omigod and has it come to this!" cries Montague, the Mortgagee, distractedly. "Then give me one more day, I pray, to think it over." And the once proud villain bows his head and weeps.

"Very well," agrees the Widow Mortgagor, "we go, but we shall return." And she laughs a taunting "ha, ha, ha!" and Violetta a tickled "te he, he!"

EOLUS.

GRANDMOTHER BY THE FIRE.

As children wade through brown October leaves,
She walks tonight through memories and hears
An autumn sound with every step she takes—
The rustling music of remembered years.

ADELAIDE LOVE.

THERE'S ALWAYS the law of compensation! Sometimes as we pied wearily along in the rain we look up as a millionaire whirls around the corner in his great, gleaming gas chariot, almost taking our toes off, and give him a dirty look. And then when we read of the threatening letters millionaires receive in every mail we are glad we are so humble that if kidnapers ever did pick us up their hard hearts would be melted by our sad story and they would give us five dollars, hand us a cigar, ask us what we wanted for Christmas, and set us down safely at our own door.

INDIAN SUMMER and gorgeous red and gold and purple in the trees and the brown leaves rustling under foot and eddying in the wind. Blue sky overhead and a soft breeze whispering through the woods. It's a good old world after all.

GANDHI'S FAST.

THE newspapers report that Mahatma Gandhi broke his fast after going six days and eight hours without food. He is expected to recover.

During the fast he ate nothing, but he drank water as he wished, and from time to time he dissolved some soda or some salt in the water. He began eating by taking a little fruit juice and syrup. Neither of these require much digestion or other preparation for absorption, and not much more for use by the tissues. In a few hours he began eating very small quantities of simple foods—substances that require some digestion but that do not throw much strain on the stomach.

The object of the soda taken during the fast was to counteract the hunger acidosis which otherwise would have been certain to have caused him to have headache and nausea. Probably a little salt added to this drinking water made it more palatable and satisfied some of the cravings of salt hunger. Old people who lived in the south behind the battle lines in civil war times bear witness to the discomforts of salt hunger.

To the average man living many thousands of miles away, and having no knowledge of the politics of India, the most interesting part of this story is the ability of a frail, almost cadaverous man with high blood pressure and beyond the meridian of life to live for six days and eight hours without food. However, there is nothing extraordinary about that. A normal man should be able to go without food for nearly two months. The traditional forty day fast is not much more than a starter for the experts in the art. When one goes without food for several days the fires of the body burn at near the normal level, being fed at the expense of substances stored as reserve. First goes stored water, then sugar. Soon the loosely laid down fat is shoveled into the fire. It takes several days to use up all this surplus fuel, and during the time no important tissues are being drawn on.

At about this stage the draft valves are turned and the fires are choked down. If this is done efficiently, and no work of body or mind is carried on, the essential tissues of the body are burned up with exceeding slowness. It is probably well toward the end of the second week that a normal person, fasting carefully, reaches that stage. Probably life would not be endangered in the slightest until toward the end of the third week. If the man was an adept in going on to the hibernating, cold blooded animal basis, he would be in no danger before the fourth week.

We see how much of bunk there is in most of what we hear about death from starvation at the end of, say, three days. The extraordinary features in Gandhi's case were his extreme emaciation before he started fasting and the hard mental work he did during its continuance. In spite of this he probably would have survived another week of fasting.

SOME SLIGHT DANGER.

A. A. T. writes: Please write about inguinal hernia.

1. Does it affect the general health?
2. Does it give rise to great weakness?
3. Does it interfere with the urinary flow?
4. Are there any other effects?

REPLY:

1. No.
2. No.
3. No.
4. It causes some inconvenience. There is some danger of strangulation. Otherwise there are no effects.

JUST SUIT YOURSELF.

L. W. writes: Is it good to sleep without a pillow?

REPLY.

It is. Some would find it uncomfortable—for instance, persons with heart asthma.

PARTICLES IN THROAT.

MRS. G. W. writes: What causes cheeselike particles in the throat and is there any remedy for this condition?

REPLY.

They are accumulations of food debris and tissue cells in the crypts of the tonsils. Sometimes they cause bad breath. Occasionally they cause tonsilitis. They can be massaged out. In some cases it is best to have the tonsils removed.

BUILDING CODE.

Chicago, Oct. 10.—[Friend of the People.]—My house is a one story frame, with the attic made into three rooms. There is one entrance to this attic flat, in the back, from the outside. Could I rent this flat with only one entrance? A friend of mine has an attic flat with a back entrance and a middle entrance. This middle entrance leads into the first floor dining room and basement. Would this be classed as two entrances? D. T.

The Chicago building code provides that every apartment building shall have two stairways, one of which may be an outside stair. Your attic flat would not meet these requirements and therefore cannot legally be used as a separate living apartment. Your friend's flat would probably be classed as having two entrances, but no definite statement can be made unless a floor plan is furnished. The reason for this is that the Chicago code recognizes two stairways only when each one is clear and independent of the other in case of fire.

JOHN E. ERICSSON,
Deputy, Department of Buildings.

FARM LABOR EXCLUDED.

Woodworth, Wis.—Oct. 10.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My son, 17 years of age, worked for a farmer in Illinois. He got his hand crippled by a tractor and hasn't worked for him since that time. He still owes him $14.25 back wages. Every time we go after him about it he says he has no money and his stock and machinery are all mortgaged. Is there any way we can secure damages for his injury? A. W.

The compensation act does not apply to farm labor. Hence your son is not in a position to recover from the farmer unless it can be shown that the farmer was in some way to blame.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

MORTGAGE.

Chicago, Oct. 10.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I hold a mortgage on certain property. The owner is unable to pay taxes on the same and wants to borrow the necessary money from a loan company for that purpose. In case of foreclosure [1] is this loan a lien against that property with rights before the first mortgage? 2. Has it only the right of a second mortgage? A. H.

1. No.
2. Depends upon whether a second mortgage is executed.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

OCTOBER 17, 1916.

CHICAGO.—"Passing the buck" became the fashion in the hearing of State's Attorney Hoyne's charges of malfeasance and conspiracy against Chief of Police Healey and his secretary, William Luthardt, before Chief Justice Olson. The day's developments uncovered the receiver general of "the buck." It proved to be no less a personage than the mayor. Attorney John J. Healy made it plain that Chief Healey, by way of clearing his own skirts of anything savoring of criminality, will "pass the buck" to the mayor. Capt. W. P. O'Brien, suspended Cottage Grove avenue commander, proved a boomerang witness for the prosecution, gave Chief Healey an unexpected coat of whitewash, said he knew the chief was under strong political pressure, and "passed the buck" to the mayor.

LONDON.—A dispatch from Bucharest regarding operations in the Transylvania theater of the war says that the Germans, taking advantage of the position of the Rumanians, who have been compelled to withdraw several divisions in order to reinforce the Dobrudja front, have assembled about ten divisions and are violently attacking the Rumanians. "Owing to the crushing superiority of their heavy artillery and machine guns," the dispatch says, "the Germans have succeeded in driving back the Rumanians, who are powerless to face the long range guns, although the unseasoned Rumanian troops have tried to stand the fierce fire. They have counter-attacked all the time, but have been compelled to withdraw to their own territory."

PARIS.—French forces are firmly established in Sailly-Saillisel and are holding a number of houses along the Bapaume road, after capturing these positions in hard fighting last night. South of the Somme the French repulsed a German attack at St. Eloi wood, southeast of Belloy-en-Santerre.

BERLIN.—Strong attacks were made by the Russians in Volhynia, west of Lutsk. Today's official announcements report that these assaults broke down with severe losses for the Russians.

PARIS.—The death of Norman Prince of Boston, former Chicago club member and polo enthusiast, who died Oct. 15 in a hospital in Alsace, resulted from a blood clot on the brain caused by a wound sustained Oct. 12 from German anti-aircraft artillery, it was learned today. He was decorated with the Legion of Honor and promoted to the grade of lieutenant just before his death. He is the third American aviator to be killed fighting for France.

PADUCAH, Ky.—Paducah until late tonight was practically under martial law as the result today of the lynching of two Negroes, one for an attack on a white woman and the other for expressing sympathy for and, it is said, laughing the accused man. The bodies later were burned. The lynching came after five hours' labor on the part of the mob trying to gain entrance to the cell of the accused Negro, Brock Kenley. While the mob was at work James Thornhill, a mere boy, expressed sympathy for the man behind the bars. He was seized and held by the mob, and subsequently hanged.

CHICAGO.—Patients of the Dunning insane asylum entered a smoke filled barn at the institution and led forty struggling horses to safety. By the time the fire department arrived the flames had broken through the roof. Attendants reported that few of the 3,577 patients in the asylum became intractable despite the obvious danger. The fire, which is believed to have been started by a demented patient, leveled two barns, destroying about 1,000 bushels of grain and 40 tons of hay, the summer crop from the Dunning farm. More than seventy-five patients assisted the firemen. It was a patient who discovered the blaze and turned in the alarm.

MR. SZYMCZAK'S PROBLEMS.

Chicago, Oct. 12.—May I say, with reference to the recently published letter of Marie L. Macklin, that the city of Chicago is in financial distress because of uncollected taxes for 1928, 1929, 1930, and 1931. These taxes are uncollected in part or in whole for two reasons: first, many taxpayers are unable to pay their taxes because of the financial depression that now exists, and second, many taxpayers refuse to pay their taxes because of legal technicalities that have arisen since the reassessment of 1928.

You will remember that there was a general reassessment of all real estate during 1928 and 1929, and during those two years no taxes were paid. The 1928 tax bills were sent to the people of Cook county in 1930. About that time the depression took hold and unemployment increased, bank failures followed close in succession, so that the taxpayer who had money in 1928, found himself without any money to pay his 1928 taxes in 1930.

An enormous amount of tax anticipation warrants (municipal securities), however, was sold for 1928, 1929, and 1930 in order to obtain cash with which to operate in anticipation of the taxes for those three years. These warrants must be retired at an interest rate of 6 per cent. That is the difficulty. On one hand we have those who cannot afford to pay or who will not pay their taxes, and on the other hand we have the outstanding obligations, the interest on which is accumulating daily, which must be retired and can be retired only through the collection of taxes.

A change in the present financial condition of the country will aid the average taxpayer in paying his taxes. The courts are hearing the protests filed and these will soon be disposed of. In the meantime the local governments must reduce their expenditures so as to reduce the tax bills for 1931 and subsequent years in order to restore confidence in government. That is the financial situation of Chicago's government today.

Facing that situation as controller of the city of Chicago, I am naturally kept very busy trying to do whatever I possibly can in order to aid in restoring a normal financial condition to the government of Chicago. Therefore the letter of your correspondent, though sincerely appreciated, places me in a position of one who has much work to do right here without looking for any additional burdens elsewhere.

M. S. SZYMCZAK,
Controller, City of Chicago.

A TATTERED FLAG.

Chicago, Oct. 11.—It's a wonder the government wouldn't spend a few dollars and buy a new flag for the federal building. The one they have at present is a disgrace to the city.

JAMES O'MALLEY.

THE SIMPSON-CHURCH CONTEST.

Chicago, Sept. 29.—I see that the contest between Messrs. Simpson Jr. and Church for the Republican nomination for congress in the 10th district has finally been decided in favor of James Simpson Jr.

I do not wish to say anything in support of either candidate, but I would like to say a few words in regard to the way the ballots were counted.

In one precinct in Evanston 321 ballots were thrown out because an inexperienced election clerk initialed the ballots instead of the judge of election. These voters were disfranchised through no fault or fraud on their part. It seems to me that the decision in this instance should be made according to the will of the voters and not on the error of an inexperienced election official.

I also understand that some ballots were thrown out because the election judge placed his initials on the front of the ballot instead of on the back. Is this giving the voters their right of franchise?

Decisions of this kind will lead people to feel that it is useless to vote. If our election laws permit such interpretation, it is time they were changed.

C. A. ARMBRUSTER.

THE NEW TRANSFERS.

Chicago, Oct. 5.—I see by today's TRIBUNE that the Chicago Surface Lines officials are satisfied with the new transfers. Well, why shouldn't they be?

I boarded a Broadway car southbound, transferring west on Irving Park, then south again on Clark street. At Belmont I transferred west on the first connecting car and asked for a transfer south on Southport.

The conductor refused to give me another transfer, saying that he could not do so because I had already made three transfers in the same zone. Therefore, if I wished to ride to my destination, Southport and Diversey, I would have to pay another fare on Southport. I walked.

Considering that I was traveling only south and west and also that I took the first connecting car in each case, why couldn't I get this transfer?

A SATISFIED LISTENER.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 11.—Now that the smoke of battle has cleared away and your sports section is devoted to football, boxing, and indoor sports, permit me on behalf of myself and my many friends who are dyed in the wool baseball fans to congratulate W-G-N on the Columbia broadcast of the world series. Incidentally, Chicago is to be congratulated on the acquisition by the White Sox of our favorite son, Al Simmons, and next summer there will be a flock of fans from Milwaukee visiting Chicago, not only to see the World's Fair but to see the White Sox come out on top.

OUR SECRET AMBITION

SCIENTIST TELLS OF PHOSPHORUS' ROLE IN OUR LIFE

Chemical Exists in Body in Combinations.

A few vitamins are no longer the only known essentials for a good diet. There are nearly 40 substances—minerals, proteins, and acids—without which a man cannot stay well. One of these is phosphorus, once thought of as merely fertilizer. Its role in life is described here.

BY DR. C. M. M'CAY,
[Laboratory of Animal Nutrition, Cornell University.]

Ithaca, N. Y., Oct. 16.—(AP)—In the bodies of all plants and animals we find phosphorus. This is the same chemical element that lights when we strike a match, but it does not occur in the body in this free condition.

It is always combined with other substances within the plant or animal. It is already known to exist in the body in several score of combinations. Only a few of those that probably exist have been discovered thus far, however.

If you examined a drop of blood in the company of a chemist you would find it as full of phosphorus compounds as your Christmas stocking used to be with candies. In the blood you would discover one part of the phosphorus floating around tightly wedded to a particle of fat. This fat-bound phosphorus of the blood plays many roles in the human body. It increases after a meal rich in cream or other fat.

Increases Flow of Milk.

If a cow is fed a diet with little fat this phosphorus compound decreases in her blood. At the same time she turns over less milk to the farmer, no matter how diligently he milks. On the other hand if the cow is fed plenty of fat this magic phosphorus compound increases and the milk pail also get heavier.

In all animal bloods, phosphorus also occurs in the form of free phosphate. This is the form similar to that found in some familiar baking powders. If an animal is fed a diet that is very low in phosphorus for a long period of time this phosphorus form decreases.

In South Africa where some of the soils are very poor in phosphorus, this form will only be present in a third of the normal amounts. These animals grow sick and will eat bones if they discover them on the ground. This form of phosphorus is low in the blood of many other animals if they are fed poorly.

Poor Bones Without It.

It may drop when babies develop rickets after they are poorly fed. This free phosphate is also low in the blood of rats that are on diets low in phosphorus. When this form of phosphorus is deficient in the blood the animal makes weak, puny bones that are low in minerals and easily broken.

There are many other forms of phosphorus in blood and these forms differ widely among the various animal species. We have found that fish blood is about three times as rich in phophorus as the blood of man. This accords with the old traditions of fish being a food rich in phosphorus.

Forms Much Alike.

The blood of the pigeon is the richest in phosphorus. It contains six times as much as that of man. The blood of the rat, kankaroo and dog is only slightly richer in phosphorus than that of man. That of the goat, cow and sheep is much poorer in phosphorus. The forms in which the phosphorus occurs in the blood of various species are much alike, however, in spite of the great variations in amount.

Without phosphorus matches would not light. Without phosphorus in the blood muscles cannot work, bones cannot be formed and milk cannot be secreted. Life as we know it cannot exist.

20,000 FASCISTS HAIL MUSSOLINI AS MAN OF HOUR

Duce Speaks to Cheering Black Shirts in Rain.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Oct. 16.—Twenty thousand Fascist Black Shirts, high state officials, and representatives of all the armed forces of the nation braved a heavy rain today to hear Premier Mussolini address them. They cheered as he called upon them to be steadfast to the principles of the Fascist revolution of 1922.

BENITO MUSSOLINI.

Il Duce appeared on a special platform which was erected a few steps from the entrance of the Palazzo Venezia. He was surrounded by members of the Fascist grand council, cabinet ministers, and the secretary of the Fascist party.

Asks Care for Labor.

Mussolini reminded the Fascist hierarchs that his command, as their leader, was that they should especially care for the laboring people and the younger generation appearing today for the first time as a full fledged element of the Fascist party.

Rome was aglow with lights tonight while the visting Black Shirts paraded the streets leading to Palazzo Venezia and called for Mussolini in the hope that he might yield to requests to appear on the balcony from his workroom.

Today's celebration was one of the features which Italy's citizenry is enjoying this month in the observance of the decennial of Fascism's seizure of power. A series of shows, conventions, parades, inaugurations, congresses, and concerts have been organized by the Fascist party.

The month's program has been designed to give tangible documentation of what ten years of Mussolini's dictatorial rule has accomplished for the material prosperity and spiritual organization of the country. Celebrations are focused in Rome but the echoes are also heard in the provinces where the manifestations are organized by the Fascist federal secretaries.

Arts and Professions Join.

The fête began with a convention of 10,000 writers, physicians, lawyers, engineers, architects, musicians, painters, sculptors and bookkeepers in Rome on Oct. 1. It was a display of the syndicates of artists and professional men who, for the most part, have been dissident to the principles of Fascism and have resisted regimentation. On the same day a series of agricultural expositions, including a fruit show, grain show, horse show, and a land draining and reclaimage show were opened.

The celebrations will end on Oct. 28, the anniversary of the convergence of the Black Shirt legions on Rome, when several thousand members of the voluntary Fascist militia legions, including a crippled legion, will be assembled in Rome for the final convention. Federal secretaries will assemble all Fascists on the public squares throughout the country and read a special decennial message which Mussolini will deliver to the Black Shirt convention in Rome. Throughout the day band concerts and community singing will be organized, bells will peal for half an hour, and all towns must be illuminated in the evening.

For Mussolini, the decennial will bring a piece of durable recognition in the form of a 300 ton marble obelisk, dedicated to Il Duce. It will be placed in the stadium in the new Mussolini forum, which is to be dedicated on Oct. 27.

Stress Aim of Fascism.

The rest of the program is aimed to bring to popular attention the strength, the policies, and the accomplishments of the Fascist régime.

These will be marked by ceremonies, inaugurating public works completed or nearly completed during the last ten years. These will include new canals in the Pontine marshes, south of Rome; the Monteferrato and Schinverin acqueduct; a new bridge connecting Venice with the mainland; the Turin-Milan autostrade; the Fiume-Trieste autostrade; the autostrade from Florence to the sea; excavated monuments and buildings of imperial Rome; the Mussolini forum; a railway from Rome to Viterbo; various tuberculosis hospitals in the provinces, and the new ministry of corporations.

On Oct. 27, in Rome, Mussolini will open the exposition of the Fascist revolution in the Exposition palace. It will be a display of relics, documents, newspaper clippings, and letters illuminating Fascism's early days from the end of the war until the seizure of power in 1922—a period of turbulence and social unrest in Italy.

Among the souvenirs of this exhibition will be an old bell from Fiume, which broke when on March 3, 1922, it was tolled so frantically to arouse the Fiume Fascisti against Zaralla, leader of the Fiume free state forces.

There wil lalso be a note of martyrology injected into the celebration on the same day. Mussolini will inaugurate, in the Littorio palace, the seat of Fascism in Rome, a votive chapel dedicated to the Black Shirts killed in the strife between 1919 and 1922 and afterwards.

IRISH MINISTERS GO HOME; TRADE WAR CONTINUES

De Valera Will Not Try Vote on Republic.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 16.—President Eamon de Valera and his ministers returned to Dublin from London tonight after failure to approach even the stage of negotiations with the British over the withheld land annuities and pensions amounting to $25,000,000 [at par] yearly which Britain claims is due them from the Irish Free State.

All that happened, THE TRIBUNE learns, during the two days of talks were statements of position by both sides, which proved so diametrically opposed that it was agreed that no basis for negotiation existed.

Status Remains Same.

De Valera declined to give THE TRIBUNE any statement this afternoon further than to say, "All is 'as you were.'" THE TRIBUNE understands that no new move is expected by Ireland.

De Valera will make a statement to the Dail Eireann Wednesday expressing genuine regret over the failure of a settlement and this is expected to be accepted by all parties. He will not try to have a general election on the issue of a republic, but will continue with his constructive program.

In the meantime the tariff war which has been throttling the farmers of both countries continues. British farmers, who need feeder cattle, are suffering as much as the Irish who have them to sell, but they will have to continue to suffer because the politicians cannot agree.

Might Accept Foreign Mediator.

The next move may be intervention by one of the dominions or even by a foreign power offering to act as a friendly intermediary. The Irish would be willing to entrust the justice of their case to any foreign tribunal, but object on principle to a tribunal selected solely from the British empire.

The matter of the governor generalship is likely to be settled within the next month. James McNeill does not formally quit until the end of this month and the new appointment then probably will be made. The emoluments of the office are likely to be cut considerably.

NEW SO. WALES SOLVENT AGAIN; RADICALS OUSTED

New Regime Cuts Heavy Load of Taxation.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SYDNEY, Australia, Oct. 16.—New South Wales, mother state of the commonwealth of Australia, has done a right-about face in its political and economic life since the downfall of the late Lang Labor government last May. The United Australian party government, now in power under the premiership of B. B. S. Stevens, in its few months' tenure of office has accomplished the amazing feat of converting a state deficit of £14,227,000 left by the Lang regime into one of £4,350,000 in the new budget just announced for the fiscal year to end next June 30. Premier Stevens also announced that New South Wales will have its budget fairly balanced before the end of 1933.

From Bankruptcy to Solvency.

Such a feat transforms New South Wales from a state of bankruptcy into one of solvency, it is pointed out. The new budget provides an appreciable reduction in rates of taxation, freight and passenger rates, and other forms of relief to the public. The importance of New South Wales' recovery prepares the way for national improvement.

Latest information is that J. T. Lang, former premier of the New South Wales labor government, which rode the state downhill to the £14,000,000 deficit, is to reenter national politics soon, but it is pointed out that he will have a big fight on his hands against the conservative labor forces unless he aligns himself with them. At present Lang is the leader of the minority labor opposition in the New South Wales parliament.

Plan New Cuts in Expenses.

The immediate program of the present New South Wales government is the balancing of the budget by further drastic cuts in expenditures, taxation relief to allow industries to relieve the unemployment situation, reduction of freight rates to primary producers, elimination of overlapping state departments, reduction of interest charges owing the state by municipalities and other public bodies, reduction of state grants to widows and other pensioners, reduction of the basic wage and curtailment of public service salaries, and, most important of all, to clean up the financial mess left by the Lang government.

Royal commissions, similar in scope and power to the American grand jury, are now in session in Sydney investigating alleged bribery and corruption of former cabinet ministers in the late Lang government in matters of dog race licenses, and the inroads of so-called "Chicago gambling machines" in clubs and saloons all over New South Wales.

Reveal Big Tax Load.

How New South Wales citizens have been loaded with taxation under the late Lang government may be gathered from the fact that "social service," such as family endowment, food relief and various pension allowances, cost about $12 per head in that state as against approximately $3 a head in Queensland, $6 in Victoria, $9 in South Australia and $10 in West Australia.

For the year ended June 30, 1932, the New South Wales railways lost £4,555,664. Under the new budget just announced by Premier Stevens the estimated loss for the current year is £1,976,300, showing an improvement of £2,579,364. It is also proposed to write down the capital of the railways to offset the high interest payments.

Plan Smaller Council.

Another immediate reform now in debate in the New South Wales parliament is the proposed change in the upper house [legislative council] from a membership of 96 or more to a maximum of 60. It is also proposed that the new upper house members will be elected in groups of 15 every two or three years instead of them being appointed by the premier. The upper house reform bill has already passed its second reading in both houses and needs only one more reading for it to become law.

The anticipated conversion of New South Wales' £12,000,000 loan in London, due on Nov. 1, will also assist the state in its program of economy.

$7,500,000 Welfare Fund Drive Will Start Tonight

The $7,500,000 drive of the Cook County Emergency Welfare fund to supply needs arising from other causes than unemployment will start tonight at a dinner in the Chicago club. More than 200 civic and business leaders will attend. The announcement was made yesterday by Robert A. Gardner, campaign chairman, who will preside at the dinner.

The speakers will include Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National bank; Edward L. Ryerson Jr., president of Joseph T. Ryerson & Son, Inc., and chairman of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission; A. D. Lasker, former chairman of the United States shipping board, and Samuel Goldsmith, executive director of the Jewish Charities of Chicago.

The preliminary gifts campaign, which is expected to produce a substantial part of the $7,500,000 sought, will be launched at the dinner. This drive will precede the general public solicitation, the date for which is expected to be set tonight.

The purpose of the dinner will be to inform the workers of the details of this year's campaign which, in contrast to last year's drive under the Joint Emergency Relief fund, will be concerned only with producing funds to meet the overload of existing relief and welfare organizations, Mr. Gardner said. Unemployment relief is to be left to state and federal fund dispensing agencies.

The $7,500,000 fund will apply to the regular charity work of established agencies for child care, care of the aged, free clinics, free hospitalization, maintenance of orphanages, and family relief where the need is complicated by sickness or other troubles in addition to unemployment.

Working under Mr. Gardner as associate chairmen in the preliminary gifts drive are Sewell L. Avery, president of the United States Gypsum company; Max Epstein, chairman of the General American Tank Car corporation; D. F. Kelly, president of The Fair; James Simpson, chairman of the board of the Commonwealth Edison company, and Mr. Traylor and Mr. Ryerson.

CHILE DISCOVERS IT IS HEAD OVER HEELS IN DEBT

Loans, Waste, Disorders Wreak Havoc.

BY NORMAN INGREY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Chile, Oct. 16.—Chileans today received their first national balance sheet in eight years. During the same period they have experienced 14 revolutions, 53 cabinets, and 11 presidents, but this is the first time they have been favored with a statement of how their tax money and foreign loans have been spent. Now that they know they wish they had never asked for it.

According to Don Julio Perez Canto, finance minister in the provisional constitutionalist regime, there is an accumulated budgetary deficit of slightly over 500 million pesos [about 35 million dollars], the internal bonded indebtedness amounts to nearly 900 million pesos [about 60 million dollars], and foreign loans have ascended to about three billion gold pesos [375 million dollars], or $34 per person. The foreign values of the deficit and internal bonded debts have been cut in half by the official depreciation of the peso a year ago.

Guaranteed Other Debts.

But the sad story does not end here. Apart from direct government loans the state guaranteed numerous municipal, railroad, and mortgage bank debts contracted abroad. These totaled 1 billion 150 million gold pesos [about 150 million dollars].

Peres, with the aid of his foreign advisers, has announced that the following debts abroad, according to national and including guarantees:

United States	$295,570,214.27
Great Britain	105,008,234.95
Europe [France, Switzerland, Germany, etc.]	84,971,500.00

Complete default was registered on these sums on July 31, 1931, and the unpaid interest so far amounts to 30 million dollars. The government, however, announced its determination to pay all debts directly and said there was an improvement in foreign trade and that economies had been effected in the domestic budget. For that purpose a state conversion bank had been created. Interest on internal bonds continues to be paid in depreciated pesos.

Loans Made by Ibanez.

Three-quarters of the foreign loans were received during the eight years of revolutionary dictatorship and nearly all of America's contribution came during that period. Most of the money figured in a special budget, apart from the ordinary administrative estimates, inaugurated during the régime of Dictator Ibanez. It was known as the public works budget and still figures in national economy, though it is now exclusively financed by the proceeds of the printing press.

Minister Peres indicated that while he had found gross extravagance in the handling of foreign money there had been no deliberate fraud. The loans were spent in a vast plan of public works. He has questioned whether the country possesses sufficient economic justification for such a huge amount of foreign confidence.

"At any rate," he said, "we will do our best to pay up."

Deficit Is Large.

The finance ministry has announced a deficit of 155 million paper pesos in the ordinary budget. The deficit of the special budget for public works will bring the total adverse figure to about 200 million pesos. To this amount, however, must be added a legacy of 350 million pesos, the accumulated deficit of previous years, making the grand total of 550 million paper pesos.

as fast as it was printed.

The depression, Peres's statement concluded, had exercised its influence on Chile, but the deplorable state of its treasury was due almost entirely to continual political disorder, ephemeral revolutionary government, and extravagant assays in state managed business.

'JEST' ON LOSS OF RINGS LEADS TO COURT SUIT

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 16.—[Special.]—Whether a remark asserted made by S. H. Semple, Pasadena millionaire, to Francis J. Verhaeren, former New York hotel man, following the loss of a valuable diamond ring at a party given by Elsie Janis here, was made with serious intent or was but a jest, is the main issue in a $50,000 damage suit brought against Semple by Varhaeren which is scheduled for trial tomorrow before Superior Judge Sproul.

Mrs. Louise H. Mitchell, daughter of Semple, lost the ring and Verhaeren asserts Semple took his wallet from his pocket and turning to Verhaeren declared: "You may as well take these things too. There is money in that wallet. Can you make $100,000 bail?"

Semple maintains the remark was made in jest. Verhaeren says it was no joke, the way Semple said it. Miss Janis gave testimony in a deposition which has not yet been placed in evidence.

GIRL 8 MONTHS IN COMA SHOWS SIGNS OF WAKING

Physicians attending Miss Patricia Maguire, 27 years old, 523 Clarence avenue, Oak Park, are confident that she will awake soon from what is said to be the longest slumber in the annals of medicine. For nearly eight months she has lain on her bed, a victim of sleeping sickness.

Miss Maguire first exhibited symptoms of the disease—an increasing drowsiness—on Jan. 19, and by Feb. 14 double vision had developed. She rapidly became unconscious, and from Feb. 24 until recently the coma has been practically uninterrupted.

In the last few days, however, she has shown unmistakable signs of improvement, physicians said. She has been able to turn over on the bed or to raise herself to a sitting posture. She tries to talk, and smiles when her mother asks her to.

Miss Maguire has been fed every two hours for four months and her position has been changed every two hours. Durin gthe summer she was subjected to sun baths on the front porch and more recently to the rays of a sun lamp.

BEG YOUR PARDON

In yesterday's Metropolitan section of THE TRIBUNE, it was stated that Mrs. Walter Howe Miller donated $5,000 to La Rabida Jackson park sanitarium. The amount was $50,000. Major gifts which were not mentioned in the item were: Mrs. E. W. Hutchinson $5,000 and C. R. Jennings $2,000.

TAG DAY HALTED BY RAIN TO BE RESUMED TODAY

Efforts will be made today to make up for the damage done a worthy cause a week ago when rain upset the tagging activities of some 10,000 women seeking the contributions permitted once a year by the city council for the Children's Benefit league. After the downpour of last Monday, officials of the league appeared before the council and received permission to resume the tagging for the benefit of fifty institutions in the city caring for dependent boys and girls.

Taggers stationed in many parts of the city disbanded when the rain threatened to continue all day, a weather condition seldom encountered by the league in many years of making street collections. The income from the cannisters carried by the taggers constitutes the major, and in some cases the entire, income for support of the wards of these homes during the ensuing twelve months.

Mrs. Wilfred Reynolds, president of the league, yesterday emphasized the drastic need confronting these homes and urged that Chicagoans not permit the delay to result in a material reduction in contributions so badly needed.

Attention - Mr. W. E. Donahue

Gentlemen:

The results from our three column by 140 line advertisement, which ran only in last Sunday's Tribune, were phenomenal.

We sold in excess of 4,500 pairs of Hosiery on Monday. It was by far the biggest single Hosiery Day in our history. I cannot recall any three day Christmas rush to compare with this one day's selling, for units sold.

The gratifying part of it all was that ninety percent of the Hosiery sold, was sold over the counter, which is a far greater percentage than we had anticipated; fortunately, we were prepared to handle the tremendous response.

Our past experience with the pulling power of the Chicago Tribune has taught us to be prepared.

Yours very truly,

LANE BRYANT

ON Sunday, October 2, Lane Bryant ran the accompanying advertisement in the Chicago Tribune. It was a relatively small ad—three columns by 140 lines. It appeared in no other Chicago newspaper.

"The results . . . were phenomenal," writes Emanuel Winkelman, manager of Lane Bryant.

"We sold in excess of 4,500 pairs of hosiery on Monday. It was by far the biggest single hosiery day in our history. I cannot recall any three-day Christmas rush to compare with this one day's selling, for units sold.

"The gratifying part of it all was that 90% of the hosiery sold, was sold over the counter, which is a far greater percentage than we had anticipated; fortunately, we were prepared to handle the tremendous response."

"Our past experience with the pulling power of the Chicago Tribune has taught us to be prepared."

The facts speak for themselves! If your merchandise is not selling as it should, place your advertising in the medium which reaches Chicago's largest audience of woman buyers.

Daily and Sunday, the Chicago Tribune can help you win volume sales at low cost. Without aid from any other advertising medium whatever, the Tribune can do the job. It not only has by far the largest coverage of Chicago and suburbs of any Chicago newspaper, but has in addition the reader-interest and reader-confidence necessary to translate this coverage into immediate, profitable buying action.

Terribly Sick From Gas, Acid. All Ended Now

Mrs. E. M. Converse of Erie, Pa., says, "I was always tired out and troubled with a lot of gas. Every night I would be awfully sick. I began using ACIDINE and it did me much good. I surely am feeling fine now—tired feeling and gas and acid all gone. I am a changed woman."

Just another of thousands who are astonished at the way ACIDINE succeeds when other known remedies fail. The reason is it is different from other medicines. ACIDINE contains Japtase, which, in laboratory tests, digested 800 times its own weight of certain heavy, starchy foods that cause trouble. ACIDINE stops burning acid, soothes irritated stomach and intestinal linings, ends gas, headache, sleeplessness from acidity and helps digest starchy foods and meats.

Don't run chances of dangerous painful troubles from acidity. Get ACIDINE today from your druggist and note quick relief from sourness, pain and belching. You can eat, drink and smoke as you like. Maker guarantees results that satisfy you or money back.

Noted Mutiny of the Bounty Comes to Life

Island Authors Pen South Sea Thriller.

BY AL CHASE.

"Mutiny on the Bounty," by Charles Nordhoff and James Norman Hall. [Atlantic Monthly Press—Little-Brown.]

ONE of the sea's greatest thrillers, the revolt of the crew of His Majesty's ship, Bounty, back in 1789, has at last been taken down off the history shelf, dusted with gorgeous, lovely writing and laid in the lap of the lover of smashing adventure, by Charles Nordhoff and James Norman Hall, in "Mutiny on the Bounty." The dry, hard and oftimes revolting facts of this strange old south sea tragedy have been transmitted into a fictionized historical tale that glows with colorful action, characterization and romance.

CHARLES NORDHOFF.

The recapture of the salty thrills of this famous old sea epic for the modern vicarious adventurer [for some strange reason heretofore overlooked by fiction writers] was done by these two Americans on the very island round which the mutiny revolved—Tahiti. Both Nordhoff and Hall have lived on south sea islands since their war days fourteen years ago.

Never, except perhaps in pirate annals, has a harder boiled, more tyrannical and brutal sea captain than William Bligh bullied his subordinates into open revolt.

Most readers of the sea know about the mutiny of the Bounty. Probably no other marine episode contains such a dazzling array of elements of the perfect adventure story as does this ocean epic. It has every thrill the popular type of blue water fiction demands—and more.

The Bounty was sent to the south seas by the English government to get breadfruit plantings for development in the West Indies. Captain Bligh's brutality, however, led to mutiny and seizure of the ship during the return voyage.

He and eighteen men were forced into a boat, given provisions and the mutineers sailed away. Bligh then made his remarkable voyage of 3,618 miles to Timor, in the East Indies.

Meanwhile the mutineers, after battles with hostile natives on various islands, sailed back to Tahiti, left those who wanted to stay—both mutineers and loyal men who had refused to join in the revolt but for whom there was no room in Bligh's overcrowded boat—and with only sixteen officers and men sailed away to Pitcairn island, where some of their descendants still live.

And then H. M. S. Pandora, with a captain almost as brutal as Bligh, brings more tragedy into the picture. When Bligh reached England and told of the mutiny, the Pandora was sent to Tahiti. Both mutineers and loyal men living on the island were seized and placed in irons, while for months the ship searched the south seas for the Bounty.

But again tragedy intervened. The Pandora was wrecked on the great barrier reef of Australia. The survivors, like Bligh, suffered the terrors of an open voyage almost equal to his and, ironically enough, along almost the same route to his destination—Timor.

In England the prisoners—both mutineers and loyal men—were tried and several were hanged. Our hero, though condemned to death, was later proved innocent and became a sea captain under Nelson.

With this perfect plot Nordhoff and Hall have taken few liberties. With one of the midshipmen, Roger Byam, as their hero, they've written a stunning story of adventure that will thrill youngster and grownup alike. It's a stirring odyssey of the south seas, beautifully written; its tragedy lightened by the romance one expects when tropical Tahiti is the background.

Ellery Sedgwick, editor of the Atlantic Monthly, tells in a foreword about the authors and their book and how he suggested the idea of turning this gorgeous plot into a novel.

"Mutiny on the Bounty" is the October selection for the Book of the Month club.

THE STAGE

INA CLAIRE, who is planning to return to the stage after several years in Hollywood, has withdrawn from the cast of the play called "Nine Pine Street," now in rehearsal. Her successor will be Sylvia Field, whose last Chicago appearance was in the comedy, "Many a Slip," given at the Cort theater in the spring of 1930.

Broadway gossips are saying that Miss Claire had a disagreement with her managers, the firm of Ray and Hewes. Miss Claire, however, states that she believed the rôle did not suit her, and that she will remain under the management of Ray and Hewes until a satisfactory vehicle is found for her.

"Nine Pine Street" deals with the Lizzie Borden murder case, a New England mystery of the 1890s, the details of which are frequently retold. The central figure in that affair was a demure spinster, the victims were members of her family, butchered while they slept. Miss Borden was tried for the crimes and acquitted for lack of evidence, although there were no clews that pointed on any other direction. The play will begin performances in Philadelphia this mornth.

Capt. Ralph Emerson will be in charge of the performances on the show boat "Dixiana" when that craft docks on the south bank of the Chicago river, between State and Dearborn street, next month. He has been managing show boats on the Mississippi and Ohio rivers for more than forty years. "No Mother to Guide Her," first staged in Chicago in the early '90s, will be his opening bill. Other plays in the repertory of Capt. Emerson's troupe are: "Brother Against Brother," "The Price She Paid," "The Lure of the City," "Her First False Step," "The Two Orphans," "The Call of the Cumberlands," "Nellie the Beautiful Cloak Model," and "Why Girls Leave Home."

The late Florenz Ziegfeld's musical comedy, "Show Boat," is now having a prosperous engagement in Boston and is a possibility for the Chicago season. William Kent will succeed Charles Winninger in the rôle of the captain of the Cotton Blossom at tonight's performance.

Four plays of this fall's crop ended their Broadway careers last Saturday night. They were: "Best Years," "The Stork Is Dead," "The Other One," and "Bidding High." C. C.

Increased Relief Demands Shown by Jewish Charities

A booklet published by the Jewish Charities of Chicago telling how the organization is meeting the increasing needs in such fields as hospitalization, child care, care of the aged and family welfare work, is just off the press. The Jewish Charities headquarters is at 1500 Selden street.

The Jewish social service bureau spends almost a half million dollars in normal years, the booklet explains. Last year, 6,563 families were served at a cost of $301,277.

The Michael Reese hospital and the Mandel clinic received in contributions from the Jewish Charities in 1931 a total of $310,295 toward its $1,072,312 budget. Mount Sinai hospital received $95,750 toward its $306,838 budget. The Winfield sanitorium was given $58,100 toward a $95,402 budget.

"More than 1,100 children have gone through the portals of the Chicago Home for Jewish Orphans," says the report. "In 1931 the Jewish Charities provided $23,244 toward the support of this organization.

"The Marks Nathan Jewish Orphan Home is a haven of refuge and of training. More than 1,200 children have come to the home for care and 230 children are residents now. The charities provided $74,114 for this institution last year. About $113,000 a year is spent by the Jewish Home Finding society, placing children in foster homes and aiding in keeping children in their own homes."

Good Morning!

Here's a picture to delight the hearts of fight fans—and all fans who like good, swift, clean movies ably directed and packed with capable acting.

If "Madison Square Garden" means little more than a name to you, as it does to me, this photoplay gives you insight as to just what the great stadium is dedicated to and what goes on in its arena and the offices and dressing rooms adjacent. You will see again some old timers who have mad ring history—Mike Donlin, Tod Sloan, Jack Sharkey, Jack Johnson and others—and get a peek at w. k. sports writers, among 'em Westbrook Pegler and Paul Gallico. Interesting?

So's the story interesting. It's about a grand, on-the-level old fight manager who comes back to New York after an absence of years to get matches for a couple of boys he knows have the goods. There's Eddie Burke (Jack Oakie), who thinks Doc Williams has the makin's of a middleweight champion, and Brassy Randall, who can wrestle like nobody's business. Doc's getting along fine with his protégés, when, lo, out of a clear sky he's offered the job of matchmaker for Madison Square Garden! As a matchmaker can't be a manager, he declines the post. The boys hear about the sacrifice and leave him cold, declaring they're tired of his "old-fashioned methods" and intend to get themselves a new manager. Doc accepts the offered post. He's on the job when Eddie comes up for his big fight with a crooked contender. . . . Never mind about the rest of the yarn.

William Collier Sr. is absolutely swell as Doc. There's a great actor for you! Thomas Meighan delights your soul as Carley, manager of the Garden. Only trouble about him is you don't see enough of him. Jack Oakie, Warren Hymer, Robert Elliott, Zasu Pitts, Marian Nixon et al. are as you desire them.

"Madison Square Garden" has plenty of suspense, laughs, dialogue that clicks, and a rousing fight.

The Rev. G. G. Moore Installed as Dean of New Procathedral

The Very Rev. Gerald Gratten Moore was installed yesterday as dean of the newly designated St. Luke's procathedral of the Episcopal diocese of Chicago. Impressive ceremonies marked the formal inauguration of the Evanston church under the new cathedral plan.

The service of installation was a choral Eucharist, with the new dean as celebrant. The Rev. James McNeal Wheatley acted as deacon and the venerable Frederick G. Deis subdeacon. The master of ceremonies was Samuel C. Summers. The sermon was preached by the Rt. Rev. George Craig Stewart, bishop of Chicago and rector of St. Luke's procathedral. Dean Moore preached his first sermon at St. Luke's yesterday afternoon at choral evensong.

Dean Moore comes to Evanston from the Church of the Advent, Logan Square, Chicago, where he was rector for fifteen years, during which he built this church from a struggling mission to one of the outstanding Episcopal parishes in Chicago.

Dean Moore is the son of the late Canon H. G. Moore, who was connected with the old Cathedral of SS. Peter and Paul on West Washington boulevard. He is a graduate of Northwestern university and the Western Theological seminary, and was ordained to the priesthood in 1912 by the late Bishop Charles P. Anderson.

MINUTE MYSTERY CAN YOU SOLVE IT?

BY H. A. RIDLEY

Dr. Fordney is professor of criminology at a famous university. His advice is often sought by the police of many cities when confronted with particularly baffling cases. This problem has been taken from his casebook covering hundreds of criminal investigations.

Try your wits on it! It takes but ONE MINUTE to read. Every fact and every clew necessary to its solution are in the story itself—and there is only one answer. How good a detective are you?

THE DEATH OF COL. THOMPSON.

"We were standing in the lobby about 3:15 when he said he was going back to the suite to leave his diamond—that the setting was loose. When he hadn't returned in fifteen minutes I decided to see what had detained him. I found him lying there on the floor and called the house physician, but it was too late."

Prof. Fordney saw the smallness of the fourth finger back of the knuckle on the right hand and inquired, "Is this where he wore his famous diamond, Mr. Davis?"

"Yes—but where is it?"

Observing a spot of blood on the bath tub and the body a few feet distant, Fordney asked, "Did you move him?"

"Yes, slightly—wanted to be sure he wasn't beyond aid. I've known the colonel for years and except for his paralyzed left arm, he was the strongest, healthiest man of my acquaintance. The inspector's wrong—he didn't commit suicide."

"Well," replied Fordney, "the wound could have been self-inflicted and his fingerprints are on the gun."

"His ring certainly isn't here. I've looked everywhere," called Sergt. Reynolds. "Say, where's his valet?"

"He had the evening off, we were going to the theater."

A few minutes later, complying with Fordney's request, Davis explained, "There, that's how I found him."

"He must have been standing on that bath mat, directly in front of the mirror when shot. Odd the key is on the outside of the door. Yes, you're right, Davis, I don't believe either, he committed suicide."

WHY?

[The solution to Saturday's mystery appears on page 30 today; the solution to today's mystery will be published in THE TRIBUNE tomorrow.]

Social Agencies Call for 175 Autos and Drivers to Volunteer

Mrs. Agnes K. Deutsch, chairman of the volunteer motor corps of the Council of Social Agencies, yesterday announced that 175 volunteer cars and drivers are needed immediately to work at the various relief agencies this winter. Last winter eighty-six women volunteered for this work, carrying caseworkers in their cars in order to enable them to cover more ground.

Mrs. Clara Paul Paige, director of the field service division of the Cook county bureau of public welfare, said the need this winter will be much greater than last year's. Any woman driving her own car, or who will lend her car and chauffeur for even a half day a week, is asked to help, she said.

New Clothes for Evening Going Elegant

Fringes, Fluting, and Laces Lend Exotic Splendor.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

With a magnificent gesture of defiance of dismal depression arguments concerning the cautious way to spend a clothes allowance, new evening clothes have gone elegant! Fringe, fluting, fragile laces, fabrics with an exotic splendor, together with furs, fashion some of the most beautiful evening costumes ever designed to charm a clothes conscious shopper.

If you must shop slowly and with a studied restraint, this is no year for you to brag about your control, for the shrewdest shopper will forget everything at the first sight of these seductive new evening glories.

Breath-taking models of suave, cream-ivory broadcloth, that cling tightly to the silhouette, have shoulder bands of luxurious rich brown mink. A long evening wrap of the same ravishing material sweeps in long, picturesque lines way down around the ankles of the discerning person who buys this costume without a second of indecision. A wide, high flattering collar of mink frames the face and completes this regal ensemble.

Crinkled crepe is used for so many of the newest evening ensembles . . . a crinkled silk crepe that is so rough and wrinkled that one gasps as each new collection of this smart stuff is featured. Crinkled crepe evening gowns are marvels of line and classic simplicity. They are fashioned intricately and skillfully with bias seams and form revealing bias sections over hips and waistline. The bodices are merely a collection of intertwined straps and bands, but the result is perfection.

Some of these extremely simple gowns are contrasted with shoulder shawl capes that drip with long fringes. A clever cape twister can do grand things with these feminine extras; you can swathe your throat high around your windpipe, you can tie a cape gypsy fashion over the side shoulder, or demurely and with a devastating effect cross it over your chest.

Double flutings that edge sleeves and swirl madly around the full lower edge of the long skirt are something to run a fever over. Youthful addicts of picture perfect evening clothes are buying these models with a gay and reckless abandon. One knockout model that blissfully uses yards and yards of this quaint Victorian fluting is effective enough to stop the most blase youngster. It is made of a gorgeous golden yellow silk crepe, and is long, and slim, and slender, with the wide swirling edge of the skirt outlined with thick, wide, rustling double flutings.

Another yellow and red combination features a simple gown of this golden yellow, made with a wide shoulder section that ends glamorously in two long sweeping ends weighted with yellow fringe. A red sash winds around the slender waistline, and what a clever cloth hound can accomplish with this dress in the way of staggering a flock of hitherto bored spectators is something to write home about.

A Job a Day

Every little improvement we make in our home right now helps us—and the other fellow, too.

Rattling windows on the second floor of a house, or anywhere in the home for that matter, are bad enough in the summer time, but in winter, when any rattle shrieks out loudly that the cold air is finding entrance, they are even more than merely annoying—they are an actual extravagance. Your local carpenter or handy man can settle this trouble with a few minutes' work at each window. Usually the trouble has been caused by sash and window stop shrinkage or by too loose setting of window stop. At any rate, the remedy is no more complicated than the cause and a few hours' work at most should fix all the windows in a house.

Fashionable Audience to Hear Lucrezia Bori Concert Tonight

Girl Scouts of Chicago's Relief Fund Will Benefit from Sale of Boxes and Main Floor Seats.

BY THALIA.

THERE is every indication that the brilliant Lucrezia Bori, who made so many friends in Chicago during the summers she sang in the Ravinia Opera company, will be greeted by a large and fashionable audience tonight when she opens a series of five concerts at Orchestra hall. Besides the popularity of Bori and the other artists in the concert series, an additional reason for society's sponsorship is the fact the relief fund of the Girl Scouts of Chicago will benefit from the sale of the boxes and main floor seats.

A committee of women under the chairmanship of Mrs. William S. Monroe has been working since the early summer on the disposal of these tickets and has succeeded in persuading friends of the Girl Scouts as well as fashionable music patrons to subscribe.

This evening's performance will be preceded by numerous dinner parties for box guests.

Mrs. Charles R. Lindsay Jr., a member of the national board of the Girl Scouts, is to give a dinner at the Tavern for Mrs. Frederick Edey of New York, national president of the Girl Scouts, who has been visiting Mrs. Walter Cavanagh of Kenosha, the Great Lakes regional Girl Scouts director. The guests will include Mrs. Charles R. Lindsay III., Mrs. Haskell Bliss, Mrs. W. H. Alford of Kenosha, and Mrs. Cavanagh.

Notables on List of Concert Boxholders.

Mr. and Mrs. Edson Dick and Mr. and Mrs. W. Paul McBride will be box guests of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Blake Dick. Mrs. J. Ogden Armour, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Chalmers, and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest R. Graham are sharing a box. Mr. and Mrs. Lester Armour will have a box with Mr. Armour's mother, Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine, who returned last week from her summer estate at Southampton, L. I., and Mrs. Waller Borden will be accompanied by her son-in-law and daughter, the Adlai E. Stevensons.

Other boxholders include Mrs. Cyrus Hall McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Schweppe, the Rt. Rev. B. J. Shell, Mr. and Mrs. James Scott Kemper, Mrs. Louis E. Laflin, and Mrs. Cyrus Bentley.

Mrs. Kersey Coates Reed is to give a dinner dance on Dec. 23 at the Casino, to present her daughter, Miss Mary Reed and her niece, Miss Jean Schweppe, the Charles H. Schweppes' daughter, to society. Neither of the girls is to have a tea beforehand.

Because her lovely new house in Lake Forest was completed only about a month ago, Mrs. Reed hopes to remain in the country a few weeks longer. She has not set any definite date for moving back to town and her return will depend on the weather.

Mrs. Joseph Leiter, who spent last week in Washington after having been at Hot Spring, Va., for several weeks, is to sail on Wednesday to join her mother, Mrs. John R. Wil-

Years Making Heifetz Still Better Artist

BY EDWARD MOORE.

One can hardly say that the amazing, dashing brilliance of Jascha Heifetz's violin playing grows brighter with advancing years, but that is because he had everything of that sort from the beginning. From the first time that he began playing in America it frequently seemed as though he had an extra assortment of fingers on his left hand.

He is, however, a better artist as the years go on, as he proceeded to prove in Orchestra hall yesterday afternoon, less inclined to regard his unbelievable skill as an end to be admired for its own sake, more disposed toward telling his audience exactly what the composer of the particular work had in mind.

He made an admirable start with the Grieg C minor sonata for violin and piano which he played with his accompanist, Isidor Achron, and an even better continuation with the Mozart A major concerto. This was playing of a high order. One has long since given up trying to assemble adjectives regarding his tone and his technic. That can be left to the new audiences that he finds in the countries he visits. The world tour that he has just ended is his fourth.

It used to be said that travel broadens the mind. It also seems to broaden violin playing.

Jan Chiapusso, Chicago pianist, gave a recital at Kimball hall yesterday afternoon which proved that the art of piano playing is a long way from vanishing from the earth. His program was unexpectedly brief: by the time Kimball hall was reached after a contemplation of Mr. Heifetz's violinistic art, Mr. Chiapusso was on his final group, six Chopin études. These he played both brilliantly and with manner. It was so satisfactory a performance that the audience urgently invited him to play more.

The Murder of Caroline Bundy

By ALICE CAMPBELL.

SYNOPSIS.

Neil Starkey, American biographer, is engaged by Caroline Bundy to compile the life and letters of her late father, a famous English biologist. Miss Bundy is in poor health and acting peculiarly. She has hired a photographer, named Tilbury, as butler and he and his wife, an ill bred pair, hold a strange influence over her. Natasha Andreyev, Caroline's half Russian niece, acts as her aunt's secretary. She detests the Tilburys. Caroline tells Neil that her father, a man of science, was also a mystic. Caroline and the Tilburys hold nightly meetings in the library. Giles Gisborne, vicar of a nearby parish, and his sister Rachel are friends of Neil's. Neil is attracted to Natasha, but is baffled by her odd behavior. She is giving money to a man she meets secretly. Caroline promises to visit Emily Braselton, an old friend, in Paris. Natasha drives her to London. Natasha returns a few days later and tells Neil that her aunt gave her a pearl necklace, which she sold. She receives a wire which Caroline sent from London asking her to look for an alligator bag left in the car. The bag is not found. Caroline doesn't reach Paris. The police are notified. Her body is found in a ditch near her estate. She'd been brutally murdered. The coroner's inquest is held.

INSTALLMENT XXXI.

THE VERDICT.

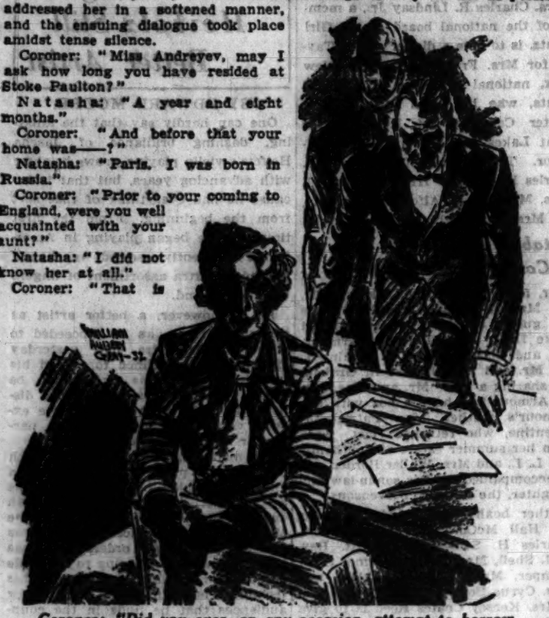
The matter of the telephone call was thoroughly discussed. Tilbury repeated the fragmentary sentences he had heard, admitting, though with hesitation, his feeling of dissatisfaction about the identity of the speaker.

Coroner: "That call has now been traced. It was put through from the main Victoria postoffice at five-thirty on Friday, 20th March, but the details concerning it are as yet incomplete. I suggest that the voice you heard used words similar to these: 'I am speaking for Miss Bundy.' Is that so?"

Tilbury: "O, no, sir—that wasn't it at all. What I did catch plain as plain was: 'This is Miss Bundy speaking.' It was about all that was clear. The voice after that was very faint as if the person didn't want to speak up—or else it was a bad connection. I can't say which."

Many additional questions followed without eliciting anything of importance. The coroner dismissed the witness and ran his eye over the list. Neil saw Emily Braselton lean forward to fix a compelling gaze on him, but he remained stolidly oblivious. A second later, with some hesitation over the foreign name, he called Natasha Andreyev.

The coroner, plainly anxious to make things as easy for her as possible, addressed her in a softened manner, and the ensuing dialogue took place amidst tense silence.



Coroner: "Did you ever, on any occasion, attempt to borrow money from her?"

Coroner: "Miss Andreyev, may I ask how long you have resided at Stoke Paulton?"

Natasha: "A year and eight months."

Coroner: "And before that your home was——?"

Natasha: "Paris. I was born in Russia."

Coroner: "Prior to your coming to England, were you well acquainted with your aunt?"

Natasha: "I did not know her at all."

Coroner: "That is rather strange. How did it happen?"

Natasha: "There was a family estrangement, caused by my mother's marriage. It was only when my mother died that my aunt looked me up and offered me the post of secretary-chauffeuse."

Coroner: "Just what were your duties?"

Natasha: "I drove the car, of course, and I wrote all her letters for her, except a few personal ones. I did most of the housekeeping, too, and looked after the dogs. For six months, after the old bailiff died last summer, I collected the rents from the cottages on the estate and saw to all the tenants' complaints."

Coroner: "Can you suggest any possible explanation of the murder, or account in any way for the body's being in Bristol?"

Natasha: "No. If she had any association with Bristol, she never mentioned it."

Asked to relate what happened when she and Miss Bundy reached London, she did so collectedly, making it plain that but for the stop at Marlborough for lunch, her aunt had not quitted the car till they arrived at St. James' square. On the way in they had passed by the flat where the deceased was to spend the night and left a small case containing her night things. From there they drove to Victoria station to deposit her steamer trunk at the cloakroom, where it was to be picked up the following day. Then they went on to the London library.

Coroner: "It has been ascertained that Miss Bundy failed to enter the library building. Can you give any reason for this?"

Natasha: "It has since occurred to me that she must have missed her bag—the one described in her telegram to me—directly she got out of the car, and that she tried to catch me. I knew nothing about the bag, of course, till I got back to Glastonbury on Monday and found the message waiting for me."

Coroner: "And the bag was not in the car?"

Natasha: "No."

Coroner: "Would the bag's disappearance mean that the deceased was left without money and railway ticket?"

Natasha explained that this was not the case, also that she had no idea what her aunt kept in this particular bag. The telegram was now produced, read, and the place and time of dispatch commented on.

Coroner: "You say you did not receive this message till Monday evening. Was that because you passed the entire week-end in London?"

Natasha: "Yes. I was given a month's holiday with no stipulations except that I was to drive the car back to Glastonbury some time or other to hand it in for repairs. My aunt knew I would go to the garage, but probably not to the house. That is why she sent the telegram to the garage."

Coroner: "And you had positively not the least intimation of anything wrong till you learned of her nonarrival in Paris?"

Natasha: "Not the slightest. The news came as a great shock."

The coroner pondered. "Well, Miss Andreyev, unless the jury would like to put any questions to you, I don't know that there is anything more I can do——Eh? What's that?" He broke off pettishly as the sergeant before mentioned tiptoed towards him and whispered in his ear.

In decided annoyance he picked up the neglected chit previously handed to him, and with an air of resentment unfolded it. As he read its contents his expression altered, became both puzzled and displeased. When he spoke it was in a much less confident tone than he had formerly employed.

Coroner: "Before you sit down, I had better, I think, ask you one or two questions about—er—your personal relations with the deceased. Were you or she on—er—agreeable terms with each other?"

Natasha: "Perfectly."

Coroner: "Any little—er—differences, or disagreements?"

Natasha: "No serious ones. We really got on very well."

Coroner: "Quite so. H'm. . . . Now I am afraid I must put a rather delicate query. Did you ever, on any occasion, attempt to borrow money from her?"

Natasha: "Certainly not! I never dreamed of such a thing!"

Coroner: "Did you let it be known that financial assistance might be welcome to some person in whom you were interested?"

Natasha (coldly): "I don't quite know what you mean. I did once tell her about a person known to us both who was in difficulties, hoping she would offer to do something about it. As she showed no concern, I let the matter drop."

Coroner: "Are you sure this individual you mention did not apply to her in person?"

Natasha (flushing scarlet with some asperity): "As sure as I can be of most things. If so, I never heard about it."

Coroner: "Very good. That will do. Would the jury like to put any inquiries to the witness?"

Apparently the jury had nothing to say, and after waiting quietly for a moment or two, Natasha resumed her seat.

The tottering bridge had been crossed. The Gisbornes looked intensely relieved, and Neil, to some extent, shared their feeling, only he could not help fearing Natasha had acted unwisely in keeping back what might be discovered before the inquiry ended.

After a vast deal of unimportant evidence, the coroner summed up and instructed the jury to retire. Whispers ran round, guesses were hazarded as to whether or not an adjournment would be ordered. Those most concerned sat silent, tensely awaiting the outcome.

The door opened, the line of nondescript jurors filed back. The foreman, a small, dusky Welshman, stepped forward impressively. With a great sigh of thankfulness Neil heard the verdict of wilful murder by person or persons unknown.

A minute later, in the crowd, he came face to face with Emily Braselton, whose eyes, muddled with baffled rage, confronted him without the least recognition. In a flash he knew the truth. It was she who had sent that note up to the coroner, she who had proposed the line of investigation which might so easily have led to trouble for the girl she disliked. Now she was livid with fury against the incompetent who had had his chance and let it slip through his fingers.

Inhuman Mate Drives Wife to Breaking Point

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Following is the portrait of a husband any woman would be justified in turning in for a more human model. She used to be known by the nickname Happy. But not any more! Not for a few years now have the wellsprings of cheer been fed by a loving word, deed, or action.

Days go by when hardly a word issues from her husband's lips—except to the boy, his son, whom he does seem to have some affection for. Always grouchy. Won't have friends come to their home. Does not want to go anywhere. Never a compliment, a tender word. Praise and appreciation isn't in the man. As for a gift—in nine years of married life the woman has received one box of candy and that when she was in the hospital.

Her claim to a worthier form of treatment lies in her perfect housekeeping skill, her good cooking, the way she keeps her husband's clothes up, meals always ready right on the dot, and good meals too. She is home waiting his coming—and nothing would make her happier than to be able to fly to him with love in her heart and kisses on her lips for him. But—she doesn't dare. He would say, as he has said, "Don't be a fool!" or "You're nutty!" And she hasn't sacrificed her looks, either. She knows that keeping up her personal self is as important as keeping up her home. But for what? she asks. For a man who seems to think he has a robot in his home?

Well, here's what happens when a woman is put on a long term starvation diet. The boy is 4½ now. When he is old enough and before the woman gets too old herself she is going to get a job where at least she'll get a pay envelope and a "Good morning" nod from the boss. For board and room in a house, the game she's working at now isn't worth the wear and tear on the disposition. Hers is beginning to sour from association with sourness.

"I have missed the tender sweetness of what married life should mean. I'm not a hopeless romantic. But I can't see why so good a grade of service as I am able to offer should bring in so little reward."

Anyway, gentlemen, the above gives you a peek into the mind of a woman married to a dumb mate. [And we mean D-U-M-B.]

Doris Blake Answers

Question of Sacrifice.

"Dear Miss Blake: I chum with a fellow who loves the girl I love, but I get along much better with the girl than he. Should I give up the girl so he can go with her and keep our friendship? BLONDIE."

It's a question whether the girl's friendship is worth the sacrifice of a real love affair.

liams, in Ireland. Mrs. Williams sailed about 10 days ago and is visiting her son-in-law and other daughter, United States minister to Ireland and Mrs. Frederick A. Sterling. Mrs. Leiter's niece, Miss Audrey Campbell, who makes her home with the Leiters, went abroad in the late summer and may spend most of the winter with the Sterlings in Dublin, but Mrs. Leiter plans to return to this country in about six weeks. Her subdeb daughter, Miss Nancy Leiter, is a student at a convent in Philadelphia.

The Chicago Public School Art society, which does such splendid work under the guidance of its president, Mrs. Walter S. Brewster, is to benefit again this year from a tea and private view of the opening autumn exhibition at the Chester galleries. It will be held on Friday afternoon from 4 until 6 o'clock.

Brewsters Returning to City Early This Year.

Although Mr. and Mrs. Brewster usually remain at their Lake Forest estate until the first of November, they are coming in next week because of the wedding of their nieces, Miss Polly Perry, and Harold Mason Kneedler, on Saturday at St. Chrysostom's church. The Brewsters are to give the bridal dinner on Friday evening at their town residence at 2704 Lake View avenue.

The popular Miss Perry and her fiancé have been fêted at pre-nuptial parties ever since his arrival from Manila a few weeks ago. This evening two of her bridesmaids, Miss Patty McCormick and Miss Betty Brown are giving a dinner dance for them in the Astor street apartment of Miss McCormick's mother, Mrs. Robert Hall McCormick, who returned last week with her family from Bar Harbor. There will be about 40 guests. Frederick H. Rawson Jr. and Kenneth L. Rawson will be hosts at a dinner and theater party on Wednesday evening, and on Thursday Miss Perry will give her spinster dinner at the residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. Newton Perry, while Mr. Kneedler is holding his bachelor dinner elsewhere.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bryant Returning from London.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Watson are looking forward to a visit from Mrs. Armour's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bryant of London and their daughter, Miss Haroldine Bryant, in mid-November. The Bryants, who have lived abroad for more than a decade, are sailing the first of next month and after a few days here will go to Florida for the winter.

Miss Bryant has just finished her schooling, but is not to be a debutante this season. The Armours are reluctant to close their summer estate in Lake Forest and probably will not move into their apartment at 209 Lake Shore drive for another fortnight.

Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman, president, and Mrs. Francis J. Johnson, vice president of the Woman's Aid society of Passavant Memorial hospital, are giving a tea this afternoon for the nurses' alumnae of the hospital and members of the aid. Further plans for the Lawrence Tibbett concert at Orchestra hall on Nov. 6 to benefit the hospital will be discussed.

The marriage of Miss Madeline Clapp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Tuckerman Clapp of Brookline, Mass., to Henry Kitchell Webster Jr., son of the Henry Kitchell Websters of Evanston, will take place at noon today at the residence of the bride's parents. It will be a small wedding, with only the families attending, and the house will be decorated with cibotium fern and chrysanthemums in autumn colors.

The bride is to wear a white satin gown, a tulle veil and a cap of lace that belonged to her great-grandmother. The maid of honor, Miss Helen Clapp, will wear a gown of Ninon crêpe in a chrysanthemum yellow shade, and the bridesmaids, Miss Barbara Clapp and Mrs. Robert Platt Lougee (Ethel Clapp) will be in canna Ninon crêpe and carry autumn bouquets with Pernet roses. Stokely Webster will be best man for the groom.

After a short wedding trip the bride and groom will reside at 1411 Maple avenue, Evanston.

"Dutch Treat" Parties to Precede Benefit.

Mrs. Edward K. Welles, Mrs. G. Corson Ellis and Mrs. Edwin E. Tullis are getting up "dutch treat" dinner parties for the evening of Saturday, Nov. 5, before the Eli Bates Settlement House benefit at the 124 Field Artillery armory. On Thursday of this week Mrs. William M. Spencer will entertain members of the committee in charge of the benefit—polo and military demonstrations and dancing are on the program—at luncheon at her residence, 1430 Lake Shore drive.

The selection of an actress for the rôle of the late Mrs. Potter Palmer for "When Chicago was Young," the play which will be given on Nov. 7, the opening night, at the Goodman theater to benefit Olivet institute, is delaying Alice Gerstenberg and Herma Clark in their final casting. The appearance of the famous social leader at the time she is depicted in "When Chicago Was Young" is well known. She was of medium height and slender, and had dark eyes, olive skin, and prematurely gray hair. After an unsuccessful search for an actress of this type, the authors are now asking for suggestions and are inviting interested persons to drop in at rehearsals at the Drake, if they can offer names of Chicagoans suitable to the part.

Miss Eleanor Holden Returning from East.

Miss Eleanor Holden is expected to return the middle of this week from Black Point, Conn., where the Holdens have their summer residence.

Mrs. John A. Spoor of 1526 State parkway will return to Chicago for the winter on Nov. 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Neilson won't open their residence at 4500 Drexel boulevard until some time in November. They are still at their summer estate at Green Bay, Wis., and don't intend to leave it until winter sets in. Mrs. Neilson probably will want to go east after her return to Chicago to see her new grandchild, the infant son of Dr. and Mrs. Harry Bakwin of New York City. Mrs. Bakwin, the former Ruth Morris, is Mrs. Neilson's daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. Ingram H. Richardson of Belmont, Mass., are being congratulated on the birth of a daughter on Oct. 7 at Cambridge, Mass. Mrs. Richardson is the former Helen Montgomery Hook, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Elisha I. Hook of Chicago.

Open Thorne Hall at Northwestern Tonight.

The new Thorne hall at Northwestern university will be formally opened tonight with a national political forum for university men and women at which Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland and former Gov. Henry J. Allen of Kansas will be the principal speakers. The forum will be preceded by a dinner at the Drake hotel for the speakers and for members of the Thorne family, Mr. and Mrs. James Ward Thorne and Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Thorne, sons and daughters-in-law of the late George R. Thorne, will be present. Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Thorne, who are in California, were unable to come to Chicago for the dinner because of Mrs. Thorne's illness. The hall was given to the university by the late Mrs. Ellen M. Thorne, sister of Mrs. A. Montgomery Ward, as a memorial to her husband, George R. Thorne, who was Mr. Ward's business partner.

Home Is a Back-Drop of Beauty for Any Woman

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

In one of the current woman's magazines I happened upon a picture of Helen Hayes in the act of serving tea on one of her afternoons at home. The photograph of the charming actress with cup and saucer gracefully managed reminds us that in this simple home service many women are at their most graceful. Others are far from the state of ease and sureness necessary to a pleasing picture.

I've always held that a woman in her own home has a better backdrop for beauty picturizing than under almost any other circumstances. Presiding over a tea table for a few intimate friends, she is pretty much at her best if she has learned or come naturally by the poise and grace that belongs with a happy dispensing of the cup that cheers. The tea table, the tray arrangement, the dainty service are allies in a good cause.

But the charm of the hostess lies in the gracefully informal afternoon frock and the ease [I must repeat the word again] with which the whole performance is conducted. No fussing, no jerking, no hysterical little giggles proclaiming an amateur hand at the game. It's a simple service and should be conducted with the simplest manners. Certaintly nothing could be further from the charm of the scene than the introduction of such whoopee voice, language, and manners as are associated with the cocktail shaker.

Some women are never lovelier than in their own homes dispensing the hospitalities, small or formal. Others, with beautiful home background often fail to recognize this opportunity for dispensing sheer, feminine charm with the tea or dinner. I am told of a famous and happily married theatrical pair who value this domestic backdrop so highly that in the arrangement of their home it was planned that no matter at what point in the room the wife stood or sat she looked lovely. Such infinite detail of room arrangement might be too taxing for you and me, but it indicates that the stage has a competitor in the home in which women may parade a perfectly good beauty show of their own.

If the word "economy" has become a bit tiresome to your year, we'll call it "thriftful planning" for the nonce—and do a generous slice of it this morning.

With the accent these days resting on low priced meals, one of the most interesting of the vegetable families—vegetable seeds—is coming under the spotlight and neatly putting to shame many of the more high brow and high priced foods, outdoing them not only in cost but in delicious flavor and variation of service.

These seeds—beans, lentils, peas, and peanuts—are like meat in some ways, building red blood and muscle, and again are like potatoes and bread in the strength and energy they give the knowing seed eater. While the dried seeds take considerable longer to cook than the fresh ones, they are so much less expensive, more concentrated in food value, and convenient to store and prepare that they make excellent money savers and should find their way into the modest menu many times a week. Too, so many different dishes are inspired by dried beans, peas, and lentils that often enough for three meals may be cooked at one time and brought forth in entirely different dress each day. And tricky combinations galore present themselves when the refrigerator is found to be snowed under with leftovers.

For instance, macaroni or spaghetti blends deliciously with kidney beans and peppy tomato sauce to make a luscious luncheon mainstay. Lima beans and bacon baked en casserole give a perfect supper dish at a charmingly low figure. Inexpensive cuts of meat, especially pork, may share the slowly boiling pot with navy beans. Served with a generous helping of apple and cabbage slaw, spanking hot bran muffins and prune betty backed by savory coffee—who would ask for a more satisfying, tasty, yet cheerily low priced meal?

The following recipes for ways a bit different in which to serve said legumes or seed plants should start brain throbs of your own in the bean, pea, and lentil line.

LENTIL OR SPLIT PEA SOUP.

1 cup lentils or split peas.
2 quarts water.
1 small onion, sliced thin.
1 2-3 teaspoons salt.
2½ level tablespoons flour.
1 cup milk.

Cover the lentils or peas with water and soak over night. In the morning pour off the water and add the two quarts of fresh water, the salt, and the sliced onion. Place over a medium flame and cook until the lentils or peas are tender. Then mash to a smooth pulp. Stir the one-fourth cup of water slowly into the flour and blend smoothly. Stir carefully into the hot soup and continue cooking until thick. Add the milk, bring to a scald, and serve with croutons.

LIMA BEANS AND CHEESE CASSEROLE.

¼ cup flour.
¼ cup fat, melted.
2-3 teaspoon salt.
Dash paprika.
¼ teaspoon pepper.
3 cups milk, scalded.
1 cup fine grated American cheese.
1-3 cup minced green pepper.

Wash the beans and cook over night. Drain, just cover with boiling water, and cook gently until soft. Blend the fat, flour, and seasonings and carefully stir in the hot milk, being careful to avoid lumping. Add the cheese and heat until smooth. Stir in the green pepper, and place alternately with layers of lima beans in an oiled casserole. Let the last layer be cheese sauce and sprinkle with a generous sifting of dried bread crumbs, dotted with butter. Bake in a moderate oven [350 degrees F.].

Debonair Toque Hat Preference of Parisienne

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS. — [Special.] — With a thousand and one millinery fancies being offered by Paris modistes, the toque comes out on top as the preferred hat of the smart woman. If you want to play safe and be sure of wearing something elegant on your head this season, you can do no better than to choose some version of the toque.

One favorite of the French elegante is the toque that is draped high in back and that goes down on the forehead in front. The draped brown velvet toque from Camille Roger, shown at the top of the sketch, has this chic movement. The crown rises to a softly rounded point at the back and top of the head, and the fold around the edge of the crown is brought down over the forehead in front. Two brown quills are placed points down at the left side front to further the down-in-front effect.

In the center is shown Rebour's newest turban in an olive green velvelt draped up on the left side toward the back, where two tightly coiled rolls made of ostrich strands are placed. One of these coiled rolls is in beige and the other in green.

Sister Ethel Stirs Memory of Barrymore

Assists Bolm to Recover Borrowed Books.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

Hollywood Cal., Oct. 16.—[Special.]—Adolph Bolm, international ballet master, who is to have charge of the dance exhibitions at the Chicago Century of Progress exposition, has a library of rare and artistic works. When John Barrymore got ready to make "Svengali," a couple of years ago, John borrowed three of Bolm's books.

After that it got to be a grim joke between the Russian ballet master and the actor about the return of the books. Bolm called John about his valuable books, phoned him, wrote him letters, and finally sent him telegrams, but no books came back. Finally two years had elapsed. Then Mrs. Bolm recently was chatting with her old friend, Ethel Barrymore, at a party here. "Your brother John is a bad boy," Mrs. Bolm observed to Ethel. "O, what's he done now?" John's sister asked, with a chuckle. "Tell me about it. I want to fix him." So Mrs. Bolm told about the books that hadn't come home.

A week later a Hindu girl, who had come to America to dance under Bolm, was a guest at the Barrymore-Costello home. As she was leaving Barrymore rushed up to her with a package. "You know Bolm," he said. "For God's sake, take these books and give them back to him." So Mr. Bolm sent Barrymore another note—of thanks.

The biggest bowl of chop suey, in a manner of speaking, that MGM has ever served is the cast and "atmosphere" of the "Son-Daughter" film. They've got Helen Hayes, Ramon Novarro, H. B. Warner, Lew Stone, Warner Oland, Ben Bard, and Louise Closser Hale all pasting adhesive tape behind their ears to draw their eyes aslant to play residents of San Francisco's Chinatown. Besides that, there are 400 Chinamen jabbering about the set as extras in most of the scenes.

Young People Enjoy These Three Stories

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Books for children of all ages come forth from the publishers so fast that I can't keep the best ones included in our booklet or I should have to have a new one printed every month or two. So I have to let the "Littlest Bookshelf" be the backbone of a young child's library because it contains the tried and true, and then mention from time to time new books that I have been able to give a real reading.

Among these—for the not so young children—was one called "Captain Tripp," by Holland. It is a most entertaining story of a sea captain who found himself and his young cabin boy in Paris during the French revolution. Regardless of the historical background, it is a good story and well written. We read it aloud to twelves and fourteens this summer, and enjoyed it very much.

Another book quite different in character, which would appeal chiefly to girls, is the "Adventures of Perrine." It is a translation of the well known French children's favorite classic story, "En Famille," by Hector Malot, published by Rand McNally. A big book with illustrations by Mlle Wintzer. It is reasonably priced at $1.25. Though the heroine is only 13, I believe girls up to 14 would enjoy Perrine's adventures. The book may be reviewed here later.

And the third book of an entirely different sort is "Pollwiggle's Progress." This is the third volume from the pen and pencil of Wilfred Bronson, whose other two books, "Fingerfins" and Paddlewings," have been mentioned here before. Mr. Bronson this time has chosen the frog as his theme and in an engaging manner both with words and pictures has told its life story from its first beginning.

This is no second hand nature story Mr. Bronson has written. It is scientifically correct, but is told, as one young reader puts it, "just as though some one was explaining it all to you so you could easily understand." A splendid book for the boy or girl who has any of the interests of a naturalist. Ages? O, it depends—but probably from 10 to 14.

You Can Lose Fat a Pound a Day on a Full Stomach this way

Do Just These Two Simple Things—Fat Melts Away

Science has made important discoveries in fat reducing. The average fat person can now rip off a pound a day—four to seven pounds every week!—on a full stomach, with never a hungry moment. Thus it is foolish to stay fat.

This is what you do: Take a teaspoonful ordinary Jad Salts in a glass of water a half hour before breakfast every morning. This reduces moisture-weight instantly. Also cleanses the system of the waste matter and excess toxins that most fat people have, and banishes puffiness and bloat.

Then do this about eating: FILL YOUR STOMACH—eat your fill—of lean meats, vegetables like spinach, cauliflower, cabbage, tomatoes, etc., and lots of salads. Eat a lot. Eat all you can hold. Don't go hungry a minute! Cut down on fats, starches and desserts. Eat any fruit for dessert.

That's all you do. Fat seems to melt away. The coarse lines of overweight give way to the refined ones of slenderness. You lose as much as a pound a day. You feel better than for years. For in this treatment you achieve two important results. The Jad Salts clear your system of toxins. The diet takes off fat with food that turns into energy instead of weight.

If you've tired of being embarrassed by fat, try this way. You'll be glad that you did. You can get Jad Salts at any drug store.

*Note particularly—the salts are urged purely as a poison-banishing agent—not as a reducing. The change in food does the work.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 16.—[Special.]—The Chicago Cardinals defeated the Boston Braves, 9 to 0, before a crowd of 15,000 today to achieve their first National Professional league victory.

All the scoring was done in three minutes of play in the first period, the touchdown coming at the end of a 70 yard march. The other points resulted almost immediately after when a Boston punt was blocked and rolled out of the end zone for a safety.

Joe Lillard, Negro half back star, led the Cardinals to their touchdown and stood out in general in a game which was marked by constant bickering with the officials. Lillard virtually took possession of the game right at the start.

Cards Start March.

The Cardinals forced the Braves to kick after several futile rushes and promptly put on their march, starting from the 30 yard line. Two end runs by Lillard, one for about 20 yards, a shorter sweep by Moore and a forward pass, Lillard to Moore, finally put the ball on the Boston seven yard line. Three line plays gained five more yards.

On fourth down Moore was sent on a wide run to his left, sprinting for the corner of the field. He slipped away from one Brave, outran another and finally was driven outside. But before being pushed out he had stepped on the goal line, scoring the touchdown by inches. Lillard drop kicked the extra point.

The Cardinals kicked off and two rushes failed to bring Boston any appreciable distance. Hughes stepped back to the Boston five yard line to punt. As the ball was snapped, the Cardinal line surged in on Hughes and McNally blocked the kick. In the scramble in the end zone the ball rolled out of bounds and automatically became a safety.

Penalties Stop Cards.

Boston was unable to penetrate deep into Chicago territory. The Cardinals, however, were halted twice by penalties when touchdowns seemed imminent. On the play before he left the game, Lillard ran back a punt from his 25 yard line well beyond midfield.

The Cardinals made 11 first downs, as against the Braves' four. Lineup:

GIANTS, 20; DODGERS, 12.

New York, Oct. 16.—(AP)—The New York Giants won their first game of the National Professional Football league season today, whipping the Brooklyn Dodgers, 20 to 12.

With Red Cagle doing the bulk of the work the Giants jumped into a 14 to 0 lead in the first quarter. Cagle passed 30 yards to Badgro to put the ball on the four yard line and then smashed over for the first touchdown. A few minutes later he broke loose for 40 yards and another score. Haggerty kicked both points.

In the fourth quarter a 44 yard pass, Grossman to Riblett, put the ball on the Giants' four yard line and Sansone took it over for the first Brooklyn touchdown. The Giants got that back when Hap Moran sprinted 65 yards to a touchdown. A series of passes, the last from Friedman to Riblett, gave the Dodgers their second touchdown late in the game.

PORTSMOUTH, 7; STAPLETON, 7.

Stapleton, N. Y., Oct. 16.—(AP)—Stapleton's national professional league team played the Portsmouth Spartans to a 7 to 7 tie today.

Stapleton scored its touchdown in the second period, when Ledbetter plunged through the line. Frahm added the point. Portsmouth tied it up in the fourth quarter when Dutch Clark took a pass from Cavosie, ran 34 yards to a touchdown, and then kicked goal.

Douglas Fairbanks Finishes 16th in Chinese Golf Meet

SHANGHAI, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Douglas Fairbanks finished 16th in a field of 27 in the golf championship of China, played here. Fairbanks' total for 72 holes was 330. C. L. Lewis, Kansas City, Fairbanks' athletic director, finished fourth with 316. J. W. Harrison, a British resident here, won the title with 307 strokes. Fairbanks now is planning a tiger hunt in Fukien province.

Referee—Robert Karch [Ohio]. Umpire—Gunner Elliott, [Indiana]. Head Linesman—Wilfrid Smith [De Pauw].

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Tom Nash, Green Bay end, kept the Packers in the lead of the National Professional Football league yesterday at Wrigley field when he blocked Dick Nesbitt's kick on the 20 yard line for a safety, to give the Packers a 2 to 0 victory over the Chicago Bears. The 60 minute battle was one of the old fashioned brawls for which the Packers and the Bears are famous.

Nash's contribution came in the second period, after the Bears had threatened repeatedly to score and had held the Packers for downs within a yard of the goal line. The blocked kick, however, did not come on the immediate kick which relieved the pressure on the Bears. It occurred on the next exchange of punts, after a Green Bay kick had rolled into the end zone for a touchback and the Bears had taken possession of the ball on their own 20 yard line.

Nobody Blocks Nash.

Nesbitt was slow getting the ball off, and Nash, who cut in unmolested from his position at left end, caught the ball full on his chest. The rebound carried more than 30 yards backward and out of the end zone, which automatically registered a safety and two points, preventing the Packers from recovering for a touchdown.

Thus the Bears trailed, 2 to 0, at the half. Thirty minutes later the Packers held the same margin, a margin which now leaves them the only undefeated team in the league and which gave the Bears their first licking of the year, despite the fact that they have not scored a touchdown in four games. Previously the Bears had played three scoreless ties, one with the Packers at Green Bay.

Bears Threaten Four Times.

The Bears perhaps deserved better luck and many of the crowd of 17,500 thought likewise. With one exception, and that when Bruder tossed a long forward pass to Herber which he carried to the Bears' four yard line, Green Bay did not threaten seriously. On the other hand, the Bears had three excellent opportunities to get under way in the first half and advanced once in the final quarter. Twice Tackwell attempted place kicks, and had either gone over the bar, the Bears would have been in line for a 3 to 2 victory. The last of these, in the closing minutes of the last quarter, ended the Bears' offense, for they did not gain possession of the ball again.

The Packers' defense against forward passes held the Bears in check consistently. The main weapons by which the Chicagoans advanced were the crushing charges of Bronko Nagurski through the line and off the tackles, and the spectacular returns of Packer kicks by Keith Molesworth.

Protest Umpire's Decision.

No Green Bay-Bears conflict would be complete without a wild finish. As the last minutes clicked away the pent up feelings of the linesmen generally produce argument and on occasion have resulted in a series of fisticuffs. There was no fighting yesterday, but the Bears vehemently disputed the decision of the umpire on the last Bear punt.

Almost to a man the Bears maintained that the ball was forced into the end zone by a Packer player and there recovered by Bill Hewitt for a touchdown. The umpire, Gunner Elliott, however, ruled that Johnson first had touched the ball on the one yard line, and that the ball then went into the end zone for a touchback. By this ruling the Packers took possession of the ball on their own 20 yard line.

Can't Profit by Breaks.

Both teams had several breaks because of fumbles when the ball carriers were tackled, but neither was able to take advantage of them. The Bears' first quarter threat, probably their best driving attack of the day, started with a short forward pass, after which Nagurski broke around Rose for a run of 43 yards. Herber cut him off on the Green Bays' 16 yard line. Two yards were lost in getting the ball out of bounds, and in the remaining three tries the Bears could not make first down.

IT'S TOUGH LIFE FOR DUCKS FROM NOW ON

Hundreds of hunters test their aim as the 1932 duck season opens. The mudhens being wary birds, these sportsmen hide themselves in a blind at Grasslake, Ill., and bang away. [TRIBUNE Photos.]

HUGE ARMY OF HUNTERS BLASTS AWAY AT DUCKS

Northern Illinois Lakes Crowded for Opening.

BY BOB BECKER.

One of the largest crowds of hunters ever seen at northern Illinois lakes celebrated the start of the 1932 waterfowl season yesterday.

On Grass, Fox, and Nippersink lakes alone an estimated crowd of 3,000 swarmed through the lotus beds, hid in the tall grass, or poled through the sloughs to bombard the big flocks of mudhens and ducks. They sprinkled each other with shot pellets and burned up between 300,000 and 400,000 shotgun shells in a cannonading that could be heard for miles.

Although there were thousands of birds tempting this huge army of hunters before the season officially opened at noon, Walter Hamburger, game warden in charge of the northern Illinois lake country, reported few violations. It was one of the most orderly duck openings of recent years as well as one of the most colorful and busiest bang bang parties ever staged at the start of the season.

March on Fox Lake.

At 10:30 yesterday morning every road leading to the town of Fox Lake was crowded with hunters hurrying to get their boats and locations. At 11 o'clock when Secretary of State William Stratton joined us for the trip through Nippersink and Grass lakes to Blarney island, where we planned to watch the bombardment, there were boats filled with hunters at every 100 feet of shoreline and scores of duck and row boats were still pushing northward through Grass lake into the lotus beds. At 11:30 the advancing flotilla of boats and hunters had put nearly 5,000 mudhens in the air. As far as one could see across Grass lake the sky was filled with circling birds, which foolishly came down to the water again instead of seeking safer rest grounds.

Twenty minutes before it was legal to shoot at waterfowl the nervous mudhens which had been circling over the lakes relaxed and dropped down to the water, indicating that a few boats were moving. The hunting army was set for the big party. At 12 o'clock when the siren shrieked and whined to announce the start of shooting, 3,000 guns poured lead into the flocks of mudhens and for seven minutes there was a steady roar of guns as 10,000 to 15,000 birds took to the air.

Big Bombardment Slackens.

The bombardment then slackened gradually although the flight kept most of the gunners fairly busy for 40 minutes. Following this noisy and picturesque opening most of the hunters took to the lotus beds and rushes to enjoy jump shooting from boats for the rest of the afternoon.

The big concentration of hunters in the lake region brought a spurt in business for hotel keepers, restaurants, boat liveries and dealers in supplies used by sportsmen. The demand for boats was so great that it was necessary to haul in scores of them for this opening day shooting festival.

The 1932 season will continue 84 days.

My Greatest Thrill in Football

BY JACK ELDER.

JACK ELDER.

My greatest thrill as a football player occurred on one of the coldest days a game ever was played—Nov. 30, 1929,—when an intercepted pass and a 97 yard run for touchdown gave Notre Dame a 7 to 0 victory over Army, one of our oldest foes, at the Yankee stadium in New York City. It also enabled Notre Dame to finish its schedule without a defeat and to be the only team on which the cadets had failed to score that season.

Incidentally, that intercepted pass grew out of a short nap which I had taken the preceding day, and a lucky nap it was. We had gone east under the guidance of Tom Lieb, who had done such a good job of filling Coach Rockne's shoes that year. Rock was back in South Bend fighting the illness which had incapacitated him at the start of that season.

The Notre Dame team was quartered at the Westchester Country club in Rye, N. Y., prior to the game. On Friday, Lieb made us get into our uniforms and took us out into the rough off one of the fairways for a workout. It was cold enough that day, the thermometer touching 20 degrees above zero, but that was nothing compared to the day of the game, when it slid down nearly ten degrees. We romped around awhile to get warmed up, and then Tom concentrated on a dummy defense drill for the varsity, using the third team to send Army plays at us.

Caught Asleep; Resolves It Won't Happen Again.

This went on for a few minutes until finally they tried a pass, with the right end coming straight down the field and then cutting across. I was caught flat footed. Before I knew what had happened, he had caught the ball.

"Hey, Elder, what's the matter with you? Are you sleeping?" Lieb shouted at me. "They've got a play like that and might use it tomorrow. Wake up!"

Then and there I resolved that no matter what plays the Army aimed at me, that was one that wasn't going to get by if I could help it.

Game time came the next day, and 83,000 filled the stadium, despite the fact that it was about 11 above and the field was hard as a concrete pavement. There was no score in the first period, but in the second, when we were fairly deep in our own territory, Frank Carideo, our quarter back, elected to punt. George Ferry, the Army tackle, broke through our line, and the ball bounced off his chest and out until it was Army's ball on Notre Dame's 13 yard line. It looked pretty good for an Army score, with at least four downs to make that distance.

Army Tries That Pass; Presto! an Irish Score.

Johnny Murrell tried the line on the first play, but was stopped. Chris Cagle, who shared all of the ball carrying with Murrell throughout the game, attempted a smash off right tackle, but that didn't help much, either. On the next play, Cagle took the ball from center and faded over to the right. I had a hunch this was the same play on which I had been caught snoozing during practice the day before, and watched Messinger, the Army right end, which would have been my job, anyway.

He came straight down the field for about five yards past the line of scrimmage and then veered over to the left, almost to the opposite corner of the field, and Cagle tossed the ball. It went straight for Messinger, but the hard turf made him overrun the pass a trifle, and I jumped into the air and caught it on our three yard line.

The Army hadn't been set for an interception apparently, for I was past midfield before a cadet, who I later learned was Perry, came charging at me, intending to run me out of bounds. At about the Notre Dame 40 yard line, near the Army bench, I feinted as though to cut back into the field, but he stopped with me, and I was forced to go back, within six inches of the side line. Tom Conley, captain of Notre Dame the following year, finally came up to take him out and I finished running the longest 97 yards I ever hope to run in my life. Carideo kicked the point after touchdown to make it 7 to 0, enough to win.

Jack Elder, one of Notre Dame's greatest running backs, is a native of Bloomfield, Ky., but finished his high school work at Lebanon, Ky. He failed to make the freshman team in his first year at Notre Dame, but came back as a sophomore and made himself a regular for three years by his open field running, the run referred to in the above story being made in the last game of his career. He was also a member of the Irish track team, holding practically every world sprinting record up to 70 yards while in school. Earlier this year, he was appointed athletic director of the Catholic Youth organization.

Art Placky, 23 years old, of 310 Belvidere street, Waukegan, was instantly killed yesterday when a racing car which he was driving overturned on the Roby speedway at 108th street and Indianapolis avenue.

The accident was witnessed by 10,000 spectators. Placky was competing in the 10 mile race, the final event on the program. His car tangled wheels with another driven by Tony Wilman of Milwaukee.

Car Falls on Him.

Placky was thrown out of his seat and his car, hurled into the air, landed on top of him. The race was stopped, but he was dead when the car was lifted from the body.

After the accident the race was rerun. Art Foley of Chicago won the event in 8 minutes 8 seconds. Red Campbell of St. Louis, finished second and Shorty Sorenson of Hammond, third. Wilman reentered the race, but withdrew after his car went into a spin similar to the one which took Placky's life.

Sixteen Qualify.

Sixteen of the 41 drivers who entered the program of five races qualified, but the races were dominated by Placky, Wilman, Foley, and Mark Billman.

Results of the other events, all at five miles, follow:

First race—Won by Tip Hansen; Bill Rusch, second; Bill Robert, third. Time, 4:46 2-5.
Second race—Won by Tony Wilman; Art Placky, second; Marx Billman, third. Time, 5:00 2-5.
Third race—Won by Art Foley; Art Placky, second; Tony Wilman, third. Time, 4:00 2-5.
Fourth race—Won by Tony Wilman; Mark Billman, second; Art Placky, third. Time, 5:58 4-5.

The crowd which at times overflowed onto the track prevented staging of the schedule head-on collision novelty which promoters said will be presented next week.

JOHNSON WINS

Earl Johnson of Chicago won the 40 mile race at the Calumet speed bowl yesterday. Forest Hart of Dayton, O., was second and Virgil Livingood of Evanston was third. About 2,000 attended.

BRADY, TURNESA DEFEAT TRAVERS AND BURKE, 1 UP

Mamaroneck, N. Y., Oct. 16.—[Special.]—The deft putting touch of Mike Brady enabled the winged foot professional golfer and Joe Turnesa to defeat Billy Burke, 1931 national open champion, and Jerry Travers, former amateur titleholder, in an 18 hole exhibition match at the Winged Foot Golf club today. The score was 1 up. Brady came back in 33, two under par for the east course, for a 71. Turnesa also had 71, while Burke carded 72 and Travers had 75.

R. Rasmussen, 2200 North Kostner avenue, Chicago, brings in his limit of ducks shot down along the Grass lake sector. Shooting started at noon yesterday.

Convicts Whip Cops, 7-0; Star Back to Get Diploma

Ossining, N. Y., Oct. 16.—[Special.]—Crime smote law and order today when the Sing Sing prison football team trampled over the Port Jervis police department, 7 to 0, thus avenging the 13 to 0 defeat last November in the first engagement with the police.

The largest crowd in the prison's athletic history—1,624 visitors and 2,300 inmates—grew hoarse as the orange clad cops and the green and white convicts battered and tore at each other during every minute of play. Jumbo [Powerhouse] Moran, who will be graduated from Sing Sing next Thursday, led the assault on the Port Jervis team.

The inmate rooters seemed to get more out of the game than the visitors, especially when a scrimmage ended with an orange figure lying helpless on the turf and the stretcher bearers came running. They cheered and applauded, their band played the "Dead March," and the trombone player filled the air with a brassy jeer every time a cop was laid out.

One Cop Down; Ten to Go.

"One cop down; ten to go," yelled the gray clad rooters, as Duffy, the Port Jervis quarter back, was carried to the sidelines on a stretcher. He was the first victim of the savage Sing Sing attempt at legal assault and battery.

Joe Hayes, fleet quarter back for the prison team, got away for a 41 yard run on an off tackle play when the game was only five minutes old, and with perfect interference placed the ball behind the Port Jervis goal line. Alabama Pitts, the prison half back, kicked the goal.

Tears Gaps in Police Line.

There was no scoring after that, though both sides plunged and kicked and tossed. Morano, a bulky, gorilla-like man, swarthy and purposeful, tore wide gaps in the Port Jervis line and crashed through solid formations carrying orange players clinging to him like a necklace. He was giving the best that was in him in his last game for the dear old school.

"Hold 'em, jail!" the rooters screamed when the Sing Sing goal was threatened. And they did.

BO M'MILLIN IS BURNED BY BLAST FIXING FURNACE

Manhattan, Kas., Oct. 16.—(AP)—Coach A. N. [Bo] McMillin of Kansas State college was burned about the left hand and face when accumulated gas exploded in the furnace at his home this morning.

McMillin was taken to a hospital for treatment. Physicians said he probably would be able to conduct football practice tomorrow, but that he would be forced to carry his left arm in a sling several days.

ST. MARY'S WINS, 16 TO 7, OVER SAN FRANCISCO

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 16.—(AP)—Before a throng of 15,000 St. Mary's defeated the University of San Francisco, 16 to 7, today.

After the second team, which started, had been held scoreless the opening quarter St. Mary's rushed in its regulars, who scored a touchdown and a safety before half time.

It's Mid-October and Both Indiana, Purdue Undefeated!

Although the conference football season has just started, the records already reveal a surprise. It's been quite a while since both of Indiana's state universities, Purdue and Indiana, have held top ranking with the fourth Saturday in October approaching.

Purdue and Michigan are the real leaders, of course, for Indiana has a 7 to 7 tie with Ohio State along with its 14 to 0 victory over Iowa last Saturday. Chicago hasn't opened its schedule. The Maroons meet Indiana at Stagg field next Saturday. The remaining six members of the conference have lost one game each with the exception of the hapless Iowans, who have lost twice, and in so doing, have continued their record, dating from late in 1929, of not scoring in a conference game.

Michigan or Purdue.

As the race shapes up now, you can take your choice of Purdue and Michigan for the 1932 championship, or you can play them both, for the two teams do not meet. It is quite possible that each will lose a game, but the odds should be almost prohibitive.

Michigan now has successfully passed its first three games without defeat and with only one touchdown scored against it. At Ann Arbor the opinion has been that if the Wolverines won from Michigan State, Northwestern, and Ohio State, they would continue undefeated for the season. They have won those games. Ohio State was the last victim by a score of 14 to 0, and no game ever better illustrated Michigan offense and defense. Ohio got the yardage and Michigan scored the points.

Illini Oppose Michigan.

Harry Newman's accurate passing, exceptional receiving by Jack Regeczi and Capt. Williamson, and alert, hard tackling and intelligently placed defense were the ingredients Michigan used for the victory. This week Michigan faces Illinois. It is too much to believe that the Illini will do what Northwestern and Ohio couldn't do, especially considering Illinois' licking by the Wildcats last Saturday, 25 to 0.

Indiana, Chicago and Minnesota are Michigan's other conference opponents. Of these Minnesota is regarded most highly by the Wolverines who have been told that Manders' plunging may beat them. This game also may be played under adverse weather conditions. It is scheduled Nov. 19 at Minneapolis.

Indiana may surprise Michigan. The Hoosiers outplayed Ohio State in the tie game a week ago, and on their own gridiron might get up sufficient steam to upset an overconfident Michigan team.

Purdue Faces Another Task.

Purdue once more will be on the spot this week. The Boilermakers defeated Minnesota, 7 to 0, and last Saturday nosed out Wisconsin, 7 to 6, by

BY FRENCH LANE.

There is talk of a one day amateur race meet patterned after the United Hunts meeting in New York, being added to the Chicago turf schedule next season. It would come at the end of the racing year.

Most of the races would be for Chicago and Illinois owned horses. The meet probably will be held at Arlington Park, where steeplechases could be added to the program.

In New York the United Hunts association conducts the one day racing party. A number of noted sportsmen make up the organization. Some steps will be taken soon to form such an association in Chicago, according to reports.

Some statistics showing the high cost of getting a young thoroughbred to the races were revealed by John Hertz during the trials for his yearlings at Arlington Park Saturday.

According to the figures, it costs slightly more than $2,000 to breed and bring a thoroughbred colt or filly up to the date of his yearling tests. This includes food, insurance, medical fees and caretakers' salaries. It does not include the stallion service fee.

From the day of their yearling trials until they get to the races in the spring there is a cost of another $2,000 covering the same items, plus transportation. Thus there is an expense of about $4,500 before a young horse ever faces the starter.

Horses will not move out of Chicago to the winter tracks in as large numbers as in other years. Several hundred will be wintered on farms near here. Some turfmen hailing from as far away as California have rented places north and west of Chicago.

One reason the hegira south will be reduced this year is that purses have been slashed at all winter tracks. The season at the Havana, Cuba, track has been shortened.

After six months of steady racing and training in Chicago most of the horses here are ready for a rest and freshening up, anyway.

New Orleans may draw its usual quota and some will ship to Florida later on.

The stewards at Sportsman's Park had to show considerable courage when they suspended Jockey Tex Anderson for the remainder of the season on a charge of rough riding.

Anderson was the leading jockey and had come to be quite an attraction. Lots of people went to the track to play his mounts.

But they'll probably soon find another hero.

The half mile track champion, Disquiri, gets another test at Sportsman's Park today in the Douglas Park purse at five furlongs. She meets such stars from the mile tracks as Colonial Belle, Volta Maid, Morsun, Miss Melody and Hot Shot and gives them all a big pull in the weights. Not many of the handicappers pick her to win, yet her owner, S. Adams, is confident she will turn the trick.

The racing at the Agua Caliente track in Mexico this winter will be run under the rules of the Illinois Turf association. This may or may not cause the officials of the Illinois Turf association to pat themselves on the chest.

Cincinnati vs. Chicago Ring Team Tonight

CHICAGO.		CINCINNATI.
Jack King	vs.	Jess McMurdry [c]
Jackie Davis	vs.	Dick Clark [c]
Freddy Tompkins	vs.	How'd Mitchell [c]
Young Gene	vs.	Red Federico [c]
Joey Thomas	vs.	Red Harding [c]

Five Cincinnati, O., boxers will meet a team of Chicago boys at White City, 63d street and South Park avenue, tonight.

In addition to the Cincinnati-Chicago matches, which are set at six rounds each, there will be a six rounder between Eddie Ballatin of the Allerton club and Andy Anderson, Sportsmen's club.

One of the best boys on the Cincinnati team is Howard Mitchell, a lightweight, who faces Freddy Tompkins, formerly of Milwaukee. Mitchell claims victories over Ralph Lenny and Joey Goodman. Another good boy is Jess McMurdry, welterweight. McMurdry meets Jack King, who has whipped Harry Dublinsky.

Joey Thomas fights Red Harding of Cincinnati. Thomas recently returned from Australia and hasn't boxed in Chicago in two years.

Bat Battalino still is the mystery man of the ring. Barney Ross will try to solve the mystery Friday night at the Chicago Stadium.

Following his defeat of Andre Routis and his coronation as featherweight champion, Battalino seldom won and fans gave him the name of "cheese champion." He reversed that opinion by defending the title against Earl Mastro, Kid Chocolate and Fidel LaBarba. Bat usually wins when expected to lose, and vice versa.

A match between Ross and Bat was first sought after Barney beat Ray Miller at Sparta stadium last summer. The contest failed to materialize because Battalino refused to weigh less than 140 pounds for Ross, who is a natural lightweight.

The encounter Friday has been set at 137 pounds, a weight that at first was believed would weaken the former featherweight champion.

At an unofficial weighing at the Arcade gymnasium Saturday before Fred Gardner and Max Gorman, member and chief inspector of the Illinois athletic commission, Battalino tipped the beam at 142 pounds. Gorman and Gardner allowed five pounds for training clothes and bag gloves Bat wore. Thus he made the agreed poundage six days in advance of the contest.

Battalino showed all his old skill while winning from Billy Townsend at New York Aug. 11. That means that he still is tough and rugged and a vicious body puncher, the type of fighter who can defeat Ross.

Jimmy Carres, South Chicago, Ind., fight manager, has announced that Jack Kilbourne, Chicago middleweight, will make his debut at Madison Square Garden next month. Kilbourne has won his five matches in the east.

Billy Gladstone, Ravenswood lightweight, is in Detroit where he boxes Chuck Woods in a ten round contest Wednesday.

Henry Firpo, Louisville, Ky., middleweight, arrived yesterday to start training at the Arcade gymnasium for a bout with Buck McTiernan of Pittsburgh at Newcastle, Pa., next Monday.

MILLS CAPTURE TITLE; DEFEAT SQUARES, 4 TO 2

The Chicago Mills, winners of the Wisconsin-Illinois semi-pro baseball championship, clinched the Chicago city title yesterday by defeating the Logan Squares, 4 to 2, at Mills stadium. However, the Mills, in the second game of a double header, lost to the Duffy Florals, 5 to 1.

Lefty Sullivan allowed only three hits in defeating the Squares. Swede Lundeen led the attack with four hits. The Mills got ten hits off Jim Vaughn, who went the route for the Squares. Scores:

Batteries—Vaughn and Whitz; Sullivan and Zeltz.

Florals	100	003	010—5 6 2

Batteries—Brice and Dempsey; McWeeney and Stokes.

Pocket Billiard Players to Open Tourneys Today

Ten of the seventy players participating in the fourteen pocket billiard divisional tournaments which began today in thirteen cities, will see action in Chicago.

Those entered in the Central division, No. 1, of the northern section, include Augie Kieckhefer, world's three cushion billiard champion; Pasquale Natalie, Peter Durocher, and Henry Kilgore of Chicago and Leo Imolati of Omaha. These contests will be played at the Kieckhefer Recreation, 20 East Randolph street.

Talking it Over

BY ARCH WARD.

It was nearly four years ago that a young, raw boned scrapper from the west side decided he was the hardest punching kid of his weight in Chicago, perhaps in the world. He made up his mind to prove it, so he entered the Golden Gloves tournament, the toughest test boxing provides.

BARNEY ROSS.

Nobody thought much about him in the early rounds, but before the meet reached the semi-finals the boys were beginning to observe that he was stepping around like Sammy Mandell and had a wallop that was sweet.

To make the story short, Barney Ross fought his way to the featherweight championship of the 1929 tournament and carried on to an inter-city victory at Madison Square Garden. Then he turned professional.

Friday night Ross, born in the ghetto of New York and reared in the ghetto of Chicago, gets the biggest opportunity of his fighting career. He is matched with Bat Battalino, former 126 pound champion, in the windup of the Stadium's card. It will be the first time Barney has had the distinction of competing in a main bout at the Stadium.

If Ross wins they are going to pair him with Tony Canzoneri in a lightweight title fight at the Stadium after the holidays. I am not sure that Ross has his heart set on being a champion. Boxing titles don't mean much any more. The heavyweight championship is the only one that has kept on the gold standard. Probably not one person in a thousand could name the title holder of any other division. At least, I hope not. There are enough things the matter with the country as it is.

But it looks like Ross, whose real name is Rasofsky, can't escape the 135 pound championship. He has had only 38 professional bouts, but he has showed so much class that they can't hold him back much longer. He has won 16 fights by knockouts, 21 by decisions, and has been defeated only once. He never has been knocked out nor knocked down.

Ross has been the principal support of his family since his father was shot dead by bandits who invaded his grocery store near Maxwell and Jefferson streets nine years ago.

"It was just fate, I guess, that dad was killed," Barney said the other night. "It was a cold winter day. Two colored men came into the store shortly after dad opened up in the morning. They complained of the cold and stood around the stove warming their hands. There were several customers in the place. They left one by one until only a woman remained. She was suspicious of the colored men and warned my father in Jewish that he had better keep his eyes open. This conversation apparently alarmed the bandits. They figured she was leaving to call the police. Their suspicions were strengthened when the spring lock snapped on the door as she went out. It was entirely accidental. One of the robbers immediately opened fire and dad fell, mortally wounded."

Barney and his elder brother, Maurice, operated the store until they found a purchaser several months later. The widowed mother with her five sons and daughter moved to a home near Turner avenue and 16th street. Barney, who was taking a four year course at Medill High school, changed to a two year course so he could help support the family. He did odd jobs at the Rice Productions company, Illinois Masonic hospital, and Sears-Rosbuck.

Meanwhile he had plenty of opportunity to fight, sometimes in self-defense, again just for the fun of it. He was never in a gymnasium until he was 18. Some one suggested that he go downtown to Howard's Arcade and take instructions. After a few weeks' tutoring he was matched on amateur cards. Then came the Golden Gloves tournament and Barney realized it was his big chance. He still likes to recall his experiences in that competition.

"The toughest match I ever had, amateur or professional, was the intercity bout with Al Santora at Madison Square Garden," Ross said last night. "The two boys who preceded me on the card were defeated. It didn't cheer me much to see them come back to the dressing room crying. But I believe it did strengthen my determination to turn the tide for Chicago.

"We set a furious pace for three rounds. I thought I had won, but the judges called it a draw and an extra round was ordered. My arms were almost ready to drop from exhaustion, but I kept at it and soon found that Santora was more tired than I was. I won the decision."

OAK BROOK WINS POLO FINAL WITH ARTILLERY, 9-8

Sparta Soccer Team Defeats Brickies, 1-0

BY OFFSIDE.

The Olympias, the Maccabee All Stars, and the Spartas were victorious yesterday in the three games played before a record crowd at Sparta stadium for the National Professional Soccer league's injured player insurance fund.

The Olympias won the first game, defeating the Ravenswood Scots, 3 to 0. The undefeated Maccabees were hard pressed to overcome the Jugo-Slavs, 2 to 0, but the outstanding battle of the day developed between the Spartas and the Brickies. Stevenson of Sparta scored the only goal of the game in the second period when he beat the Brickie goalie, Nearte, with a quick shot from close in.

The Norwegian-Danish team tied the Germans, 2 to 2, in the first game of the International league series for the Thomson cup at De Paul field. In another first round game the Swedish Americans whipped a team of All Stars, 5 to 1. Other scores:

U. S. C. COACH LAUDS STAGG FROM PULPIT

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 16.—[Special.]—Howard Jones, University of Southern California football coach, spoke from the pulpit of the Beverly-Wilshire People's church today and paid tribute to Amos Alonzo Stagg, veteran Chicago football coach.

After being introduced by the Rev. Frank Dyer, Coach Jones said:

"The thing that has pleased me most in my own career as a football coach is not that my teams have been fortunate enough to win many of their games, but that I can sit on the bench and see that they are always playing sportsmanlike football. At this time I cannot refrain from paying my respects to one man who has typified and set this standard of clean sport on the football field for so many years.

"Mr. Stagg, to me, has a record for sportsmanship and clean play unequaled in the annals of football. It is too bad that his guidance and influence is not to be continued at Chicago. I know that he has influenced thousands of young men and that they are better citizens because of their contact with him."

Michaleski, Green Bay Guard, Weds in Waukegan

August Michaleski, left guard of the Green Bay Packers, and Miss Soris Luke were married in Waukegan by Justice of the Peace Harry Hoyt at 12:45 o'clock this morning. N. U. HAS FAITH, HOPE—CHARITY? NOT FOR PURDUE

Wildcats Expect Line to Stop Boilermakers.

Relying on faith, hope, and a strong line, Northwestern's football team will have little use for charity in Saturday's games with the undefeated Purdue eleven at Dyche stadium.

The Wildcats have not forgotten the 7 to 0 defeat by Purdue in the charity game at Soldiers' field last year, which deprived them of their first championship in the history of the Big Ten. Consequently considerable satisfaction would be derived from stopping the Boilermakers.

Rentner in Form.

Northwestern's hopes are well founded. Last Saturday's 26 to 0 triumph over Illinois revealed satisfactory improvement over the Michigan game. The return to form of Pug Rentner, and Olson's play have done much to hearten the Wildcats.

Northwestern supporters also point to the strong defensive qualities of the Wildcat line, which in three games has held the opposition to two first downs by running plays. The linemen came to life on offense Saturday, opening wide holes.

Battle of Lines.

Olson's line plunging against the Illini overshadowed his kicking, providing another reason why the Wildcats cherish both faith and hope in their ability to stop Purdue. No one in the Northwestern camp, however, is under the illusion that Olson will meet the same opposition against Purdue as he did Saturday.

Saturday's game in all probability will narrow down to a battle between two lines. If the Wildcat forwards can resist the hard charging Purdue linemen then Northwestern has a chance, Purple camp followers feel.

PURDUE LOSES MOORE.

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 16.—[Special.]—It was discovered today that Doxie Moore, Purdue right half back, who was injured in the Wisconsin game yesterday, had suffered a fractured collar bone and will be out for three weeks. With Moore definitely out of the Northwestern game Saturday Coach Noble Kizer will groom Vernon Craig, lightweight sophomore back, to work with Duane Purvis, another sophomore, at right half back.

All regulars who participated in the Wisconsin game will be excused from drill tomorrow following a chalk talk by Assistant Coach Glen Harmeson, who has been scouting Northwestern.

"It will take improved scoring punch to stop Northwestern's comeback," Kizer said today. The Boilermakers are depending heavily on the line smashing of Roy Horstmann, who in 31 attempts in the two Big Ten games to date has gained 174 yards, an average of 5.6 yards per play.

MICHIGAN BATTERED.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 15—[Special.]—Michigan's football squad returned from Ohio today, triumphant, but in no mood for celebration. Jack Heston suffered a leg fracture and is through for the season. Stanley Fay probably will be lost to the team for two weeks. He sustained either a fractured rib or muscle strain. Other regulars reported with bumps and bruises, and it will take considerable nursing to bring them around for the Illinois game here Saturday.

Coach Harry Kipke expressed satisfaction with the team's showing but added that it has much improvement to make in its running attack. Except for scattered instances, the Wolverines were unable to make headway against Ohio, defective blocking causing most of the trouble.

OHIO LOSES FERRALL.

Columbus, O., Oct. 16.—[Special.]—Junius Ferrall, regular end, will be lost to Ohio State for at least two weeks, team physicians announced today. Ferrall received a knee injury in the third period of the Michigan game yesterda yand was removed to a hospital.

Regis Monahan, also carried from the field, was only stunned from a blow on the head and will practice tomorrow.

An attempt will be made this week to build up an offense which will function in the scoring zones. Ohio meets Pitt at Pittsburgh Saturday.

MAROONS STILL MYSTERY.

The University of Chicago football team yesterday remained just as much of a mystery as it was a month ago, so far as Big Ten potentialities are concerned. Saturday's final practice game, against Knox, clarified nothing, since Chicago was held in check for three quarters, only to break forth with three touchdowns in the final twelve minutes of play.

Next Saturday's game at the Midway, with Indiana as the first of five conference foes to be met in order, should solve some of the questions.

The failure of the Maroon team to penetrate the Knox defense until the game was almost over Saturday was explained partly by a kind of overconfidence, rare in recent Chicago history. Partly it was due to Coach Stagg's plan of depending on straight plays, to save his most effective tactics from the eyes of scouts, which had to be given up.

Chicago escaped from the Knox encounter unscathed, Pete Zimmer's injury in the third quarter turning out to have been merely dizziness from a kick in the head.

ILLINI TAKES IT EASY.

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 16.—[Special.]—Coach Bob Zuppke feels that the Illinois players did their best against Northwestern yesterday and that they will profit by the experience when they encounter Michigan at Ann Arbor next Saturday. The squad will take only a light workout tomorrow.

Zuppke thinks the Northwestern team as it played yesterday is as good as it was last year. Despite the one sided score, the coach feels that the Illini showed considerable improvement over last year in tackling, blocking, and other departments. Pete Yanuskus averaged well with his punts and will continue to boot the ball, while he may take over some passing in order to make him more effective as a threat.

One job will be to strengthen the ends, and Zuppke may consider shifting Bennis from center to a wing position.

Packers Beat Bears, 2-0, on Blocked Kick

Bad Kick Saves Argument.

What might have produced a record argument came near the end of the second quarter. Dick Sisk grabbed a pass and stepped out of bounds on the Packers' 40 yard line. Nagurski led the line attack until the Bears reached the 25 yard mark. Here Tackwell tried his first place kick. The ball fell short, but had it gone over it would have been recalled, since the Bears only had six men on the line of scrimmage. The offense must have at least seven men on the scrimmage line. The penalty is loss of five yards.

Twice in the third period the Packers caught the Bear ends fading back to block Packer flankmen going down under punts, so instead of punting circled the ends. Lewellen made 14 yards and Hinkle clipped off 37 in one of the prettiest runs of the day. Hinkle was knocked out when tackled and suffered a bad cut at the corner of his eye, but he stayed in the game.

Lose Ball on Downs.

Late in the third quarter Nesbitt got off a great punt which bounced out of bounds on the Packer six yard line. Hinkle kicked and Brumbaugh brought the ball back to the Packer 36 yard line. Johnsos grabbed a pass for six yards, but the advance was halted shortly after the fourth quarter started when Nagurski was stopped on fourth down.

Green Bay put the Bears in the same predicament when Hinkle kicked out on the Bears' four yard line. Nesbitt punted back safely and a 15 yard penalty on the Packers for holding and a 15 yard loss when Hewitt threw Bruder as he tried to pass, ended the foray.

Tackwell Misses Again.

Once after that the Bears passed the middle of the field. Molesworth threw to Johnsos for 12 yards and then interference was called on another pass which brought the ball into Green Bay territory. Then came the dispute over the punt which went into the Packers' end zone.

Molesworth ran back the subsequent punt to the Packer 21 yard line. In three plays Nesbitt made four yards. Here Tackwell tried his placement which, however, carried wide of the posts.

The Bears made eight first downs, one of them by penalty. Green Bay made five first downs, one by penalty and one by passing.

SET HANDICAPS TONIGHT FOR 35 MILE BIKE RIDERS

Handicaps will be arranged tonight for the 150 bicycle riders who will race from Libertyville to Chicago next Sunday. The committee will meet at the Walton A. C. to select officials and make final plans for the amateur cycling event.

More than 25 of the contestants are out of town riders from Elgin, Libertyville, Milwaukee, and Kenosha, Wis. Among the out of towns stars is Bobby Thomas of Kenosha, Wis., who has won three national titles within five years. He is 20 years old and already has been asked to turn professional, but refused a contract because he preferred to remain an amateur.

Bobby's brother, George, is also a bicycle rider. George holds the 1931 junior national championship, while Bobby won the junior title in 1929 and captured senior honors in 1930 and 1931. Bobby was also the Wisconsin representative in the Olympic cycling trials in California.

The 35 mile race will end at Madison and Crawford about 2:30 p. m. Frank Kalteux, who last week was elected president of the United States Skating union, will sponsor the event under the auspices of the Amateur Bicycle League of America.

Brock-Ripper Bout Heads Coulon Show Tomorrow

Jimmy Brock, Chicago welterweight, and Jack Ripper will meet tomorrow night in the main bout of Johnny Coulon's second professional boxing show at the Midway arena, 6115 Cottage Grove avenue. They are scheduled for five rounds. Eddie Chinski and Freddie Miller will box five rounds in the semi-windup at 140 pounds. Four other bouts and one wrestling match complete the card.

Boxer Suicide Asks to Be Buried in His Ring Togs

Houston, Tex., Oct. 16.—(AP)—Almer Williams, 16, semi-pro boxer, died here today in his fighting trunks and left a written request to "bury me as I am." The youth was found shot to death in the bedroom of his parents' home with a bullet hole through his head and a pistol and the note lying nearby. Williams recently returned from a series of boxing engagements on the Pacific coast.

CARTER, LURIK MEET ON STEELE CARD THURSDAY

The matching of Jack Carter, Wyoming, and Stanislaus Lurik, north side Polish druggist, leaves only one other match necessary to complete the heavyweight wrestling card at the Coliseum Thursday night.

Ray Steele meets Joe De Vito in the main event. Steele is the only wrestler to gain a fall on Londos in the last three years, holding the Greek to a draw last summer. Steele also wrestled to a draw with Lewis a year ago, each winning a fall.

Hans Kampfer of Germany meets Joe Stecher, former world's champion, in the semi-windup. Joe Cox of Ohio and Paul Harper of Texas are matched in another match.

McLaughlin, Tobin Leave for Blackhawks' Camp

Maj. Frederic McLaughlin, owner, and William Tobin, manager of the Chicago Blackhawks hockey team, left Chicago last night to visit the Hawks' training camp at Duluth.

Shurtleff on Top with Four Games Won

Shurtleff, State Normal and Macomb Teachers increased their lead over other colleges in the Little Nineteen football race by victories Saturday.

Shurtleff whipped Elmhurst, 14 to 0, for its fourth triumph and leads the conference. Normal defeated Lake Forest, 12 to 0, for the Teachers' third victory in as many games. Macomb Teachers likewise scored a third victory at the expense of Eureka, 13 to 6. Augustana and Illinois Wesleyan are the only other undefeated teams.

The ease with which these leaders handled their opposition shared attention with the check of two conference favorites, Bradley Tech and Monmouth, the latter 1931 champion.

Monmouth Gets Jolt.

Illinois College, after getting away to a bad start a week ago, defeated Monmouth, the only undefeated Little 19 team last year, 7 to 0.

No less surprising than this was the 7-7 tie game played by Bradley Tech and Carthage, which had been defeated twice this season.

This week the Little 19 race will be fought on seven gridirons, but the leading Shurtleff Pioneers will take a "breather," playing Washington university freshmen at St. Louis. Normal will play at Eureka and Macomb Teachers will face Augustana, winner of two conference games, at Macomb.

In two other conference engagements last week North Central nosed out Wheaton, 7 to 6, and Carbondale Teachers and De Kalb Teachers battled to a scoreless tie.

Millikin to Make Bow.

Millikin, St. Viator and McKendree are the only conference members that have not played league games. Millikin will swing into action at Bloomington Saturday against Illinois Wesleyan in a game that will attract as much attention as the Augustana-Western contest. St. Viator will continue nonconference play, going to Valparaiso, Ind., for a game with Valparaiso college. McKendree, which defeated Washington at St. Louis Saturday, will play Southern Teachers at Carbondale Friday.

Chicago Shamrocks and St. Louis Eleven Tie, 0-0

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 16.—(AP)—The Chicago Shamrocks and the St. Louis Veterans, professional football teams, played to a scoreless tie today. Fumbles and other misplays were frequent.

HOOSIER TEAMS ON TOP AND IT'S MID-OCTOBER

Indiana, Purdue Make Big Ten Sit Up.

virtue of Paul Pardonner's talented toe. This week Purdue faces Northwestern at Dyche stadium. The Wildcats, needing a victory to stay within striking distance of the title, which they have shared for two years, will be seeking to square accounts for their 7 to 0 defeat a year ago. That defeat cost the Wildcats an undefeated season and sole possession of the championship.

So far Purdue has not scored in proportion to its ground gaining power. Sooner or later a team which manufactures only one touchdown from 200 to 300 yards gained will come a cropper. But then Purdue may have a scoring spree as it did in defeating Kansas State in its opening contest. Purdue is well balanced on offense, strong defensively with only one apparent weakness. Its linemen generally are too light and herein lies Northwestern's advantage with Olson to make the most of it.

Score on Technicality.

Indiana scored its first two points against Iowa on a technicality. The Iowa kicker, standing in his own end zone, stepped backward on the end line on receiving the pass from center. A safety automatically resulted. The same play occurred two years ago in the Georgetown-New York university game. Under the rules it is not permitted to warn kickers in such a position, but it certainly would be fair to do so. The result of a game should not rest on an inadvertent mishap. As played, Indiana would have won from Iowa in any event.

Minnesota won from Nebraska 7 to 6 Saturday and apparently should defeat Iowa this week for its first conference victory. Chicago spurted in the fourth period to trample Knox, 20 to 0, and now will face Indiana.

Who Can Stop Notre Dame?

Who can stop Notre Dame? No one, of course, expected Haskell or Drake to have a chance. It now is probable that Carnegie Tech, which was tied 6 to 6 Saturday by Washington and Jefferson, will have no better luck this week-end. Notre Dame's greatest squad, experienced and with plentiful replacements, certainly will meet Pittsburgh on Oct. 29 still undefeated.

Pitt lost to Notre Dame last year in what was described as the hardest fought battle of the 1931 season. Pitt demonstrated its power Saturday by whipping the Army for the second year, 18 to 13. Most important was Pitt's touchdown march when it was losing, 13 to 12.

Yale on Toboggan.

Brown won from Yale, 7 to 2, to dissipate entirely the Bulldogs' preseason promises, which Bates and Chicago already had attacked with tie games. Dartmouth could not match Pennsylvania and lost, 14 to 7. Syracuse, handicapped by injury, lost for the second week, the Southern Methodists winning by an intersectional battle, 16 to 6.

Harvard and New York university won by large scores, as was expected. Ohio university surprised the Navy with a 14 to 0 victory after the Navy had shown signs of reviving the week before.

Tulane, Southern champion in 1931, was tied by Vanderbilt, 6 to 6, while Alabama, another of the leaders, fell before Tennessee, 7 to 3. Cain's kick from the end zone, which carried only to the 11 yard line, set the stage for Tennessee's touchdown.

California Loses Prestige.

Stanford continued impressively on the west coast, whipping the west coast Army, 26 to 0. California, another of the Big Three, lost to Washington State, 7 to 2, indicating more disaster when it meets Stanford and Southern California. The Trojans, slow to round into form, were fortunate to avert a scoreless tie with Loyola of Los Angeles.

Bush Adds to Lead in East Scoring Race

New York, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Louis Bush, Massachusetts State half back, increased his individual scoring lead in the east by making four touchdowns yesterday. The feat gave him a total of 66 points—11 touchdowns—in four games.

Cliff Montgomery of Columbia remained in second place with 50 points gained from eight touchdowns and two extra points. He made two touchdowns against Virginia yesterday. Johnson of St. Vincent and Mills of Baltimore tied for third place, each with seven touchdowns for 42 points.

Rowe of Colgate led in scoring points after touchdowns with eight, one up on Carney of New River and Armstrong of Trinity.

CROWD MENACES SPEEDER AFTER HE STRIKES AUTO

Crash Occurs as He Flees from Policeman.

John Rega, 19 years old, 1145 West Harrison street, was rescued from a threatening crowd of Oak Park citizens yesterday by Oak Park and Forest Park police after he had struck another automobile with his car in fleeing from a motorcycle policeman.

Rega, according to Motorcycle Policeman Elmer Zuleg of Forest Park, passed a stoplight at Roosevelt road and Des Plaines avenue, Forest Park, driving 60 miles an hour. Two policemen pursued and arrested him. On the way to the police station Rega tried to escape.

Zuleg pursued him, and the chase ended in the alley behind the home of Clifford Ellingson, 620 South Kenilworth avenue, Oak Park, when Rega's car struck Ellingson's as the latter was backing it out of his garage. Rega started an argument with Ellingson.

Zulek arrived on the scene and rearrested Rega, but meanwhile more than a score of residents of the neighborhood had gathered in the alley and threatened Rega with violence. Zuleg, reinforced by a squad of Oak Park police, backed the crowd away and took Rega to the Forest Park station. A young woman who was riding with Rega was released.

Woman Killed in Crash.

Mrs. Ethel Albert, 30 years old, 1543 West 80th street, was fatally injured early yesterday when the automobile in which she was riding collided with another car at 82d and Justine streets. Eugene Dertz, 35 years old, 2221 West 121st street, with whom Mrs. Albert was riding, was seriously injured.

The occupants of the other automobile fled after the crash. The car belonged to William Bonner, 7407 South Halsted street. Police arrested Anthony Maglino, 30 years old, 3213 South Marshfield avenue, to whom Bonner said he had loaned the vehicle.

Mrs. Albert's death and one other raised the 1932 motor death toll in Cook county to 899. The other victim:

Mrs. Caroline Moniak, 42 years old, of 4635 South Damen avenue. Died in the county hospital last night of injuries which she received July 4 when she was struck by the automobile of Edward Cleminson, 5029 Michigan avenue, at 47th street and Damen avenue.

Doctor and Wife Hurt.

Dr. Heliodor Schiller, 5121 Drexel avenue, a member of the staff of Michael Reese hospital, and his wife, Connie, were cut and bruised yesterday when their automobile went into a ditch and struck a tree after a collision on Green Bay road, west of Waukegan, with a car driven by James Fraher, 633 South Genesee street, Waukegan.

FRENCH SENATE ELECTION SHOWS HERRIOT GAINS

PARIS, Oct. 16.—(AP)—The swing to the Liberal left that occurred in last May's general elections was repeated today in the senatorial elections, and as a result the practical majority of Premier Edouard Herriot's Liberals (Democratic left) was assured.

As for the premier's Democratic left itself, which corresponds to the radical Socialist group in the chamber of deputies, the elections showed a gain from 151 of the total of 314 seats in the senate, to 155, or four new seats. This was based on a tentative final count, which showed that other left parties also won additions.

$131,727 IS PAID TO CITY EXPERTS FOR TWO MONTHS

16% Under Payment of Old Regime.

The payment of $131,727 to city experts during July and August was shown yesterday in a communication from City Controller Szymczak to the city council. The amount is $24,856, or 16 per cent less than was paid out to lawyers, engineers and valuators during the corresponding months of 1930, the last year of the previous administration.

Some of the amounts paid out during the two months were earned in prior years, according to the controller, and other payments were for services over a period of several months. Among the largest payments were those to experts employed by the former city administration to work on transit matters.

Payments above $1,000 as shown in the July list are as follows:

J. L. Wray & Co., engineering	$20,000
J. L. Jacobs & Co., engineering	15,120

KIDNAP VICTIM IS FOUND BOUND; 3 ARE ARRESTED

Police Get Tip; Raid Hiding Place.

Hull, Mass., Oct. 16.—(AP)—A Boston theatrical supply dealer, abducted from his home last Tuesday and held prisoner, bound and blindfolded almost continuously since that time, was rescued today in a spectacular police raid on the cottage which served as his prison.

Three men, alleged by police to be members of a professional kidnaping ring, were arrested and charged with kidnaping and police throughout Greater Boston tonight sought five others as members of the gang.

Raiders Seize Three.

As the raiding force of 15 policemen, led by Public Safety Commissioner Harry B. Stevens, rushed into the cottage they found Herman F. Rutestein, 32, blindfolded and bound to an iron bed. They arrested three men who said they were Joseph Gould, 34, and Walter M. Addison, 28, both of Boston, and William Harmon, 29, of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Police said later, however, that Gould's fingerprints identified him as Max Schecter of 138 West 49th street, New York City.

Tell of Other Kidnapings.

Police said the captors told Rutestein they had kidnaped two Boston men in the last year, collecting $10,000 ransom from one and $26,000 from the other. Recently, they told him, according to police, they abducted a New Jersey man for whose release they collected $30,000.

Rutestein said they named none of the victims, and that he was unable to say which of his eight abductors imparted the information.

Bandits Rob Drug Store, Steal Auto for a Getaway

Four bandits stole $191 and several boxes of cigars in a robbery of the drug store at 4959 Fullerton avenue last night, and in their getaway wrecked their car. Two of them commandeered another car to complete their escape. They wrecked their automobile against a parked car at Lamon and Belden avenue. Uninjured, they separated in pairs. Two of the men halted Stanley Miles as he was driving his car into a garage in the rear of 2235 North Lavergne avenue. They took away his keys and drove away in his car.

Don't Deceive Yourself about a COLD!

A Cold is Nothing to Take Lightly and Nothing to Treat Lightly! A Cold is an Internal Infection Calling for Specific Internal Medication!

A cold is nothing to trifle with. You can't tell where it will end. Be serious in your treatment of a cold—and—be intelligent!

Don't fall for half-way measures. They leave you with a half-cured cold — and there's nothing more dangerous.

A cold calls for a COLD remedy. Preparations good for a number of other things besides colds won't do. They only allay temporarily the symptoms of the cold while the cold itself goes on taking deeper and deeper root in your system. Several of the remedies which people commonly take for colds actually make the relief of a cold more difficult because these remedies are constipating and also make the system acid.

A cold also calls for internal medication. For a cold is an internal infection. Local or surface treatments can't reach the seat of the trouble and can't stop the infection spreading within your system.

Play Safe!

As soon as you catch a cold, take Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. There is nothing wiser you can do, as your own doctor will probably tell you.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine does the four things necessary to rout a cold decisively and thoroughly. First of all, it opens the bowels, gently but thoroughly — the first step necessary in knocking a cold. Second, it kills the cold germs in the system, drives out the poisonous infection and reduces the fever. Third, it relieves the headache and that grippy feeling. Fourth, it tones the entire system and fortifies against further attack.

Thus it is the complete treatment you need.

Swift, Positive, Harmless!

Effective as it is, Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is absolutely safe for old and young to take. It contains no narcotics, does not upset the stomach or nauseate or cause ringing in the head.

In the form of dainty tablets, Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is convenient and pleasant to take. Comes in handy, pocket size boxes, cellophane-wrapped. All druggists in America sell Grove's Bromo Quinine and few will offer a substitute because they know its merit, famous for years. Keep it handy all winter and you will be in a position to stop a cold before it really gets started. Get a box today.

WHEAT TRADE FINDS MARKET TREND A PUZZLE

Abnormal Surplus Cuts Prices.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Grain traders who in the past have bought grain futures as well as cash wheat liberally when prices were considered low are having a new experience. No one in the trade has seen conditions like they are at present. Supplies in surplus producing countries are abnormal. Consumption is about average and prices are the lowest known, but there is a lack of confidence on the part of consumers and speculators. It is the general belief of the trade that until there is a reduction in surpluses to requirements and control of production, if the latter is possible, buyers will remain cautious and fluctuations in the main will be comparatively narrow.

Liquidation of speculative holdings has been heavy, especially during the last week, when prices slipped off easily, with only moderate recoveries. Eastern holders, who have been liquidating in the wheat market for several weeks because of the weakness in the securities markets, regained courage and took the buying side, believing that the market was oversold and ripe for a bulge.

Lowest Prices at Close.

There was a good advance, but after shorts had covered buying support was inadequate to sustain rallies. The close of the week witnessed the lowest prices known to the trade in wheat, oats and rye, and nearly the lowest on corn. There were net losses on wheat for the week of 1@1¼c, corn ⅝@⅞c, oats ⅝@½c, and rye 1⅛@1⅜c as compared with the previous week. Price fluctuations in wheat for the week, between the high and the low, showed a range of around 2c, and in corn about 1½c. Every sharp upturn brought selling orders.

A striking feature was the support given the Winnipeg wheat market around 50c for December, which was credited to the pool and the Canadian government. It was said that the pool sustained prices so that foreigners would not become panicky and withdraw their bids, and in this they were partially successful, as Canadian sales of wheat for the week were around 5,000,000 bu. At the same time there were sales of a few cargoes of American hard winters to Greece, which country, it is said, takes about two cargoes a month, having a preferential tariff.

Cutten Raps U. S. Control.

Marketing of wheat in the Canadian northwest has been unusually heavy for nearly three months, and it is believed that the peak has been reached, with estimates of more than 180,000,000 bu marketed since the after harvest movement started. Reports from the American northwest intimate that the peak movement has been reached and that hedging pressure, both in Canada and the United States, is being reduced.

Arthur W. Cutten, referring to government operations in wheat, says: "Were the Canadian government or the pools to take 100,000,000 bu of wheat and dump it in the lake at a price of 30c a bu they would be out $30,000,000. The United States government would have been better off had it taken 300,000,000 bu of wheat and dumped it in the ocean, as it has expended $500,000,000 in three years, yet our prices today are the lowest known for wheat."

Mr. Cutten, who has always opposed government interference in business, is said to have intimated to close friends that when governmental restrictions are taken off the market he might again become an active trader. His main objections are the heavy tax and the reporting of trades to the government.

Argentina Gets Rain.

A feature that is attracting attention is the drought over a large section of the winter wheat country, although it was partly relieved by rains within the last few days. Argentina reported the need of rain early in the week, but later there was liberal precipitation. Crop conditions in the southern hemisphere in the next two months will be watched with increased interest by the grain trade the world over.

December wheat sold down to 47¾c on Saturday, the lowest of the season, with the close ⅛@⅜c above that level. May touched 53¼c and rallied ½@⅝c. July was at a low of 54¾c and closed at 55c. Prices for the week follow:

	December.	May.	July.
Monday	48¾-49¼	53¾-55	54¾-56
Tuesday	48¼-49⅝	53⅝-54⅝	54⅜-55⅞
Wednesday	Holiday	Holiday	Holiday
Thursday	48¼-49¼	53¼-54⅜	54⅜-55½
Friday	48⅝-50	53¾-55¼	54½-56¼
Saturday	47¾-49¼	53¼-54⅜	54⅜-55½
Week	47¾-50	53¼-55¼	54⅜-56¼
Previous wk.	48½-54¼	53¾-59½	55⅛-60½
1931	46⅝-51⅝	52⅜-55	53⅝-58¼
1930	75¼-79½	79¼-83¼	81½-85

Foreigners Buy Corn.

American corn is being taken in fair quantities by foreigners for export, largely by way of Montreal. Business last week was the largest of the season, exceeding 700,000 bu. A leading cash handler says that should prices remain low there is a prospect of a continued large business abroad for the next few months. Should they be advanced sharply by speculative buying we will lose out and the Argentine corn will be taken freely by European consumers.

Our exportable surplus of corn, as given by the government report, is 85,000,000 bu, compared with 67,000,000 bu last year.

New York, Oct. 16.—(AP)—The General Electric company added approximately 5,000 stockholders to its list in the quarter ended Sept. 30 and nearly 29,000 during the last year, the company announced today. The present number is 178,579, compared with 173,243 on June 30 and 139,697 on Sept. 30, 1931. The company reports an uninterrupted gain in stockholders since 1925.

State Heads of Insurance Study Assets

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 16.—Confronted with some of the most important problems which ever have faced it, the national convention of insurance commissioners is to be opened tomorrow in Dallas, Tex. For two days the group will hold its deliberations there, and for the following two days it will move to Galveston.

The convention is one of the most important in the insurance world, because it represents the annual meeting of the heads of the insurance departments of every state for a discussion of the policies to be followed in the coming year. Many representatives of the insurance companies themselves will also attend.

Problem of Valuations.

One of the principal problems confronting the group at this meeting is that of security valuation in the matter of estimating insurance company assets. A year ago it was decided to allow companies to use June 30 market values in reporting their condition as of Dec. 31, inasmuch as prices on that date represented approximately the average price for the preceding five quarters. This plan became known as the convention valuations, and was significant in aiding the insurance companies to protect their surpluses against the ravages of a declining securities market.

At a meeting of the security committee of the convention in Chicago in June it was decided to extend the plan for this year by using the average of the prices existing on June 30, 1931, and June 30, 1929, in reporting conditions as of Dec. 31, 1932. The plan was also extended at that time to allow companies other than life companies, which already have the privilege, the right to amortize their bond holdings.

To Discuss Chicago Plan.

George S. Van Schaick, superintendent of insurance for New York state, is chairman of the security committee, and it is expected he may reiterate a proposal made in Chicago that average valuations should be a permanent feature of insurance accountancy. In Chicago he contended that prices as of any one day were never representative of the value of investments, whether in good times or bad, and that an average similar to that enacted to meet the current emergency might well become a permanent feature.

Mr. Van Schaick will address the convention on "Insurance Administration as a Public Service." Other members of the delegation include Nelson B. Hadley, chief of the life bureau and Joseph J. MaGrath, chief of the rating bureau.

Other Problems.

Other problems to be discussed at the meetings are the matter of compensation insurance and the disagreements between stock and mutual companies as to rates in this line, and the extension of the New York state commissioner's new Marine insurance policy to general practice throughout the country.

Charles D. Livingston, insurance commissioner of Michigan, is president of the group and Dan C. Boney of North Carolina is chairman of the executive committee.

SHARP INCREASE IN WORK NOTED IN PENNSYLVANIA

Philadelphia, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Gains in employment and pay rolls, the Philadelphia Federal Reserve bank reported today, occurred in Pennsylvania and Delaware during September. The increase in employment, the report said, was four per cent and in pay rolls almost eight per cent, as compared with August.

"These unusual increases," it stated, "which were nearly twice as large as in August, occurred for the first time in the last three years. Compared with a record low level reached in July, employment in September was seven per cent higher and wage payments nearly thirteen per cent larger."

Delaware factories reported gains of six per cent in employment and over seven per cent in pay rolls and working hours.

Reports Nashville Pay Roll Gains 2,000 Up to Sept. 15

Nashville, Tenn., Oct. 16.—(AP)—Addition of almost 2,000 workers to industrial pay rolls in Nashville between July 15 and Sept. 15 was reported by the Business Review, monthly publication of the Nashville chamber of commerce. The Review, published Saturday, showed conditions as of Sept. 15. It said 1,917 workers had been added in industrial concerns since July 15, and 17 of 47 manufacturers interviewed asserted that they would take on more employés later.

National Tea Company's Sales Reported in Gain

The consolidated sales of the National Tea company for the tenth period of four weeks ending Oct. 8, 1932, amounted to $4,873,302. This compares with sales of $4,677,733 for the preceding four weeks, or an increase of 4.18 per cent, and with $5,843,644 for the corresponding four weeks of 1931, or a decrease of 16.61 per cent.

$4,000,000 in French Bonds Drawn for Redemption

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 16.—J. P. Morgan & Co., as fiscal agents, have notified holders of French government external loan of 1924 7 per cent bonds, due on Dec. 1, 1949, that $4,000,000 of the bonds have been drawn for redemption on Dec. 1 at 105 for the account of the sinking fund.

Establish Silk and Rayon Bureau for Research

Establishment of a silk and rayon research bureau, to undertake an extensive survey of conditions in the silk and rayon industries, and to carry on, in collaboration with the Textile Foundation, certain special studies in the field of marketing, was announced by the Silk Association of America.

SLIGHT PRICE ADVANCE NOTED IN COMMODITIES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 16.—Wholesale commodity prices advanced slightly in September, although the margin of gain was less than 1 per cent. Between August and September, according to statistics issued by the bureau of labor today, price increases were registered in 230 instances, decreases in 138 instances, while in the case of 416 products there was no price change at all.

The index number of wholesale commodity prices, as compared by the bureau of labor statistics, includes 784 commodities. Taking the average prices for 1926 as 100 per cent the index number averaged 65.3 for September for the whole 784 commodities compared to 65.2 for August. It represented a decrease of 3¼ per cent over prices a year ago.

Show Increases.

Butter, dressed poultry, hides and leather products, chemicals and raw materials showed advances for the month. Decreases were recorded in the average prices of most grains, cows, hogs, leather products, drugs and finished products.

"The farm products group showed no change for the two months," the department said. "Increases were recorded in the average prices of calves, sheep, cotton, eggs, lemons, oranges, tobacco, and wool. Decreases were recorded in the average prices of most grains, cows, hogs, onions and potatoes.

"Among the foods price increases were reported for butter, cheese, dressed poultry, coffee, oleomargarine, granulated sugar and most canned vegetables. On the other hand, condensed milk, bread, rolled oats, bananas, lamb, mutton, fresh and cured pork, veal, lard, and raw sugar averaged lower than in the month before. The group as a whole showed no change in September when compared with August.

Hide Group Higher.

"The hides and leather products group increased more than 3½ per cent during the month due to sharp increases in hides and skins and leather. Decreases were shown for other leather products, with boots and shoes showing practically no change in average prices. Textile products as a whole increased 5½ per cent from August to September, all such groups showing advancing prices for the month.

"In the group of fuel and lighting materials decreases in the average prices of bituminous coal, electricity, gas, and patroleum products forced the group as a whole to decline nearly 2 per cent. Anthracite coal advanced during the month and coke remained at the August level.

"Metals and metal products showed no change for September. Increases in iron and steel products and nonferrous metals were offset by decreases in agricultural implements, motor vehicles, and plumbing and heating fixtures. In the group of building materials brick and tile, lumber, paint and paint materials, and other building materials moved upward and cement and structural steel showed no change in average prices for the two months. The group as a whole advanced 1¼ per cent from August to September.

Chemicals in Slight Gain.

"Chemicals advanced slightly between August and September. Drugs and pharmaceuticals, fertilizer materials, and mixed fertilizers showed recessions during September, causing the group to decline a little more than ½ of 1 per cent from the month before. As a whole the house furnishing goods group showed an upward tendency from the previous month.

"The group of miscellaneous commodities increased approximately two-tenths of 1 per cent between August and September, advancing prices of automobile tires and tubes, and crude rubber more than counterbalanced decreasing prices for cattle feed, paper and plup, and other miscellaneous commodities.

"The September averages for raw materials, semi-manufactured articles, nonagricultural commodities and all commodities other than farm products and foods were above those of August."

PARIS ECONOMIST SEES U. S. HEADED OUT OF SLUMP

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Oct. 16.—For the first time in three years American business now is showing symptoms of reacting spontaneously from the depression. This opinion was expressed by Frederick Jenny, noted French economist, in an article in tonight's Tempe. Jenny takes the recent increases in carloadings and of electric power consumption as an indication that a possible gradual recovery is on the way.

"The road will be long and difficult from this slight start toward prosperity," he adds, suggesting that further deflation of the capital structure may be necessary to continued production at low prices. He says a renewal of foreign trade also is essential and emphasizes the importance of reduction of public expenditure in order to cut taxation.

Jenny considers Wall street's failure to attract the public into the market and to maintain the summer highs as an indication that artificial means are not effective to bring back prosperity. He says, however, that improvement of stock prices, which have not yet been entirely wiped out, has given rise to improved feeling in the country, which contrasts with the discouragement hitherto prevailing.

PENNSY EARNS 34 CENTS A SHARE IN EIGHT MONTHS

Pennsylvania railroad reported a net loss after taxes and charges for August of $406,135, compared with net income of $2,167,420 for the same month a year ago.

For the first eight months of this year there was net income at $4,592,300, as against $12,151,704 for the corresponding 1931 period.

Net for the eight months period is equal to 34 cents a share on 13,162,810 shares, as against 92 cents a year ago.

Atchison system's net income for August after taxes and charges was $1,624,550, compared with $3,829,163 for the like 1931 month.

Net for the first eight months of this year was $1,851,305, equal to $1.49 a share on 1,241,728 shares of 5 per cent preferred stock, as against $13,692,062 in the same period a year ago.

Baltimore and Ohio reported a net loss after taxes and charges for August of $267,436, as against net income of $728,240 in the same month last year. For the first eight months of 1932 net loss aggregated $5,698,929, in contrast to net income of $1,421,361 for the corresponding 1931 period.

REFUSE TO HEAR PROTEST ON EAST GETTING C. & E. I.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 16.—The interstate commerce commission has refused to reopen the railroad consolidation case to permit the Alabama public service commission to protest against grouping of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois with roads in the eastern district.

The Alabama state regulating body contended in its application for a reopening of the case that the Chicago and Eastern Illinois should not have been grouped with the Chesapeake and Ohio and Nickel Plate.

GRAHAM-PAIGE OFFERS PLAN TO EXCHANGE NOTES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 16.—A plan for funding and extending the balance of $1,400,000 of an issue of $3,000,000 of Graham-Paige Motors corporation 8 per cent sinking fund debentures, series A, has been presented by Joseph B. Graham, president, in a letter to the holders of the bonds.

The plan provides for the exchange of the bonds, which mature Aug. 1, 1933, for a like amount of first mortgage 6 per cent sinking fund bonds dated Feb. 1, 1933, and due Feb. 1, 1938. The new bonds would be secured by a first closed mortgage or deed of trust to the Detroit Trust company as trustee, covering the land, buildings, machinery and equipment of the Warren avenue plant in Detroit, and the plant at Wayne, Mich., which are estimated to have a value of $4,764,982. This figure is based on an appraisal of the land in 1927, and on the cost of the plant less depreciation and write-offs.

Steel Again Shows Fair Demand Gain

New York, Oct. 16.—Improvement in steel demand continued of moderate proportions this week, still reflecting steady buying by smaller consuming interests. Ingot production was estimated at 19 per cent of capacity for the country, accounted for by expanding demand for tin plate, tubular products, sheets, and bars.

Further loans for structural projects and for railroad repairs have been announced by the Reconstruction Finance corporation, but they have not materialized into orders.

Demand from the automobile industry is held up pending new models. Prices held unchanged. Demand for pig iron improved further in some districts, at steady quotations.

Copper Market Dull.

Demand for copper remained dull, as European quotations continued soft, causing consumers here to withhold purchases. Producers hold nominal quotations unchanged at 6¾c for electrolytic, while concessions said to be available in second hand quarters attract no buying interest. An important fabricator is quoted to the effect that there has been a distinct improvement in the copper and brass industry. Consumers, however, are said to have their immediate metal requirements supplied.

Tin ruled steady and toward the close of the week improved buying developed, apparently influenced by the more cheerful tone of financial markets. This demand, however, was largely for dealer account, with consumers taking relatively small quantities.

Lead Prices Steady.

Lead was steady at the recent decline. Consumer buying improved moderately, being approximately equal to [illegible]. Generally there was said to be little or no pressure to sell, some interests not quoting the low levels prevailing.

Zinc remained quiet. Buying interest was said to be developing slightly below quoted levels, but in the apparent absence of selling pressure business was restricted.

POLITICS PUSHES ASIDE ROUTINE FINANCE EVENTS

Wall Street Passes Up Statistics.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 16.—Politics, for the moment, appears to have elbowed such routine matters as earnings and dividend reports, trade reviews, and bank statistics out of the stock market picture. The politicians out in the front line trenches are beginning to make the fur fly in their great quadrennial campaign to save the country, and the smoke of battle is beclouding what the ticker has to say about a lot of other developments that might otherwise be accounted more or less important. Brokers think it will be thus until after the election.

The changed order of things was brought home to the tape watching gentry in striking fashion by the market's course last week. First there was a continuation of the decline which had set in the week before and which was popularly blamed on the street's so-called "gold scare"; i. e., the sobering disclosure that the country had come within two weeks of being forced off the gold standard when the depression was scraping bottom last summer. Second, there was the sharp upturn in Friday's dealings credited to an "understanding" that the Democratic candidate for President was about to declare opposition to the soldier bonus.

A Different View.

There were those, of course, who found it difficult to fully credit either explanation, inclining rather to the view that Friday's rebound was nothing more than a technical recovery, brought about by an oversold condition, just as the earlier setback had been brought about and carried on by disappointment over the failure of business and industry to recover to the highly optimistic bounds fixed by midsummer prophecy.

Wall Street Now Passes Up Trade Statistics.

however, the reaction was instrumental in canceling nearly 50 per cent of the gains accumulated between July 8 and Sept. 8 before it was checked. Friday's rally—the sharpest, by the way, since the one on Sept. 21—restored more than 4 points of the losses—4.07 points, as measured by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S average index of fifty representative stocks, to be exact.

September Rally.

The Sept. 21 rally, which had gradually dwindled away in the day by day press of selling since, amounted to 6.40 points. Incidentally, while the earlier rally opened a wide gap in overnight advances over prices of the preceding session, thus inviting a wave of profit taking, that of last week resulted in no such pronounced gap and, according to the chartists who set store by such things, therefore did not lay itself so openly to attack.

On both rallies speculative enthusiasm and the volume of trading waned rapidly after the initial upturn. Last Friday's turnover, for all the fuss and fury made by the jubilant bull element, amounted to only a little more than two million shares. Volume for the full week, indeed, came to only 7,867,440 shares, which went for a fair-to-middling day's business in times not so very far agone.

The market, as these figures suggest, continued to be very largely a professional affair, depending for its rallying power more on some sudden stampede of shorts than on any outburst of "long pull" buying enthusiasm.

Business Evidences.

Excluding reasonable hopes of a continuation of the evidences of seasonal recovery, which the various indices of business and trade, such as the car loading reports, department store sales, increasing figures on employment, and the like, have been furnishing with such steady regularity, there does not seem to be much on the nearby calendar outside of politics to stir the market's pulse. With the candidates of both major parties launching their "whirlwind finish" drives and the wires pulsating with a growing crop of charge and countercharge, however, the speculative community will find it easy, no doubt, to blame its market's worries on the "live" news of the day.

The mill run of business news has long since ceased to be a factor of any speculative sentiment. Judging from stock comment, the street has just about abandoned hopes of anything more than seasonal improvement this fall. Certainly no further stock is being taken in the rosy predictions of a sweeping revival so lately current in Wall street conversation.

Getting Close to the Dead Line.

TO THE EDITOR: I own a three flat building purchased in 1927 for $31,000. A first mortgage of $14,500 is held by —— company and the entire amount is due Oct. 31, 1932. I intend to ask for an extension or renewal but I am very much afraid that they will refuse this request. What procedure can I follow if they refuse to extend this mortgage? Can I get help from the United States government through the home loan bank; if so, how shall I make application for a loan from them?—W. C.

ANSWER: Every one with an aching tooth is the same when it comes to seeing the dentist. They keep putting it off as long as possible anticipating an unpleasant experience. However, this should never be done in the case of refinancing a first mortgage. Perhaps much to your surprise, the extension of your loan may be easily accomplished. The firm you are dealing with is a reputable organization and we feel certain they will make every effort to assist you in working out your problem on an equitable basis. If this is impossible, we suggest you write the Federal Home Loan bank, Evanston, requesting either an application for loan or the name of several building loan associations in Chicago who are in the market for mortgages.

Owns Six Lots.

TO THE EDITOR: I would like to get a little information in regards to the following: I own six lots in Bartlett, Ill., clear. I am employed by the C. & St. P. railroad and would like very much to live there. On two of these lots is an old house, large barn, chicken house, and two deep wells. The house can be remodeled for about $1,500. I would also have to put in plumbing, septic tank, and water pump.

At present, I am paying $30 a month rent in Chicago. If I could secure enough money to put the house in shape, my rent money could be applied on my own home. I would like to know if there is any way I could get a loan to improve this property?—M. C.

ANSWER: There are several parties who would be interested in figuring with you on this work and you could arrange to pay on the installment plan. We suggest you secure several figures from a building contractor, a local lumber yard, and the home building department of some large mail order house. You might try to locate a building contractor who would take one of the vacant lots as part payment for services and material.

ANNOUNCE PLANS FOR THREE MORE STRAUS ISSUES

Reorganizations Affect $3,000,000 Bonds.

BY AL CHASE.

Three reorganizations, comprising first mortgage bonds totaling approximately $3,000,000 on two Chicago and one Cincinnati properties, were announced yesterday by S. W. Straus & Co. One of the trio is the Patrician apartments, a 17 story apartment building at 405 Fullerton parkway, securing a $1,000,000 first mortgage bond issue. Another is the Patrician Annex, adjoining the Patrician, financed with an $850,000 bond issue. It is located at 411 Fullerton parkway. The third is the Belvidere apartments, an 11 story apartment building at Reading road and Rosehill avenue, Cincinnati. It secures a $1,300,000 bond issue, of which $1,125,000 is outstanding.

N. H. OGLESBEE. [Moffett-Russell Photo.]

A bondholders' committee was formed for the Patrician apartments in September, 1931, and at present 92 per cent of the bonds have been deposited. In October, 1931, possession of the building was turned over to a trustee under the first mortgage deed and since then the net income has been used for the benefit of the first mortgage bondholders.

Plan New Corporation.

A new corporation will be organized and, if the property is acquired by the committee at the sale of the property, a date for which soon will be fixed by the court, title will be conveyed to the new company. One hundred per cent of the capital stock of the new corporation, representing outright ownership of the property, will be issued for the benefit of the first mortgage bondholders.

All of the capital stock will be placed in trust and certificates issued to the depositing bondholders. Upon the completion of the reorganization the bondholders will receive new income bonds for 40 per cent of the bonds deposited and in addition trust certificates for one share of capital stock in exchange for each $1,000 of the present first mortgage bonds, one-half share for a $500 bond, and one-tenth share for a $100 bond.

Seeks New Loan.

"In order to expedite the distribution of funds to the depositing first mortgage bondholders, the new company, with the cooperation of the committee, will make every effort to obtain a conservative first mortgage loan on the property," said N. H. Oglesbee of the committee. "This will be used to pay the expenses of foreclosure and reorganization and make it possible to begin the distribution of earnings as quickly as possible."

In all three of the reorganizations Mr. Oglesbee points out, the depositing bondholders will own the properties outright, and the entire future net earnings of the properties will go to the depositing first mortgage bondholders, either in the form of interest on the new bonds or dividends on the capital stock.

Rail Executives to Talk OverRetention ofSurcharge

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 16.—The question of continuance of the freight surcharges now in effect, which would expire March 4, will provide a prime subject of discussion at the annual meeting of the Association of Railway Executives, scheduled to be held here on or about Nov. 11. This will be the result of the failure of the association's advisory committee to agree on the question at its meeting in Chicago on Friday.

Hudson Coal 5s.

Hudson Coal company is controlled by Delaware and Hudson company.

In 1931 the company sold 5,863,000 net tons, against 7,230,000 in 1930 and 7,548,000 in 1929. Sales in 1931 were $33,567,000, against $40,594,000 in 1930 and $43,637,000 in 1929.

Bond charges, before depreciation and depletion, were covered in 1931. After deducting these charges, however, only two-thirds of interest paid was earned. Interest was earned 1.57 times in 1930, against 1.32 times in 1929. In 1928 only one-third of interest was earned.

On Dec. 31, 1931, current assets were $9,296,000 and current liabilities were $6,514,000. Cash was $1,286,000 and loans payable were $3,144,000. Working capital was $2,882,000, against $6,801,000 the year before.

The sinking fund requirement for the $35,000,000 first 5s, due 1962, is 5 cents per ton of coal mined, with a minimum requiremer of 1 per cent of the bonds issued. Bonds so purchased will be held alive.

The first 5s, due 1962, are more a speculation than an investment.

State Mutual Life Assurance.

I would like to have some information on the standing of State Mutual Life Assurance company of Worcester, Mass.—O. A. H.

State Mutual Life Assurance company [Worcester, Mass.] was incorporated 88 years ago. It is purely mutual.

Its growth since then has been consistent. Insurance in force at the close of 1931 was $663,870,000, against $512,681,000 on Dec. 31, 1926, $203,684,000 at the close of 1916, $118,748,000 on Dec. 31, 1906, $10,309,000 on Dec. 31, 1876, and $2,304,000 on Dec. 31, 1856.

The management has handled the affairs of the company efficiently.

Reserve basis is strong. Surplus is considered sufficient.

Income in 1931 was $30,207,000. Disbursements, including $5,858,000 dividends to policyholders, were $24,831,000.

Total assets on Dec. 31, 1931, were $149,076,000. Invested assets were $140,857,000. Of the latter 3.42 per cent was in real estate, 39.67 per cent in mortgage loans, 22.96 per cent in policy loans, and 32.33 per cent in bonds [amortized values]. Only 1.57 per cent was in stocks.

Of the $45,127,000 of bonds, $1,679,000 are in government securities, $17,421,000 in state securities, $17,421,000 in railroads, $12,471,000 in utilities, and $449,000 in other bonded indebtedness.

The company has an excellent reputation.

LETTERS

It Shall Be Done.

Financial Editor: Permit me to make a suggestion, and when I say so, I want you also to know that I always enjoy reading your financial page, which is one of the finest anywhere. The suggestion I have is in connection with your daily listing of the Consolidated Oil stock, which you list as "Con. Oil." Why not make it—"Cons. Oil" so that one knows you refer to "Consolidated" and not to "Continental," which is also listed.

Presumably other subscribers are in the same fix, but invariably when I look for a quotation on "Cons.," I have to go all the way down the line to "Cont." in order to make sure that I am not taking one for the other. Just a suggestion—nothing else—and if for some reason you like it better as it is, it is all very well.

A Traveler's Plight.

Financial Editor: My attention was drawn to an article in the Oct. 3 issue of the Chicago Tribune by Howard Wood, relating to railroad bargain fares, and then on a following page, by coincidence, a contribution by T. E. Quinn, who suggested buyers' trains as a further stimulus to travel. I heartily agree with the last half of his letter pertaining to salesmen.

For years the travelling salesman has been the goat. He has paid the levied tribute, burdensome as it was and is, because there was no other alternative. Isn't it about time that some outstanding national figure in public affairs, or some powerful organization, does a bit of justifiable lobbying for him?

Howard Woods' article is linked with railroad advertising of one fare and one-quarter round trip to many far and distant points, and further, I submit other railroad programs of fares as low as one cent a mile, good in all classes of trains and equipment, so long as the additional Pullman charges are satisfied. These excursions are very tempting morsels to the stay-at-home, who suddenly gets the urge to travel somewhere, and can conveniently arrange his trip to conform with the railroads' prescription. But what about Mr. Traveling Salesman, who must travel through necessity, not convenience, and who is a continual railroad addict from seven to twelve months out of the year—is he not entitled to some consideration?

Not alone do the traveling salesmen represent a large percentage of regular railroad patrons, but through contact provide these very channels of transportation with mail matter, parcel post, express, and freight, and as Mr. Quinn so aptly puts it, "The travelling salesman is necessary for good times." Of course he is, and in order to again make his species abundant and permit his earning a fair income above his expenses, and thereby help do his share, immediate action must obtain the following:

Lower these confiscatory passenger rates, doubly burdensome today through decreased earnings remove the abominable Pullman surtax, and provide traveling salesmen with mileage books of 5,000 miles, good every day in the week, interchangeable on all railroads, at a cost not to exceed two and one-half cents a mile. Thus empty trains would be filled once more, and railroad complexions would take on a rosier hue.

COTTON PRICES DIP IRREGULARLY FOR WEEK CLOSED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 16.—Prices of cotton declined irregularly last week, the active contract months on the New York Cotton exchange losing 13 to 16 points. The depressing effects of lower grain and security markets, together with favorable crop weather, were to a large extent offset by the increased activity of the spinning industry, by a continued high basis for spot cotton, and by the continued good export movement of cotton as compared with last year.

The government's report on consumption of cotton by mills in this country in September, amounting to 491,000 bales, or an average of 20,700 bales a day, against 279,000 bales in July, a daily rate of 12,400 bales, reflected the heavy volume of cloth sales for forward delivery booked by the mills in July and August, although cloth sales have been much smaller during the last two weeks. But with large forward orders on mill books, and stocks at mills very small, the belief in the trade is that the high rate of mill activity will continue until near the end of the year, at least.

Shows Improvement.

The foreign mill situation is showing some improvement. In recent weeks, it is reported, the English mills have been selling more yarn than they have been producing currently. German and French spinning centers report some increase in activity. Japanese mills, however, have reduced their operations slightly in accordance with a curtailment agreement. Because price relationship favors American cotton, foreign mills are said to be using relatively less foreign grown than usual.

The relative firmness of spot cotton continues to find reflection in a high spot basis. The October contract on the exchange here is only 4 points above the average price for middling quoted at ten southern markets, while the December contract is today 11 points above. A year ago October was 41 points and December 48 points above middling spots in these centers, while two years ago October was 65 points and December 84 points above.

Exports Are Higher.

Exports of cotton for the season to date amount to 1,525,000 bales, against 1,039,000 in the same period last year. Great Britain and the continent are taking more cotton this season than last, but the orient, with large stocks to draw upon, is taking much less. The movement of Indian cotton is reported to be running much lower than last season and far below average. Although during the last two weeks forwardings of American cotton to the mills of the world have run lower than in these two weeks last year, in the season to date they total 2,401,000 bales, against 2,304,000 bales last season at this time.

The weather in the cotton belt was favorable for picking and ginning last week. Rainfall was limited to one day and was in part of the belt.

SOFT RED WHEAT CROP SHORT 100 MILLION BUS.

A shortage of practically 100,000,000 bus of soft red wheat crop in the United States this year, and 250,000,000 bus of hard red wheat is given by the United States department of agriculture as compared with last year. The shortage of winter wheat is in a measure made up by an increase of 124,000,000 bus of hard red spring wheat. Detailed comparisons with the last three ciphers omitted follow:

REFINERS BUY LARD

Refiners are said to have bought loose lard freely of late and are having a good average business. Warehousemen absorbed offerings of October by holders who were liquidating the current month and it closed 7¼c lower. January gained 15c and May 20c for the week. Hog supplies continues liberal and prices low. Prices follow:
